Ninety Percent of Forest Fires Are Man-Caused, Records Indicate

Campaign to Prevent Forest Destruction By Fire Is Launched

Featuring the slogan "nine out of ten can be prevented," the fourth annual Cooperative Forest Fire Prevention Campaign...

The slogan is based on factual records compiled over a period of years, showing that more than 90 per cent of the nation's some 220,000 annual woods and forest fires are man-caused...

State Forester W. K. Beichler, who is heading up the active public educational campaign to reduce such fires in North Carolina...

1. Break every match in two; pinch till cold; crush out thoroughly your cigarette, cigar or pipe ashes.

2. Stop to smoke in safe places; or in automobiles use the ash tray.

3. Build camp fires on bare earth; drown them with water or smother with dirt before leaving them, even for a moment.

4. Before burning brush or to clear fields, scrape or plow a safety line; notify your neighbors; have help on hand in case of danger...

5. Kill small wild fires; report others immediately to the nearest ranger or fire warden.

Last year in North Carolina, although there was about a 50 per cent reduction in fire damage over the previous year...

The whole community feels the loss. There is less timber to provide woods work for local labor; the mills have less to saw...

The U. S. Forest Service and many other agencies are cooperating in the campaign.

self that a round was where it should be, and a thought that you do want to keep your shirt tail.

Sound and Fury "By now the whole world is full of sound and fury. The crashing of brush, the singing of the hound, and the thumping of the deer's hoofs suddenly boil up in your face.

"You squeeze off the first one, and he keeps on coming although he swings off a little. The bolt goes back and home again automatically, and the second one is off.

"So you walk the 30 or 40 feet to where he is lying, and while you walk you begin to come out of the fog. You know now that you will keep your shirt tail.

Theatre The Carolinas

A down-to-earth, human story that everybody will enjoy, be he child, cosmopolitan, farmer or just plain Joe, is "Our Vines Have Tender Grapes," the attraction at the Pinehurst Theatre, Sunday, October 14, at 8:30 p. m.

It is one of those rare pictures that everybody should and must see, for it carries a definite message that has plenty of food for thought, especially among those complacent people who forget how America was founded.

Too much cannot be said of the portrayals. Every one of them is excellent, especially Edward G. Robinson, Agnes Morehead, little Margaret O'Brien and "Butch" Jenkins.

Robert Cummings, back in a fine role that gives him plenty of opportunity for use of his talents; an exciting new star, Elizabeth Scott; and a timely story concerned with the problems of three flyers just back from war, is "You Came Along," playing a return engagement in the Sandhills at the Carolina Theatre, Southern Pines, Sunday, Monday Tuesday, Oct. 14, 15, 16, at 8:15 p. m. with a Tuesday matinee at 3 p. m.

Robert Cummings as the air force major and Don DeFore and Charles Drake as the other officers do a magnificent job of acting as does Elizabeth Scott, a fine, sensitive, convincing actress, playing in this picture a difficult role in an entrancing, fascinating manner. It is an outstanding attraction, jammed with dramatic sequences and snappy, bright comedy scenes.

The attraction at the Carolina Theatre, Southern Pines, for Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, (4 days) October 17, 18, 19, and 20, with a Saturday matinee is the Special production, "Blood On The Sun," starring Jimmy Cagney and Sylvia Sydney.

Jimmy Cagney has lost none of his immense talent and skill in winning and holding an audience, and with this very action-packed script to work on, he comes through with a performance that is certain to register as very popular entertainment in nearly every type of situation.

There is more than Cagney to "Blood On The Sun," lots more. Among the more important elements, one would place first the presence of Sylvia Sydney, who returns after a long absence from the screen to prove again her resourcefulness before the camera and also to display a matured beauty and attractiveness.

Things keep moving in "Blood On The Sun" and that is what counts in this adventure show that puts a swashbuckling hero in a setting of modern significance.

Not only is International Pictures' new Technicolor musical extravaganza, Belle of the Yukon, itself far out of the ordinary, with its gay plot largely devoted to satirizing the Alaskan gold rush days, but its stars are playing roles of a kind they've never previously attempted on the screen.

Randolph Scott heretofore a stalwart hero in everything from Westerns to society dramas, turns over a new leaf to become a debonaire confidence man in a Klondike frontier town.

Gypsy Rose Lee, who appeared in a number of repressed and colorless roles on the screen some years ago, now blossoms out as a lively and worldly-wise dance hall queen in the picture's title role.

Dinah Shore is cast as a dance hall singer, and Bob Burns, whose portrayals up to now have been almost entirely in the country hick class, has the part of a bunco artist whose activities make things hilarious. Charles Winniger, who heads the featured supporting cast, has his customary role of a somewhat wacky parent (Miss Shore's in this case). Guinn "Big Boy" Williams is seen as a dim-witted deputy sheriff, Florence Bates portrays an eccentric dowager, and many of the others have distinctly "different" parts from those with which they are usually associated.

William A. Seiter produced and directed the offering, which is being released through RKO Radio. Johnny Burke and Jimmy Van Heusen wrote its catchy tunes.
