

Many New Books On S. P. Library Shelves

Both Fiction and Non-Fiction Acquired by Gift and Purchase

The following is a list of books added to the shelves of the Southern Pines Library during the past month.

Fiction: "The Fifth Column, and the First Forty Nine Stories," by Ernest Hemingway. This volume contains all of Mr. Hemingway's stories to date, as well as a play written in Madrid in 1937—"The Fifth Column." Many of the newer stories are also concerned with Spain and the Spaniards of the present Civil War. "All This and Heaven Too," by Rachel Field, Those readers who enjoyed this author's first book, "Time Out of Mind," will find this equally delightful. It gives you the feeling that it couldn't be true and yet the basic facts are taken from the life of the author's great-aunt, Henriette Desportes. It is the story of a French governess who became enmeshed in a French murder case, and with this past, came to America and married a preacher, later making her home an intellectual center of New York.

Mysteries: "The Fashion in Shrouds," by Margery Allingham. Another ingenious and sophisticated novel by a master of the mystery story. "Trent Intervenes," by E. C. Bentley. A series of twelve stories built around Bentley's creation—Philip Trent, detective.

Non-Fiction: "Listen! The Wind," by Anne Morrow Lindbergh. With a style which has greatly improved over that of "North to the Orient," Mrs. Lindbergh here chronicles ten of the days from the six months survey flight of Atlantic air routes, made five years ago by her and her husband. It is a splendid work—a story of air pioneering which is real literature. "Edwin Arlington Robinson," by Hermann Hagedorn. Did you know that Robinson's poetry became popular through the sponsorship of Kermit Roosevelt and his father, Theodore? This and many more interesting facts are told in this full length portrait of one of America's best poets. "A People's History of England," by A. L. Morton. The new trend in history writing is that of emphasizing the social and economic elements as well as the political. This book is a splendid example of that trend, covering the time from prehistoric Britain to the present day. "The Best Plays of 1937-38," by Burns Mantle. A useful book containing "The Star Wagon," "On Borrowed Time," "Susan and God," and many other Broadway hits.

Among the gifts the library received this month are "In Hazard," by Hughes, and "Benjamin Franklin," by Van Doren. The former is a sea yarn, a story of man's battle with the elements, which will bring to mind Joseph Conrad's "Typhoon." The latter is another biography of the truest American, the chief aim of which, in the words of the author—"to restore to Franklin, so often remembered piecemeal in this or that of his diverse aspects, his magnificent central unity as a wise man moving through great and troubled events." Other gifts received are: "The Need We Have," by Gibbs; "Of All Places," by the Abbe children; "The Prodigious Lover, New Aspects in the Life of Richard Wagner," by Barthou; and "The Riddle," by de la Mare. The library has new hours for Wednesday night. It is now open from 7:30 to 9:00 o'clock p. m.

DECEMBER 10 CLOSING DATE FOR P. O. JOB CANDIDATES

The United States Civil Service Commission invites attention to the fact that as an insufficient number of applications has been received for the position of Substitute Clerk, Southern Pines postoffice, the date originally set for the close of receipt of applications has been extended to December 10. Qualified persons are urged to file their applications with the Manager, Fourth United States Civil Service District, Mather Building, 916 G. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., on or before December 10, 1938.

SANATORIUM CARD PARTY FOR CHILDREN'S CHRISTMAS

MRS. CAROLINE SMITH DIES AT HER HOME IN VASS

Mrs. Caroline Smith, aged resident of Vass, passed away at her home early Saturday morning after a lingering illness. The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. C. I. Calcote at the home at 3:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon, and burial was in Johnson's Grove cemetery. The following grandsons served as pallbearers: Weldon, Russell and James Smith, Edgar Mashburn and Arthur Lassiter, and granddaughters carried the floral designs.

Mrs. Smith, the widow of John A. Smith, is survived by two sons, Hume and Wade Smith, of Vass; four daughters, Mrs. L. C. Ford, with whom she made her home, Mrs. G. R. Mashburn, of Vass, Mrs. Maude Lassiter of Bear Creek and Mrs. Emma Nell of Carthage; two sisters, and a large number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

GENERAL WELFARE GROUP MEETS AT COLE RESIDENCE

The General Welfare Center was very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cole on Ridge street on Monday evening. These meetings are gaining in interest and popularity. Many people feel that this is the only plan whereby the elderly people of the country can be properly taken care of after thirty years of activity and earning are past. It solves the problem by a simple two percent gross income tax levied on all citizens alike and will provide work for the younger generation and security for the aged without adding a penny to the government debt. Many are inquiring and looking into this plan which already has 180 supporters in the House of Representatives. It differs much and is entirely separate from the Townsend Plan.

A club in Southern Pines was formed a year ago and is doing active work toward the furtherance of this plan, and invites all interested to join in its meetings. The club meets on Monday evening, December 12 at the home of Mrs. G. R. Crosby on East Broad street. An indoor picnic supper will be enjoyed at 6:30 previous to the meeting at 8:00 o'clock, and a cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested in this movement.

SURPLUS PRODUCTS HELP MANY DURING OCTOBER

Mrs. Brown Elected District President

Moore County Welfare Superintendent Is Honored by 17-County Group

Mrs. W. G. Brown, welfare superintendent of Moore county, was elected president of the Central District, which comprises 17 counties, at a district welfare conference held in Henderson on Wednesday of last week. J. D. Pegrum of Lee county was named secretary.

Mrs. Brown's election came as a surprise as she was not in attendance at the conference, and it is a matter of pride to the county that its welfare department is thus recognized by the district at large. Mrs. Brown served as district secretary year before last.
