 Feel Weight Of New State Law

Since the new traffic laws went into effect July 1, four first offenders in Moore county have felt the convincing argument of a $100 fine imposed as a condition of a suspended sentence, the latest of them Lacie H. Maness, of Robbins, whose case was heard in Rehman's court Wednesday.

To Herman Webster Deaton, of Sanford, went the dubious honor July 7 of being the first to have this fine imposed in the Moore county court. On July 14, there were James Tarlton Monroe, of Pinehurst, and Mack Pickler, of Ashley Heights.

Also, to each of them feeling the weight of the new law comes the knowledge that a second offense means a $200 fine, and a third, one of $500.

Floyd P. Maness, of Robbins, tried last Monday, just missed the deadline, and was fined $50, plus costs, as it was shown that the offenses with which he was charged — driving while drunk, careless and reckless driving and improper brakes — occurred June 28, just before the new laws went into effect. He and Lacie Maness were also charged with costs and their drivers' licenses were revoked for 12 months. Their suspended sentences were for 60 days on the roads.

Other judgments handed down Monday were:

Maurice Crisco, Steeds, careless and reckless driving doing damage to another's car, 60 days suspended on payment of $25 and costs; Dwight Terry, Negro, Southern Pines, simple assault, 30 days suspended on payment of costs; Lester Bruner, Cameron, assault with deadly weapon on wife, public drunkenness, six months suspended on payment of costs, on condition of good behavior toward his wife and refraining from drinking alcoholic beverages in his home during the next 12 years.

In the case of Charles Bradley, Negro soldier of Fort Bragg, no pros was taken by the state as to the felony charge of carnal knowledge of a female child under the age of 16, begetting upon her a bastard child; and, it appearing to the court that the defendant and the prosecuting witness and her father have agreed to compromise settlement, and that both the girl and her father ask that the defendant be released on the payment of costs, it was so ordered by the court.

Sharpe Countermoves Against Lien Sales

Van B. Sharpe and wife, Louise R. Sharpe, saved their Carthage apartment house from sale at the courthouse door last Monday, as Judge Henry Stevens allowed temporary restraining orders against each of three firms seeking the sale to satisfy liens for material and labor, also against Sheriff C. J. McDonald as the man commissioned to conduct the sale.

Bond of $200 was posted in each case.

In regards to two claimants, the Carthage Hardware company and the Sanford Sash and Blind company, declaration was made that the defendants were ready and able to pay but were prevented on account of federal tax troubles; and that as soon as these are straightened out, the judgments will be satisfied.

In the case of the third claimant, the Bonitz Insulation company of Greensboro, the work done was declared uncomplete and unsatisfactory, and the right to enforce a lien was protested.

The claimants were ordered to appear before Judge J. A. Rousseau at Rockingham August 6 to show cause why the temporary restraining orders should not be made permanent.
