

Quick Work—Old Car, Traded, New Car Bought By Tourists Stopping Briefly

David Hannon, Ford salesman, was on the ball last Wednesday when he answered a call to pick up a family of stranded tourists while the Jackson Motors truck went to service their car.

As he brought the R. G. Hagstroms and their three young sons, of Pierson, Fla., from beyond Vass to the Jackson Motors building here to await their repairs, the travelers admired the brand-new coupe in which they rode. "How about a trade?" said Hannon. "How much?" said Hagstrom.

Within half an hour the deal was complete. The old car was traded in, not on the coupe but on a convertible which caught Mrs. Hagstrom's eye. It had reached the Jackson place just that morning. Soon it left with the Hagstroms, on its way to Florida.

"Usually it's neither easy, nor wise, to put through a sale so fast, and to people you've never seen before," said Miss Mary Wintzen, bookkeeper, who did the paper work for two cars (the coupe first, then the convertible when Mrs. Hagstrom changed her mind). "But these were such nice people!" The necessary papers were returned shipshape Monday, justifying their faith in human nature.

And everybody was happy, including Proprietor E. N. Jackson, who returned last weekend from a trip to hear of the sale of a car he'd never even seen.

FOR RESULTS USE THE PILOT'S CLASSIFIED COLUMNS

Here Is Corrected Draft Office Address

An error in the new address of the Moore County Selective Service board, in a story in county newspapers last week, was corrected this week. It should be Local Board 64, 307 Post Office Building, Rockingham, according to the new information.

Any registrant wishing information, or sending any to the board regarding registration, classification or status should write to this address.

Veterans under 26 and young men reaching their 18th birthday are still required to register under the Selective Service law, which is still operative though most activities have been suspended.

Since consolidation of the county offices with others at Rockingham, W. B. Finson, in the sheriff's office at Carthage, has volunteered to act as registrar.

COMMUNION SERVICE

Holy Communion service will be conducted at 11 a. m. Sunday at Emmanuel Episcopal church by Chaplain Torben R. Olsen of Fort Bragg. This will also be a corporate communion for the women of the parish. At this service their semi-annual thank offering will be presented, which is this year being done during the summer because of the General convention in September.

Dr. Holland Is Rotary Speaker

The history of the hard-won separation of church and state, as it is seen in America today, was reviewed by Dr. William C. Holland, pastor of the First Baptist church, guest speaker at the Southern Pines Rotary club's luncheon meeting Friday.

This separation is seen at its best in the United States, he said. In many other countries today church and state are seemingly inseparably intertwined, with little change from medieval days. The principle of freedom from religious domination was a motivating factor in the earliest settlement of this country, bringing colonists in search of this ideal.

Some of the early Baptist groups, though handicapped by a lack of central leadership, felt so keenly that the principle should be preserved that they worked to have it written into the Constitution, of which it is now an integral part.

Dr. Holland was presented by Lloyd T. Clark, President H. L. Brown presided over the meeting, which was held at the Village Inn.

Lakeview Cemetery Annual Clean-Up Saturday; More Land Has Been Given

The annual clean-up of Lakeview cemetery will be held tomorrow (Saturday) starting at 8:30 a. m. All those who have loved ones buried there, and other friends of the cemetery, are asked to come or send someone. They should provide their own working tools.

Special interest attaches to the clean-up this year as additional land has just been given the cemetery by J. O. Blue, the original donor. The new strip of land will be used for parking purposes, a mounting problem since the cemetery has become rather crowded.

The group to gather Saturday morning will weed, remove trash and otherwise beautify the grounds of this revered little spot.

In announcing the clean-up Mrs. Graham Culbreth, secretary of the Lakeview Cemetery association, said that a new policy is to be followed for future burials. Before any grave is dug, she said, a member of the board should be consulted. The available plots are giving out and careful planning will be necessary to insure best use of the remaining land.

Members of the board are O. D. Causey, Duncan and Coley Blue.
