Shell Interests To Erect 'Super' Station of Colonial Design in Aberdeen

Aberdeen is to have one of the most modern filling stations and dining rooms in this section of the state, according to announcement made last week. The Quality Oil Company of Winston-Salem has acquired from the Acme Oil Company of Pinehurst, local distributors of Shell oil products, the former home of the Carolina Discount Corporation in Aberdeen and on the property will erect a "super" station of Colonial design.

A. R. Carlan of Candor, an experienced oil man who came here from Mt. Airy, where he enjoyed a successful career over a period of several years, becomes the resident manager of the Winston-Salem company, which distributes Shell products over a wide area.

The Carolina Discount Corporation building, and adjacent lots, will be converted into a service station, it is announced, with one of the most modern dining rooms in this part of the state. The "super" station, as it is called, will be the Colonial type architecture, and Mr. Carlan says it will be a really beautiful structure. Every conceivable service station facility will be afforded the traveling public and it is the intention to give 24-hour a day service.

Acquisition of the Acme Oil Company and the Aberdeen property marks the advent of the Shell interests in this section on a really big scale, it is stated, as stations in other localities are contemplated. Shell products are already dispensed in this section at a number of stations.

Offices of Mr. Carlan are maintained for the present in Candor, but it is said to be his intention to make either Aberdeen or Pinehurst his future headquarters. He is the son-in-law of the late Charlie Ben-

A Local Industry 101 Years Old

Garrett & Company, Inc., originated in North Carolina in 1835, the pioneer American Wine Growers.

One hundred years later, after a lapse of a few years due to the 18th Amendment, it re-opened its plant in Aberdeen, and is again operating in the Sandhills of North Carolina.

For its Quality Wines it is buying grapes and berries in North Carolina; employing local labor; supplying local demand for its products.

"We have every hope that our Aberdeen plant will prove a great success, both as a branch of Garrett & Company and as an impetus to the agricultural and industrial prosperity of the State of North Carolina. We hope to have wines made in Aberdeen and ready to offer to North Carolinians very shortly."—Paul Garrett, President.
