Exhibit of Water Colors at So. Pines Library

Mary Elwes, British Painter, Showing Garden Scenes.—In Mexican Earthquake

Mary Elwes, well known British painter, has a charming exhibition of water colors at the Southern Pines Library to which the public is cordially invited. Miss Elwes, a cousin of Simon Elwes, a leading portrait painter in England who recently painted the King and Queen, specializes in gardens, and among her recent works is a water color of the Magnolia Gardens in Charleston. An English cottage garden is prominent among her exhibits here; another English garden scene by Miss Elwes was purchased by Queen Mary.

Miss Elwes had the unique experience in Mexico to be in a cyclone, an earthquake and on a voyage in a Mexican battleship, the only foreigner aboard. She is showing some Mexican scenes here. She has had one-man shows in Paris, London and Buenos Aires. While here during the next two weeks she will have an outdoor sketching class, and those desiring to join in these may communicate with her at the Colonial Inn.
