traffic for several hours, holding up "hundreds of cars in both directions."

The Knowlton family from the Pinetop turned out to wave away the automobiles approaching too near the high voltage lines that were down across the highway.

Cannon, having no means of communication with the outside, stuck to his post until the CP&L emergency crew arrived. He then came to Southern Pines and made his report to the office. Emergency repair crews were immediately brought in from other areas and work continued throughout the night.

Electric service was interrupted in Cameron, Vass, Lakeview, Niagara, Manley, Southern Pines, Aberdeen, Pinebluff, Addor, Camp Mackall, Pinehurst, West End, Jackson Springs, as well as on rural lines in this area.

Power in Southern Pines and Aberdeen was switched on about 8:30 Monday evening by cutting in on the Raeford transformers.

Another side of the storm was the two to three inches of huge hail stones that covered the ground around West End. Some of the hailstones were even found Tuesday morning after daybreak, said Cannon.

Although the damage to trees and lines was extensive, no one has been reported seriously injured during the storm.

GI DEMOCRATS

Spies, and Spencerville.

During the informal discussion, several points of interest were stressed. It was hoped that the GI Democrats would be the means of bringing together all veterans for a single purpose... that of participating in better government of the community and State through the Democratic Party system. As the GI Democrats represent no single veterans organization, but all of them of all wars, this unity of veterans they believed possible in a degree not previously experienced.

An opinion was also expressed that the GI Democrats might best pursue their goal of better government if the local men heading the organization were elected from those who would not be interested primarily in using it as a springboard for their own political aspirations.

Friday, September 6, was voted on as the time for the next meeting, at which it was proposed permanent officers be elected. That allowed in the meantime a two-week period for the purpose of contacting veterans throughout the county in order to have the next meeting represented by every community and township. The meeting will again be held at the Southern Pines High School.
