Bud Harvey Sells Treasure Yarn

Watch out for an article called "Gator Gold," which will be turning up soon in Colliers magazine.

The author is none other than Gynn Harvey—Bud Harvey to you, of East Vermont avenue, as associate editor of Bob Harlow's Golf World in Pinehurst, former newspaperman in Boston, New York and Florida.

Colliers bought and published a short humorous article of Bud's authorship several months ago "Gator Gold," however, is his first major sale. It was written following a trip to Florida last November.

He went to Florida on assignment from Colliers to get an entirely different story. When he reached there, he found some other magazine had already beaten him to the draw on that story, so he wandered over to the coast and got another one, dealing with wrecked ships and pirate treasure, legendary and otherwise.

Since 1910, more than 17,750, 000 American boys and men were active in the Boy Scouts of America.

Mrs. Cagle Will Be Radio Operator At Eagle Springs

Mrs. Dorothy Williams Cagle, not Miss Dorothy Britt as announced last week, will be Moore county's first girl operator of a fire tower radio installation, said Warden E. Woodrow Davis of the N. C. Forest Service this week. She is the third woman in the state to hold such a position.

Mrs. Cagle replaced Miss Britt in training for the Eagle Springs fire tower position when radio engineers found her voice did not register enough strength. She qualified in all other respects, Mr. Davis said.

Mrs. Cagle is now on the job, working part-time as she is trained, and will complete her course in about three weeks and receive her license in four. She will then be on duty every day from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. (with an hour for lunch) and on call for duty at all times.

Mrs. Cagle, like Miss Britt, is a graduate of West End High school. She is 24 years old. She and her husband will occupy the cottage newly built by the N. C. Forest Service on the fire tower grounds at Eagle Springs, probably moving in next week.

They now live on the George H. Maurice farm, where her father has been overseer for many years.

The radio installation at Eagle Springs has just been completed, and will serve the whole county in forest fire protection.

Trailer Trucks In Accident On Pine Needles Road

Two large trailer trucks came together with a crash shortly after noon Wednesday, on the winding road through the Pine Needles property, through which each was taking a short cut.

Coming over a hill toward the Midland road, an oil tanker of the Beard-Laney corporation of Camden, S. C., jack-knifed. Its rear end swung across the road directly in the path of a truck belonging to the Upchurch Milling company of Raeford, which was filled with sacks of chicken feed.

John Brunson, Negro, driver of the Upchurch truck, swinging hard to the right, went into the soft earth of the road just as the end of the tanker-trailer crashed against his cab and scraped the side of his trailer. The front wheels of the Upchurch truck flew off.

Two Negro men were riding with Brunson in the cab. Driver of the oil truck was Edward C. Murphy, of Huger, S. C. No one was hurt. Both vehicles were considerably damaged.

State Highway patrolmen, who arrived promptly, said it would take considerable investigation to fix the blame, if any, and no charges were immediately preferred.

Pro-Amateur Bout At Pine Needles; First of Series

Stymied for two weeks by bad weather, the winter series of pro-amateur tournaments on local courses started Wednesday at the Pine Needles club. Matches will be held on successive Wednesdays, at the Southern Pines Country club next week, then at the Pinehurst Country club and the Mid Pines.

The weather wasn't too good Wednesday, and a small field of a half dozen foursomes played around through occasional showers enjoying their game nevertheless and tallying up some top-flight scores.

Clarence Doser, Pine Needles pro, won honors in all fields. All three of the leaders in the amateur field were those who were paired with him. These were Claude Reams and George Pottle, who tied for first place with a net of 65, and John Underwood, third place winner with a net of 67.

Doser led the pro field with a 65 and was first in the individual pro game with a 69.

Taking second place in the pro field was Eddie Dodson, of the Southern Pines Country club, with 69.

Dodson also took second place in the individual pro game, with a score of 72.
