

Resettlement

What and Why

Editor's Note—This is question two of a series of questions and answers about the Resettlement Administration which are being published each week in the Pilot.

Is the program of the Resettlement Administration Communistic or Utopian?

Answer

The program of the Resettlement Administration is in no sense of the word communistic. It is an attempt on the part of an agency of the government to offer new opportunities in rural areas. In order to do this Resettlement is advocating a live-at-home program of diversified farming, which encourages the ownership of small family-sized farms. If we can make home owners out of our rural population we have preserved one of the strongest bulwarks of a democracy. The Resettlement Administration is encouraging the development of co-operatives among the farming population, but far from being communistic and radical, the co-operative movement is as old as America; in fact older. Co-operation was established when the first family worked together to get the household tasks done.

A co-operative is just a private business owned by all those who use it. Co-operatives are not experimental; they have done a constantly increasing business in America and in nearly every country in the world for many generations.

The program of the Resettlement Administration is a practical, business-like way of helping destitute and low-income farm families.

The rehabilitation program is primarily concerned with making loans to needy farm families. But Resettlement is practical about these loans. We know that many farm families have failed because they did not have the proper training. After providing loans by which they can obtain proper land and proper equipment, Resettlement undertakes also to see that they have the advantage of expert assistance. A farm and home plan is worked out for each family who receives a loan. If the plan is satisfactory, the family can be put back on its own feet, will no longer be on relief, and will be able to repay its debts to the Resettlement Administration and to other creditors.

The Resettlement program first of all sees that the families who move from poor land to good land are capable of producing a fair return per acre. The farms are large enough to furnish enough acreage for a profitable full time farm. The families selected are those who are capable of operating a farm of their own. The families are given forty years in which to pay for their farms and the interest is three percent. They are provided with well-built homes in order that the maintenance costs will not be great.

Next week's question: "Is the size of the Administrative staff of Resettlement Administration justified in the light of the number of people helped?"

brary; Miss Eloise Summerford, Commercial and Miss Catherine Blue, Music.

The Rev. A. J. McKelway will offer a course in Bible during the year. This was recommended by Mr. Thomas and the County Board of Education before Pinehurst became an Administrative Unit.

The Pinehurst Schools have made marked progress during the past several years. It has, perhaps, one of the strongest Parent-Teacher Associations in the state. Mrs. True Cheney will again head this association for the coming year.

Quoting from Mr. Morton in a report to The Pilot this week, he says, "The schools, churches and community work together remarkably in their efforts to make the Pinehurst School District an ideal place in which to rear children and to develop a finer type of citizenship. Pinehurst has an excellent faculty, a strong school board and a splendid P. T. A. Association. They understand and appreciate the value of a good school to a community."

The Week in Vass

Young people of the Presbyterian church at Lakeview presented an interesting program in the Vass Baptist church on last Sunday evening with a large crowd in attendance.

The Rev. and Mrs. Castevens of Mineral, Va., are conducting revival services in the tabernacle at 7:45 o'clock each evening through this week and next. The public is cordially invited to attend. The regular service scheduled to be held at 8 o'clock next Sunday evening at the Methodist church has been called off on account of the tabernacle service.

Rev. and Mrs. L. M. Hall met with a group of local church people at the Methodist church Sunday afternoon to formulate plans for a Religious Emphasis Week for Young People to be held in the local Methodist church on the evenings of August 17th through 20th. These services, which will precede the revival services which are to begin on the fourth Sunday evening, are to be carried out by the young people of the community, but the older people will be invited to attend.

The members of the Vass Presbyterian church have given their pastor a vacation to extend through the month of August and there will be no preaching service in their church on next Sunday morning, nor on the fourth Sunday evening.

ABERDEEN NEGRO BOY CONFESSED TO MURDER

o'clock, November — They stayed about twenty or thirty minutes and I went with them to the door. I saw Robert Lucky lying near the door. I then went back to my room, smoked a cigarette. I waited about twenty minutes. I then went to the room where my mother and father were sleeping, got the kerosene can out of the closet. I slipped to the front door. Robert Lucky was still lying about three feet from the steps on the left as you go out of the house. I poured some kerosene on Robert Lucky about his right hip pocket. I then struck a match and set him on fire and went in the house, locked the door and run and jumped in bed.

"About twelve or twelve-thirty that night Mother and Daddy woke me up and told me a man had been burned up in front of our house and that the man had been carried to the hospital, so I went back to bed.

"Next morning Daddy woke me and told me to tell Mr. Dees (the officers) the truth about who burned Robert Lucky, and I told Mr. Dees I did not know, and Daddy told me to tell him the truth for they might electrocute him, and they would only send me to Morrison Training School, and I told them I did not know who burned this man."

Tractor for Use of Farmer Available

New 45 Horsepower Diesel Is Put to Work on County Lands

The new tractor and terracing equipment for which the Moore County Soil Conservation Committee recently closed a deal was received on Monday and was immediately placed in operation on the lands of John Willcox in upper Moore county. The tractor is a Diesel 45-horse power wide gauge caterpillar tractor of the crawler type.

Mr. Broadus, Assistant Extension Engineer from State College, is in the county this week to help get the work started. Wilbur Phillips is driving the tractor and Carl Gulledd is running the terracing machine.

The terracer builds a standard 18-foot Mangum terrace and can complete from six thousand to eight thousand feet a day, depending upon the size of the field and the type of soil. More can be accomplished in large fields where the terraces are longer and less turning is required. The price charged for the work is $3.00 per hour which takes care of the fuel and the labor. The cost per acre will run from around $1.50 to $1.90, according to Mr. Garrison's figures.

The work is being started in the upper section of the county where much of the land is planted in small grain, and the plan is to work on down through the county as the tobacco is harvested. Mr. Garrison says that any who are interested will be welcome to see the machine in operation at any time. Any one desiring to have field or farm roads which are not maintained by the State worked can have them pulled at the same price per hour. Anyone desiring to have work done should communicate with the county agent.

The subject of the lesson sermon Sunday at the Christian Science Church will be "Spirit."

On Sunday, August 9th, the services at the Church of Wide Fellowship will again be under the direction of Arthur Wells of New York City who is serving the church during the vacation of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. C. Rexford Raymond. The service for morning worship will be held in the church at 11:00 a. m. with Mr. Wells preaching on the topic "Walking with God," based on William Cowper's hymn "O, for a Closer Walk with God," which will be sung in a special arrangement by the choir. At the Community Vesper Service at 7:00 p. m. in the Garden Mr. Wells will give the second in a series of five addresses on Great Personalities of the Bible, and will speak on "Ruth."

The Sunday School will meet at 10:00 a. m. and on Tuesday morning at 8:30 a. m., the Junior Christian Endeavor Society will meet under the joint direction of Mr. Wells and Miss Mary Jane Prillaman. A new course of study is to be begun this week and it is hoped that there will be a large attendance. There will be open house for young people on Tuesday and Friday nights when Volley Ball and Folk games will be played. In the near future it is hoped that the play "Cleopatra" may be presented, and rehearsals for it have been called.
