George Van Camp Buried Monday On Wellesley Island

Information concerning George Van Camp, whose death occurred Thursday of last week, was secured in the absence of his son, Paul Van Camp, and was erroneous in part.

Unfortunately, corrections were not obtained until the first run of The Pilot had gone to press, consequently the uncorrected story appears on another page of this issue. The Pilot regrets this and publishes below the corrected account:

George Van Camp, who died Thursday night, February 28, at The Anchorage nursing home at the age of 90, was born in 1861 at Stone Mills, N. Y., the son of Henry D. and Mary E. Van Camp. He was the eldest of their nine children.

As a boy he moved with his parents to the Van Camp farm on Wellesley Island, of the Thousand Islands on the St. Lawrence river in New York State. He lived on the farm and at Thousand Island Park and Pine View until his retirement in 1920, when he moved to Clayton.

He was married June 15, 1893 to Nora Fredenburg and three children were born to this union, Leland, Paul and Ruth. His wife died September 11, 1898. In 1910 he was married to Ida Schnauber. She died July 2, 1921.

Later in 1921 Mr. Van Camp moved to Southern Pines and lived here for 30 years, until his death.

Surviving are one son, Paul, four grandchildren and two great grandchildren, also one brother, Hugh W. Van Camp of Potsdam, N. Y., and one sister, Mrs. Mary E. Nunn of Clayton, N. Y.

Funeral services were held Monday at Fine View church and burial was in the Riverside cemetery on Wellesley Island. Paul Van Camp attended his father's body to its resting place.

D. O. Caddell Funeral Today

D. O. Caddell, 86, of Carthage Rt. 3, died at his home Wednesday morning after two years' illness.

He is survived by his wife; five daughters, Anna Mae Caddell of the home, Mrs. James B. Lawhon, Crescent Beach, S. C.; Mrs. W. P. Haremaker, Robbins; Mrs. P. F. Payne, Cambridge, Mass.; Mrs. Horace Conti, Ocean Springs, Miss.; three sons, D. O., Jr., Paul and Spencer, all of Pinebluff; two brothers, E. H. Caddell of Carthage, and H. C. Caddell of Spencer; two sisters, Mrs. Henry Campbell, Nina Caddell, both of Spencer, four grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. today (Friday) at Culdee Presbyterian church with burial in the church cemetery.

Winter grazing crops sometimes fail because of drought or severe cold weather. To overcome this situation, dairymen should provide hay and silage sufficient to fully care for their herds for at least five months.

Student Troupe Makes Friends For Austria And Themselves On Visit Here

Customs, Culture Exemplified In Two Colorful Shows

The Austrian Students Goodwill Troupe brought a fascinating glimpse of a lovely land to Southern Pines last Saturday—or rather, two glimpses, as the group put on two different shows, afternoon and evening.

For the afternoon performance, sponsored by the Rotary club, Weaver auditorium was practically filled with children, who shouted and clapped their delight in the songs, dances and skits performed in quaint native costume. Dr. Susanne Polsterer, group leader, a golden-haired and glamorous young woman of intelligence and poise, as mistress of ceremonies deftly drew the audience into the gay goings-on. At one point she and one of the boys in the cast reached over the footlights and picked up little Johnnie McCrimmon, who in her scarlet frock joined the show for the rest of the act. This impromptu addition delighted the audience.

The evening show, sponsored by the Sandhills Music association as its fourth attraction of the season, pleased its adult audience in equal measure, both as light and merry entertainment and as sugar-coated information on Austrian customs and culture.

Highlights of both shows—besides Dr. Polsterer, whose spirit shines throughout—were the singing of a lyric-voiced young coloratura named Margarethe Jaeger; the songs and yodeling of Maria Kaindl, as pretty as she is talented; and the music of Othmar Wallinger, who moved freely from accordion to piano to play accompaniments and solos, equally at home with folk music, popular songs, dance tunes and Strauss waltzes.

Also delightful was the music of Fritz Feiersinger, harpist, and Konrad Ragossnig on the guitar. For several choral selections, Engelbert Forthuber served as skilled director.

The songs and dances were strung loosely together in revue style on thin threads of plots, successful in their mission of giving an authentic presentation of Austrian folkways, spirit and talent. Members of the troupe are all students and teachers in Austrian towns and cities, in their twenties. The tours were begun following World War 1. The present tour is in its third year.

The young Austrians not only gave some good shows but made friends on their own later. They were guests in local homes from Saturday afternoon until Monday morning. A number of townspeople met and enjoyed them at an informal party after the evening performance, given by Mrs. James Boyd, hostess to four of the group at her home. Members of the group gave freely of their talent for the appreciative pleasure of the company.

Sunday morning, they sang mass at St. Anthony's Catholic church. A large crowd there enjoyed their reverent and musically rendition of Josef Guttler's Latin mass in honor of St. Cecilia, patron saint of musicians, with Schubert's Ave Maria sung by Margarethe Jaeger.

Last year more than 30 millions acres of farm land in the United States were treated with herbicides.

GOP CONVENTION

The biennial Moore County Republican convention will be held Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the courthouse in Carthage, according to information from K. W. Hennings of Carthage RFD, chairman of the Republican Executive committee.

Officers are to be elected for the coming two-year term, delegates to district and state conventions. Delegates to the Eighth District and state conventions will be named and candidates will be nominated for county offices.

Delegates are expected from each precinct in the county, and all other Republicans are urged to attend. Mr. Hennings said.

Sunrise

The hilarious troubles of a young bank teller who makes a sudden fortune in a horse race parlay, only to find he is suspected of robbing the bank, motivate "Double Dynamite" RKO Radio laughter-studded comedy production showing at the Sunrise theater Sunday and Monday.

Jane Russell, Groucho Marx and Frank Sinatra have the stellar roles, with Sinatra as the harassed teller and Miss Russell as a fellow employee whom he hopes to marry. Marx is cast as a happy-go-lucky neighboring waiter who is forever urging on the others his pet philosophy of "living dangerously."

So when the teller makes his unexpected killing on the same day that a huge shortage is found in the bank's books, the waiter naturally thinks his pal stole the money. Even the heroine has her suspicions, and the result is a side-splitting series of misunderstandings.

Don McGuire of the supporting cast plays Sinatra's romantic rival, and other players are Howard Freeman and Nestor Paiva. Irving Cummings directed the production by Irving Cummings, Jr., and Jule Styne and Sammy Cahn wrote the sparkling song numbers for the show.

Feeding tests in New Jersey showed little dairy heifers could be raised from birth to two years of age with as little as 500 pounds of grain, when fed all the high-quality alfalfa hay they could eat.

Per capita cash farm income in North Carolina was $584 in 1950.
