NO POLIO

"No polio" was the report again this week from the county health office-welcome news indeed, with the polio ban now off and all schools of the county under

Fingers were still crossed, as scattered cases (for a toal amounting now to more than 2,100) were still being reported in the state.

However, it seems now apparent that Moore county's epidemic, which began early and hit its peak in July, has now run its course, and that any cases which come to light from here on will be those of normal incidence, such as are reported in any non-epidemic year.

Jaycees Lining Up Farm Exhibits, Midway Shows

The Carthage Jaycees have just about completed plans for staging their first Moore County Agricultural fair to be held at Carthage the last week in October.

Colin G. Spencer, Jr., chairman of the fair committee, has had his group hard at work the past few weeks lining things up for this oig event.

The show that will play the midway has been signed and the owner of this show has given his assurance to the Jaycees that there will be plenty of rides for the kiddies, and also the grownups, along the midway. There will also be a number of side-

LICENSE EXAMS

The schedule of Walter E. Yow, state license examiner, is being revised this week to include Pinehurst, where Mr. Yow will be stationed on Fridays hereafter. He will be at the fire station there for the present.

His full week's schedule includes Aberdeen (A&R building) Monday, Tuesday: Raeford (courthouse) Wednesday, Thursday; Pinehurst (fire station) Friday, and Southern Pines (old bus station) Saturday until noon.
Hours except Saturday are 9 to 5 p. m.

Mr. Yow issued a reminder this week to those whose names begin with E, F and G that they should apply early for license examination rather than push the deadline of December 31. If they wait until later, he said, they are apt to have to wait in line, whereas now he can take them as they come.
