

Local Officers Invited To Training School

Institute of Government at Chapel Hill Provides Course on Law Enforcement

The police, sheriff and deputies of Moore county have been invited to send representatives to the ten-day training school which the Institute of Government will hold for officers in Chapel Hill beginning January 5.

This is the first 10-day Police School held in the state and will have one of the strongest instructional staffs of any school in the country. The Federal Bureau of Investigation is supplying six instructors from the staff of the National Police Academy headed by Director Hugh H. Clegg. And the "G-Men" will be supplemented as to local phases by officials of the State Highway Patrol, experienced North Carolina officers, and the Institute of Government staff.

The 10-day State-wide school is part of the Institute's expanded system of state, district and local police schools. The training program is designed not only to aid those attending in the performance of their duties but to train them to act as instructors within their own departments.

In order that as many departments as possible may benefit by the training, the attendance has been limited to from one to three representatives from a department, depending upon its size. And there will be no registration fee or other charge except for board and room while in Chapel Hill.

The training program, which was not framed until after extensive consultation with local departments as to specific problems and needs, will cover virtually all important phases of law enforcement work in North Carolina.

HOLIDAYS START, DEC 19

The Week in Vass

A musical program will be given in the Vass Presbyterian Church by the McKelway-Gibson quartet at 8:00 o'clock next Monday evening, December 14, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

Those who have had the pleasure of hearing the Rev. and Mrs. A. J. McKelway of Pinehurst and the Rev. and Mrs. A. V. Gibson of Sanford are looking forward with eagerness to the occasion and are grateful to the young people of the church, who are bringing this musical treat to the community.

"Like as a father pitieth his children, so the Lord pitieth them that fear him," was the text from which the Rev. D. E. Earnhardt, presiding elder of the Fayetteville District preached one of the most impressive sermons ever heard here, when he gave the local Methodist church a surprise visit on last Sunday morning. The first quarterly conference of the year was held following the service, with a number of the official members of the Aberdeen church present.

Miss Mary Beasley's apartment will be the meeting place of the Vass Woman's Club for its December meeting, which is to be held on Tuesday evening of next week, December 15. The literature department will have charge of the program.

"Home Ties," a four-act play, will be given in the Vass-Lakeview school auditorium tonight, Friday, for the benefit of the agricultural department. The performance will begin at 8:00 o'clock.

FORMER MEMBER OF ARK SCHOOL FACULTY TO WED

The engagement has been announced of Miss Lena Alice Tuttle of Charlotte a former member of the faculty of The Ark School here, to Harold Alton Steadman of Concord, Mass. The announcement was made by the prospective bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Walter Tuttle of Wallburg. The wedding will take place during the Christmas holidays.

During her stay in Southern Pines Miss Tuttle, in addition to instructing at The Ark, painted the portraits of a number of local children. After leaving here she taught and painted for some time at Chapel Hill, but recently became director of the Charlotte School of Fine Arts at the Mint Museum. Mr. Steadman is the son of Mrs. Ethel M. Steadman and the late Col. Charles A. Steadman of Boston, Mass. He studied at the Northeastern University Law school and at Harvard before entering business in Concord.

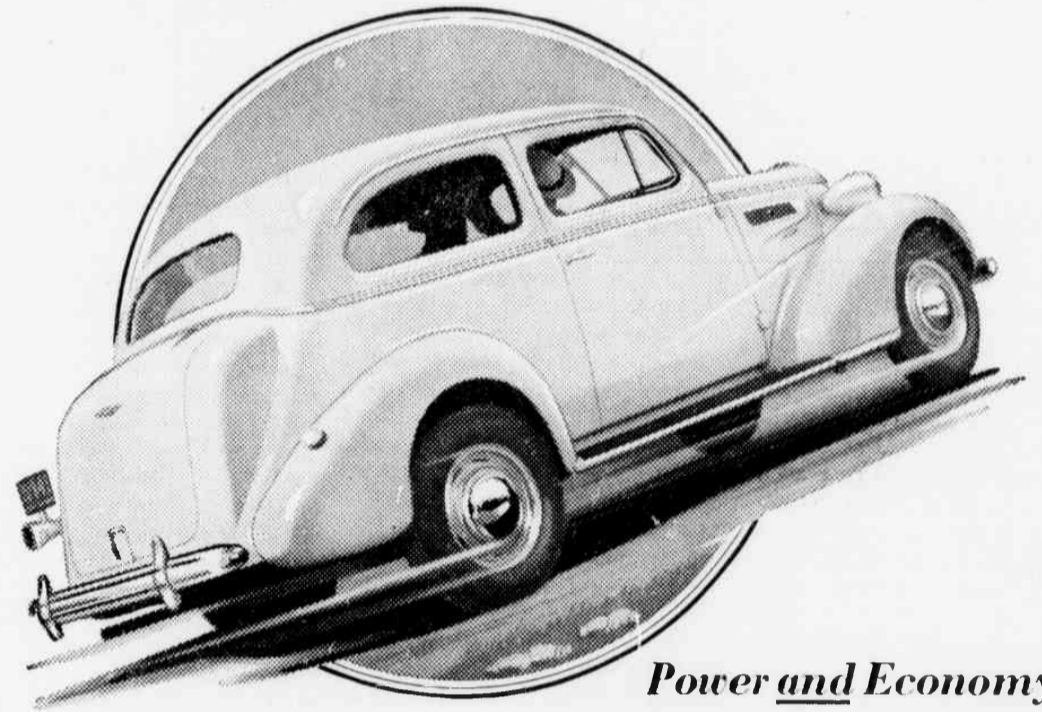

Mrs. John M. Currie of Carthage and her sister, Miss Elizabeth M. McPhail of Washington, D. C., were hostesses at seven tables of bridge at the Pinehurst Country Club yesterday honoring Mrs. Frances Fowlkes Spence of Rockingham whose engagement to Edward Kennedy of Southern Pines was announced last month.
