THE REPUBLICANS TAKE THE OFFENSIVE

The feature of the Presidential campaign to date appears to be the sudden reversal of position of the combatants. The Republican party, almost overnight, shook off its lethargy, its attitude of "You can't beat Santa Claus," and leaped right into the offensive. The unanimity of enthusiasm for its candidate; the aggressiveness of its new campaign manager, John Hamilton; the "walks" announced by a former Democratic Presidential candidate, former Democratic governors and other leaders, and the result of nation-wide polls account largely for the shift.

Mr. Landon's acceptance speech last week was favorably received by the public and the press. Shorn of the usual political piffle, it was a sound, constructive message in the opinion of a large majority of the nation's editors and commentators.

As The Pilot has said before, it is going to be a fight. And "Jim" Farley to the contrary notwithstanding, the result is no foregone conclusion.

Highlights of Mr. Landon's acceptance speech:

"The time has come to stop fumbling with recovery."

"No people can make headway where great numbers are supported in idleness. There is no future on the relief rolls."

"Practical progressives have suffered the disheartening experience of seeing many liberal objectives discredited during the past three years of careless thinking, unworkable laws and incompetent administration."

"We must be freed from incessant governmental intimidation and hostility . . . from excessive expenditures and crippling taxation."

"While spending billions of dollars of borrowed money may create a temporary appearance of prosperity, we and our children, as taxpayers, have yet to pay the bill. For every single dollar spent we will pay back two dollars."

"By its policies the Administration has taken the American farmer out of the foreign markets and put the foreign farmer into the American market."

"Employees are to be free from interference from any source, which means . . . entire freedom from coercion or intimidation by the employer, by any fellow employe, or any other person."

"The Republican party does not believe that the people wish to abandon the American form of government. We propose to maintain the constitutional balance of power between the States and the Federal Government."

A RECIPE FOR HEALTH

It is essential to think about health the year 'round. But it's more essential during the heat of the summer months.

A recipe for health is one of the by-products of the sessions of the American Osteopathic Association held last week in New York City. Here it is, as presented by Dr. Russell C. McCaughan, the association's executive secretary:

"1. Sleep eight hours every night—we can't all be Edisons or Napoleons.

"2. Drink four or five pints of liquid a day.

"3. Eat slowly, deliberately, a wide variety of foods—a little less than you actually want. If time does not permit a leisurely meal, better not eat at all. Leave the problem of calories and vitamins to your physician.

"4. Never allow yourself to become too good at competitive sports and games: Leave perfection to professionals and to youth.

"5. Walk at lot.
"6. Learn to think deliberately and usefully. Worry and hurry are the twin sisters of fate. They insure a short life and anything but a merry one."

TOURIST INDUSTRY

Before the "tourist season" ends reports the United Press, North Carolina resorts will pocket $50,000,000 in vacation dollars. This is excellent. But in North Carolina there is no tourist season. Winter may close some of the resorts in the mountains and on the coast which are most frequented by North Carolinians. But more and more North Carolina makes an appeal to all the year-round visitors from beyond the borders of the state. Golf at Pinehurst and duck shooting in Currituck are well-known attractions outside the too brief summer season. And more and more other resorts should extend their seasons in order that the state and the visitors may profit on the resource of the glorious North Carolina autumns the mild North Carolina winters, and the gentle and delightful North Carolina springs.

The tourist industry as some other sections have discovered is one which takes nothing out of a region but which instead leads to its increasing beauty. A study in Canada pointed out that the paper industry meant the export of forests and the mineral industry the emptying of mines, but tourists, bringing almost as many dollars as either of these industries, left Canada with all it contained before they arrived. To a lesser degree this is also true of North Carolina. In agriculture and industry to too large an extent money has been made by mining the soil or by mining human beings. Undoubtedly advance has been made against such destructive farming and such exploiting industry. But the net advantage of the tourist industry remains. People pay for seeing and seeing consumes nothing.

Blessed with the greatest mountains in the East, with a coastland which does not suffer by comparison with any in America, with a central section which the Tufts at Pinehurst have shown needs only development in intelligence, North Carolina, situated so near the great centers of population, has every advantage which should make it a State unexcelled in its appeal to tourists. But beauty like charity must begin at home. Tourists will come to this State when its citizens are themselves so impressed with its possibilities that they are willing to preserve them and improve them. If the preservation and improvement comes first, the tourists will come afterwards.

HE HAS NO KICK COMING

So far as Julian Bishop is concerned, if Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected, he proposes to take a walk entirely out of this country.

He's going to Canada, he says, in that event.

In the article in the New York Times in which appeared Mr. Bishop's statement of purpose, we read:

"Stopping at the Yale Club yesterday on one of his periodic visits to this city, Mr. Bishop emphasized his complete disinterest in politics, adding that he had voted only once in his life."

"Such being the case, what business is it of his who may be elected President of the United States?"

A man who has no more interest in political and civic duties than he indicates could be spared to Canada or Thibet or the Sahara desert.

Grains of Sand

Major Alex P. Kelly of Carthage dropped into the office this week to have the address of his Pilot changed. The major has been stationed for over two years at Cristobal in the Panama Canal Zone, is now going to the Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland. "I keep in touch with Moore county affairs through The Pilot, and I don't believe I miss much that's going on," he said.

H. W. Dorn asked on Monday when the temperature was over 100 if we weren't going to retract our last week editorial about Southern Pines as a summer resort.

Our answer is no. There have been just as hot days in practically every summer resort in the country as we had here Monday, and with more humidity.

The investigation into the tragic death of a New York University co-ed at Asheville has a certain similarity to the death in Pinehurst of Elva Statler Davidson. In both, the investigator announced he had "an ace in the hole," would have the solution ready at a certain time. The time came, and nothing happened. They are apparently no nearer a solution of the Asheville tragedy than they were the morning the unfortunate girl's body was found.

This from the United Press this week:

The identity of the Governor of North Carolina, who observed to the Governor of South Carolina that a long time was elapsing between drinks, has become the subject of intensive research by the writers' project of the Works Progress Administration in North Carolina, it was learned today.

The writers also will try to find out when the remark was uttered, to which Governor of South Carolina and what he did about it. An appeal has been made to all those who have authentic source material on the subject to give their accounts.

The talk around the office is that we need a new proofreader. In our peach story last week the present one let Mayflowers pass for Elbertas, and "iced cars" went through as "feed cars." Naughty naughty.

Aberdeen is the metropolis of the Sandhills at present. At least fifty trucks were parked about town over the week-end, awaiting the big rush of peaches to market on Monday. On Saturday night there was barely room to pass on the sidewalks, so many people were in town. What with the big peach crop and bright prospects for tobacco, business is looking up.

We have sworn out a warrant for one "Buck" Tarlton. For breach of peace.

If you've been having as much trouble getting to sleep these hot nights as we have, you'll understand. We had just arrived at that highly satisfactory and essential state of complete coma last Tuesday night about 11:30 when we were awakened by the loud ringing of the telephone. We pictured some dire disaster, a telegram full of bad news, the Associated Press wanting us to dash to Hemp on some big story, or something like that. We took down the receiver.

"Where is tomorrow's Kiwanis meeting," asked the voice of Buck.

It was just one hour later that we succeeded in regaining a soporific state, an hour spent in tossing in a delirium of murderous threats could we but get our hands on the Tarlton. We swore out the warrant the next morning

Reveals Julian Bishop's Trust Fund Income

Probate Court Reports on Sums Paid Carthage Landowner Who Plans "Walk"

Julian T. Bishop, New York broker, who has announced that he will move to Canada if President Roosevelt is re-elected, receives an annual income from a trust fund provided by his grandfather, William D. Bishop, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, a staunch Democrat, who left an estate of $2,165,934, officers of Probate Court in Bridgeport, Conn., disclosed last week.

The grandson, according to the Probate Court records, received $11,451 in February, 1936; $10,047 in 1934 $11,460 in 1933 and $11,166 in 1931. His grandfather's estate included $407,000 in cash, $772,000 in stocks, $618,000 in bonds, $176,000 in notes, $86,500 in real estate, $60,000 in insurance and $43,800 in miscellaneous items.

Julian Bishop recently advertised that if President Roosevelt were re-elected he would sell his quail farm near Carthage and move to Canada. He says he wanted to work for the Democrats when Mr. Roosevelt campaigned against Herbert Hoover, but "when I found I had to go to Farley and Cummings I quit what little I was doing." He doesn't consider the present Administration Democratic at all, but "red as fire." It was once published that he lost $188,100 in stock market operations during the four years beginning January, 1929.
