

Miss Fannie B. Gray Honored at Pinehurst

Friends Pay Tribute to Her "Consecration, Faithfulness and Devotion"

Miss Fannie B. Gray of Pinehurst was the guest of honor at an informal gathering of the members and friends of the Pinehurst Community Church and Sunday school Tuesday evening, July 7th in the assembly room of the church.

Miss Gray attended the meeting, which had been announced simply as an evening of entertainment, unaware that the presence of about 100 of her friends was a tribute of their admiration and devotion for her, their appreciation of her outstanding service in the community over the years she has spent here, and that they had come to express this sentiment in a gift of love and honor.

After the opening prayer, the Rev. A. J. McKelway called on W. P. Morton, superintendent of the church school, to address the meeting. Mr. Morton told briefly the purpose of the meeting, expressing in well chosen words the feeling of the occasion.

At the close of his remarks, he requested Mr. McKelway, pastor of the church, to escort Miss Gray to the center of the room to receive the gift.

Taken completely unawares, Miss Gray accompanied Mr. McKelway to receive a beautiful silver vase filled with roses. Almost overcome with emotion, she stood quietly until the prolonged and enthusiastic applause had ceased. Then turning to her friends she said: "I can speak only to say, 'I thank you!'"

Mr. McKelway addressed Miss Gray with the explanation that his task was to attempt to express in behalf of her friends the meaning of the tribute which they were paying her. Referring to the inscription on the vase, he said: "Inconspicuously but indelibly engraved on the base of this vase are three words: 'Consecration, Faithfulness, Service.' This is to us a symbol of those things which we have seen to be the basic and indelible qualities and expressions of your character and life."

He paid tribute to the invaluable, faithful and far-reaching service of this good woman to the community, the Sunday school and the church, and to the fact that her own labors and sacrifices had contributed so largely to the realization of her dream of "Our own church."

Miss Gray received a beautiful corsage and many spoken and written tributes of admiration and affection. Refreshments were served and guests remained until each, as friend and admirer, had the opportunity to speak to "Miss Fannie."

NOEL LAING ILL AT MAYO CLINIC IN MINNESOTA

Word was received here yesterday that Noel Laing of Southern Pines, the country's leading trainer and rider of steeplechase horses this year, is in the Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minn., for treatment. Laing has not been well for several months and was recuperating on a ranch in Montana until the heat became too oppressive. Upon examination by the famous Drs. Mayo he was found to have slight fractures of several ribs, probably suffered in falls during the spring racing season, and he is now recuperating from an operation performed a few days ago. He will be at the clinic a week or so longer, after which he will spend the balance of the summer resting at his father's home in Amisville, Va.

Noel Laing has had numerous horses in training here winters for several years, and this winter acquired property near the old Goodwill place on Young's Road on which he plans to build modern racing stables this fall.

Use of Cotton in Road Building May Solve South's Big Problem

Fabric as Reinforcement For Bituminous Surface Found to Reduce Cracking

The possible solution of the South's overproduction of cotton is gaining ground with further successful experimentation with the use of cotton in road building. Bert Pierce, automobile editor of the New York Herald-Tribune reports. For more than ten years observations have been made of thoroughfares where cotton was employed with other materials in projects. A recent Federal report indicates that the use of this substance not only prolongs durability but will reduce expenditures for construction and upkeep.

"As long ago as 1926 some of the cotton-growing states of the South began experimenting with cotton fabric as reinforcement for bituminous surface treatment for low-type highways," president of the American Road Builders Association. "The early tests were somewhat tentative, but all were based on the sound purposes of strengthening a widely used type of surface and of developing additional scope of a product that occupies so important a place in the agricultural and manufacturing activities of the South. As experience was gained, experimentation became more extensive and now the practice and use of cotton fabric reinforcing have reached a stage of reasonably high development."

Holding Road Together

"Technically the present stage of the new construction may be described virtually as cotton fabric as a reinforcement in bituminous surface treatment to reduce the risk of cracking, raveling and failure. When the fabric is properly embedded in bituminous material it is well preserved."

"It is too soon to know just how successfully the treatment will meet the great variety of conditions that are found throughout a country so broad and diversified as ours, but the experimental roads now being constructed by A. A. A. money should give very valuable additional information. Their service and performance is being watched with keen interest by road builders eager to see that the motoring public derives the largest return for its highway expenditures."

"Manufacturing" Plants in the County Destroyed—by Strong Arm of the Law

Three manufacturing plants in Moore county were destroyed last week, not by fire or storm, but by the strong arm of the law.

On Tuesday, Officers Slack, Lambert and Dunlap surprised Vance Goins and his wife, a middle-aged white couple, at a distillery a short distance from their home in the vicinity of Jackson Springs. They were engaged in "mashing in beer," but started off in double-quick time upon the officers' approach. They were caught, and were bound to Federal court under bond. The distillery was of around 75-gallon capacity and about 400 gallons of mash was on hand.

A 35-gallon copper outfit was cut down by Officers Slack and Grimm on Wednesday in the Ingram Branch neighborhood and about 75 gallons of mash destroyed. No one was taken.

On Saturday county and federal officers destroyed a 65-gallon outfit which was located only about a mile distant from the one at which Goins and his wife were taken. There was a 200-gallon supply of mash there, but no operators.

NATIONAL GUARDSMEN IN TRAINING AT BRAGG

Warning signs were posted on Connecticut avenue, Southern Pines this week notifying the public of firing on Fort Bragg reservation, and the extension of that avenue into the reservation closed to traffic. The 113th Field Artillery of the North Carolina National Guard has been in training at Bragg for two weeks, and has spent part of this week in field work, including firing. Col. Godfrey Cheshire has had 664 men and 61 officers in camp, units coming from many parts of the state.
