vin Wicker attended the wedding of a relative, Miss Mae Felker of Concord and Leonard Barringer of Mount Pleasant, Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The ceremony was performed in the First Baptist Church in Concord. Mr. Wicker was an usher.

Yes, almost as diverse as those characters of the old nursery rhyme are the services of a modern railroad...

Glistening streamliners gliding over ribbons of steel, while passengers enjoy travel in its most pleasant form, surrounded by every comfort and convenience to make the trip delightful...

Mighty freights speeding their cargoes throughout the land and thereby supplying the lifeblood of the nation's arteries of commerce, assuring on-time deliveries of the thousands of items needed for your every-day living...

Working with agricultural interests to develop new crops, make old ones more profitable...

Bringing in new industries to provide greater economic strength for towns and cities...

Continuing research to find ways of making tomorrow's transportation even better than today's finest...

All of these, and more, are part of our daily efforts. Behind all of our undertakings is the principle which guides our planning—that the Seaboard Air Line Railway is a citizen of the territory it is privileged to serve. As a citizen we will be satisfied to give nothing less than our best for the advancement of our territory and its interests.
