

Floyd Hannon Dies, Victim of Pneumonia

Member of Prominent Moore County Family Was Only 35 Years of Age

Funeral services for Floyd Hannon, aged 35, who died Monday at the Moore County Hospital of double pneumonia, were held at the Harris family cemetery, near Bryant's Cross Roads, Tuesday at 11:00 a. m. The burial was conducted by the Woodmen of the World, of which Mr. Hannon was a member. His pastor, the Rev. R. H. Weaver, assisted by two other ministers, read the committal service.

Mr. Hannon is survived by his wife, the former Miss Elizabeth Harris, and by one brother, the Rev. S. E. Hannon, and by a large number of near relatives.

The deceased was a member of a well-known family, prominently connected with historic Bethlehem Baptist Church. Mr. Hannon's father and brother have both been pastors of this church, and have played a prominent role in the life of the community. Mr. Hannon, who lived near Dowd's Chapel, had been sick for about a week. He was taken to the hospital early Sunday, but even then no hope was held out for his recovery.

County Women's Chorus Planned By Home Demonstration Clubs

Frederick Stanley Smith to Direct Group to Be Organized Saturday in Carthage

The Moore County Council of Home Demonstration Clubs is sponsoring a county women's chorus to meet once a month, and the music committee has been fortunate in securing the services of Frederick Stanley Smith, music supervisor in the Southern Pines schools and a recognized leader in music in the state, as director.

The first meeting will be held in the Women's Club room in Carthage at 2:30 o'clock this Saturday afternoon and any woman in the county is eligible to join the chorus. A small fee will be charged to take care of the expenses.

The chorus is being organized with two main purposes in mind: to give enjoyment to those taking part, and to train leaders to carry music back to their home communities. The chorus will not attempt classical music, but will sing the songs of the people, which are just as beautiful and which are in reality classical, though not always considered so, says Miss McDonald, head of the home demonstration work in the county.

Several counties in the State have already organized farm women's choruses and the one from Robeson county appeared on the program of the World Conference in Washington last June.

Scofield Tells How 'Time Marches On' in a Trip Around the World

From his portable typewriter on a Dollar Line steamship when just halfway on his 'round the world cruise, Edwin Scofield of Pinehurst sends The Pilot this "time" story. His letter, dated September 3rd, stated he expected to be back in the Sandhills on October 20th. Writes "Ed":

This undoubtedly sounds ridiculous, but it is perfectly possible. Listen! If you should ever leave the Sandhills and travel around the world, never changing your watch from start to finish, you would return with the proper time, provided of course that your watch was accurate. But the watch would be of little use during the trip as it would be inaccurate at every place you visited.

The basis of all time is Greenwich, England, a small place not far from London. It is common knowledge that the Sandhills are five hours later than England. Your short wave radio set tells you that when Big Ben strikes the noon hour in London, it is five o'clock in the afternoon in Pinehurst. Also that the New Year's Day Rose Bowl football game in California, which starts at 2:00 P. M., does not reach you until 5:00 o'clock. When it is midnight in China, you are having luncheon.

Anyone who has made the Round-the-World trip from New York, by way of the Panama Canal and California, which is the usual way, and many others, have read that in crossing the Pacific Ocean, an entire day is lost all at once, but at no part of a similar manner. You may have heard a similar manner. You may have heard of someone who lost Christmas Day. A passenger on this ship lost his birthday—in fact I almost lost mine.

Longitudinally—that is from pole

FREDERICK STANLEY SMITH

The general idea of home demonstration work is that it consists of nothing but canning and sewing, this idea having originated because for so long the stress was of necessity laid on these phases of the work, but the cultural side of the home is just as important and every well-rounded home demonstration program includes not only food and clothing, but reading, music and dramatics, Miss McDonald states.

Public Can Help Keep Needy Youths in School

Mrs. Brown Calls For Community Aid With Hot Lunches and Garments for Underprivileged

Seeing that Moore county's children attend school regularly is one of the duties of Mrs. Lessie Brown, welfare officer for the county, and while she is fairly well pleased with the attendance at present, she is asking the cooperation of the citizens of the county as she realizes that with the advent of cold weather, the problem will become greater and greater.

Aside from the physical benefits of hot school lunches, it has been found that they are an aid in keeping up the attendance of the underprivileged group, so Mrs. Brown is hoping that the various communities will begin at once to make plans for getting this work started. She has some canned goods which she will be glad to furnish for hot lunches, and at a later date will have some fruit for distribution.

Another way in which the public can help with the work is by donating sweaters, shoes, stockings, coats and raincoats. Doubtless there are many out-grown garments hanging in closets or packed away in homes of the county that would be gladly received by little children who are not suitably clothed for cold weather. The welfare officer will greatly appreciate it if these garments can be sent to her, or she will call for them if notified. Wash dresses and outing underwear are being made in the sewing rooms, but the above named articles are not provided.

CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS OF AMERICA HOLD SOCIAL

These pictures dealt principally with the work in Raleigh, Greensboro, New Bern and Southern Pines.

Mrs. J. V. Hoffman, Past Grand Regent of Court Bishop Hafey of Raleigh, explained the history, aims and past achievements of the Order since its inception. Mrs. Young, Grand Regent of Raleigh, told of the work done by the Daughters during the World War. The serving of refreshments closed the evening's program.
