Farmers Should Plant Legume Crops Early

These Are Necessary in Order to Qualify for Soil Conserving Payment

By E. H. Garrison,
County Agent

Due to the unfavorable seasons caused by the dry weather, many of the farmers of the state have lost some of their legume crops such as lespedeza, especially where it was sown late in the spring, and a good many of the other legume crops have not been planted due to the unusual weather conditions. These crops are necessary in order to qualify for the soil conserving payment under the Soil Conservation Program.

We would like to stress to every grower the importance of seeding, before it is too late, a sufficient acreage of conserving crops in order to qualify for the soil conserving payment and as large as soil building payment as possible.

In this state we are allowed, for the year 1936, to use soybeans and cowpeas as conserving crops even though the hay is cut. This is a very liberal interpretation of conserving crops.

Realizing the legume seed is scarce, if peas or beans are planted in two and one-half to three feet rows and cultivated once or twice, you will generally make as much as if the peas, beans are sown broadcast. This will certainly make the seed go further and will enable the grower to receive his payments under the Soil Conservation Program.

The question frequently arises as to whether sorghum or Sudan grass sown with peas or beans for hay is soil conserving. If beans or peas predominate the acreage will count soil conserving but if the sorghum or Sudan grass predominates and is cut for hay the acreage will count as depleting.

Provision is being made in the classification of crops to provide that sorghum and rye left on the land and not harvested will be classified as soil conserving for 1936.

Provision was made recently which provides that in case lespedeza, peas or beans on wheat land, that one-half of the acreage would count as soil conserving.

Under a new schedule of division any cotton farmer, who has a base acreage of five acres or less, can divert two full acres of his base and get paid for it by planting soil conserving crops. This should be of great interest to the small cotton growers. Sixty percent of the cotton farmers of Moore county have a base of five acres or less and can take advantage of the above rule.

In order to get any of the above benefits it will be necessary to sign a work sheet if it has not already been signed. The County Agent or someone in his office will explain any of the above to anyone interested.

CORRESPONDENCE

Editor, The Pilot:

I wish to express to each of you my grateful appreciation of your support of my candidacy for State Auditor, and as your next State Auditor, you will always find the door wide open to you and I shall always appreciate you asking me to serve you. You fought a splendid battle, and you have won a glorious victory.

James Douglas

By James Boyd

As kennel huntsman of the Moore County Hounds, James Douglass filled a unique and exacting position with notable success, with, I think it can be said, distinction. The management and training of a pack requires ability judgment, foresight, patience, shrewdness and skill in handling men as well as animals. Visitors, not only from town but from many parts of the country, were invariably struck by the neatness and good order of the establishment, by the good nature, earnestness and harmony of the men who helped James and above all by the cheerfulness and high spirits combined with exceptional obedience of the hounds themselves. We have all ways felt that from what might be called the professional standpoint, we were very lucky in having James Douglass in charge of them.

But that, even to us for whom he worked, was the least important side of him. It was as a man, as practically a member of the family, that we valued him. He not only had the virtues that come from strength of character: integrity, faithfulness, fairness, persistence, but he combined them with a tranquil and sunny spirit, with gentleness, consideration, unfailing courtesy. We could not help but feel the influence of his fine nature and serenity and prize it in our daily lives.

In our loss it has helped us to have so many friends and neighbors who speak of James with understanding and sympathize with us as they would in a personal bereavement.
