Gas Tax Increases Cut Mileage Total States With Added Levy Fall Behind in Sales Figures, Survey Shows

Gasoline consumption figures of the United States Bureau of Public Roads, just issued, reveal that gasoline tax increases last year resulted in substantial reduction in the use of automobiles. It is estimated by the bureau that in the five states where gasoline tax rates were increased, motorists cut their mileage by more than 1,250,000,000 miles.

In these states gasoline consumption last year was only 3.7 per cent above that of 1934 about one-half the 7 per cent gain registered in other states. If they had enjoyed consumption gains at the rate which obtained in the remainder of these states, an additional 100,000,000 gallons of gasoline would have been used by motorists.

New York, where the gasoline tax was increased from 3 cents to 4 cents on April 1, 1935, ranked at the bottom of all states in consumption gain. Its increase for the year was only 2.2 per cent.

Nebraska raised its 4 cent tax to 5 cents during 1935, the higher rate being in effect for eight months of the year. This state gained about the same as New York 2.3 per cent.

Up to July 1, 1935, Pennsylvania had reported substantial gallonage increase over the previous year, but after the tax was increased from 3 to 4 cents a slump ensued so that the gain for the entire year was only 5.2 per cent.

Connecticut was affected less by the gasoline tax increase than were any of the states previously mentioned, since the higher rate was in effect for only three months. Connecticut's gain for the year amounted to 6.1 per cent. The peak season for gasoline consumption had already passed when the increase became effective.

Of the five states which raised their tax rates last year, Delaware was the only one to equal the national average in gasoline consumption gained. The higher rates were in effect for six months, sufficient for the increase to be felt, but since one of the main highways between North and South runs through the state, Delaware was able to escape the consequences of the tax increase.

Turn Millen Park into Swimming Pool, Cry Southern Pines Scouts

Property Donated to City For Just Such Purpose, They Say in Letter to Pilot

Editor, The Pilot:

Nature has done great things for Southern Pines. It has given us the Sandhills and the climate which together make one vast sanitarium. It has given us a rolling terrain which with the wonderful springs of water present assets of untold bounty if man will but accept the challenge to use them. Pleasures untold if we will but use what nature has lavished upon us.

There is nothing airless more pleasure, especially during these days of midsummer heat, than a swim in sea or lake. We cannot capture the sea here, but nature has made it possible for us to very easily develop a lake.

The basin in Millen Park, one time a lake, is waiting for the hand of man to once more fill the place with water and for the gratification, and health-giving development, of our children. There it is waiting for us to use it. There are also our children who because there is no local spot in which they may learn to swim have to walk, or hitchhike to Aberdeen, to Watson's Lake, to Pinebluff, or to Juniper Lake. Girls as well as boys have to hike or take a pick-up by any Tom, Dick, or rough-neck who may offer them a ride. Some one is going to be injured by that sort of thing, such injury would not make for developing pride in our community.

Millen Park was donated to the city for just such a swimming pool and recreational center as Southern Pines great needs. There are men in our community who would be pleased to get the work. A little landscaping. The brush cleaned away, and there is one of the finest assets of the city, and next only to its youth. What a delightful series of walks in the ample shade could with but little labor be opened. The possibilities of the place, coupled with the imperative needs of our city, present a challenge our city cannot afford to pass by.

We believe that a large majority of our citizens would rejoice in seeing that basin made into a swimming pool for our youth, and the woodland arranged for picnics, and other social summertime gatherings.

It has been suggested that the pool, and the park, once put into shape for use, would be cared for by the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts, backed up by the officers and committeemen of the troops.

The place is now growing all sorts of jungle brush and briars, how much better to be helping to develop boys and girls, our future civic and religious leaders.

We very respectfully call the attention of our thoughtful citizens to the needs as suggested, and to the challenge as presented.

The development is greatly in demand. And it can be done.
