C. W. Kellam,
Oldest Resident,
Dies At Age 95

Clinton Wheeler Kellam, 95, believed to be Southern Pines' oldest resident, died shortly after midnight Wednesday morning at Moore County hospital following an illness of three weeks.

Funeral service was held Wednesday afternoon at Powell Funeral chapel, conducted by Dr. R. L. House, pastor of the Church of Wide Fellowship. The body was sent to Newton, N. J., for burial in the Newton Cemetery. Graveside service at 2 p. m. Saturday will be in charge of the Masonic lodge of Newton, in which Mr. Kellam had maintained membership for well over 50 years.

Mr. Kellam was a native of Little Equinunk, Pa., where he was born August 20, 1856, son of David and Sylvia Brizack Kellam. He was for many years a building contractor at Newton. On his retirement 18 years ago he and Mrs. Kellam became winter residents here, returning to Newton during the summers until this past year, when they remained all year round in their home at 339 North May street.

He maintained his membership in the Newton Presbyterian church.

Surviving are his wife, the former Florence Robinson of Paterson, N. J.; one daughter, Mrs. J. O. Schlough, of Newton; two sons by a former marriage, Clark J. Kellam, of Elizabeth, N. J., and Fred C. Kellam, of St. Petersburg, Fla.; one sister, Mrs. Grace Abraham of Southern Pines; seven grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Mrs. N. L. Hodgkins and Mrs. Harry Pethick, of Southern Pines, are his nieces.

Light Pole Is Accident Casualty;
2 Cars Damaged

Light poles have been casualties in two accidents here lately—one on North May street a couple of weeks ago, another on South May last Saturday night which caused a three-hour blackout in the immediate area.

In the Saturday accident, though two cars sustained serious damages and the street was festooned with high voltage wires, no one was hurt.

The accident occurred when James Wayne Dupree, 18, of Pinehurst, driving north, somehow lost control of the car, though he was said to have been going at moderate speed. The car swerved from its course and hit a pole across from the old Elks Club, snapping it off and sending it crashing down across the street.

Dupree jumped from his car and ran back to warn oncoming traffic, but before he could do so a car coming behind him, driven by Fred W. Seward, of Columbia, S. C., had hit the pole. Seward was driving alone, while Dupree had two other Pinehurst youths as companions. Damage to the Dupree car was estimated by city police at around $350, to Seward's $275.

No charges have been preferred, but police said Dupree will be given a hearing before Justice D. E. Bailey.

The accident occurred about 9 o'clock and Carolina Power and Light Company workmen were busy until about midnight repairing the damage and restoring electric service to that section of town.
