TOWN BOARD

building on May street and Illinois avenue for the accommodation of tourists. The matter, with two similar requests, was referred to the zoning board.

Beer and wine licenses were voted to be issued to the following: Off premises: Colonial Stores, A & P, McAllister and Hobbs, Moore County ABC Stores, and James A. Douglas; On premises: O. R. Conrad, Joe Jackson, Dante Montesanti, Sandwich Shop, Village Grill, VFW Club, 5 O'clock Club, Floyd McDonald, John A. Ferguson, Henry C. Brouer, George Nanopoulos.

A permit was voted to be given the French Restaurant of Pinehurst, for conversion of the former Elks Home on May street into a restaurant.

Presented by Mrs. J. H. Tilghman, tax collector, with a list of double tax listings and errors due to the death or absence otherwise of parties involved, the board voted to relieve Mrs. Tilghman of said collection. A discussion following, the mayor referred to the auditing committee the task of inquiring into some method of eliminating such losses, possibly through the drawing up of a town map with all property owners correctly listed.

"It ought to be done," was Mayor Page's comment, "but due to the fact that the county has never appropriated money to make such a map, and that we take our listings from the county records, many of which are not up to date, the task will be a difficult one, perhaps impossible."

Discussion of the proposed "White Way" for Broad street, brought out the fact that to crisscross the lights, as suggested by the Carolina Power and Light Co. would necessitate moving Western Union poles at considerable expense to the town. White-waying Broad Street will up the town's electricity bill about $1200 a year, it is estimated. Three blocks are involved.

The meeting closed with an informal inspection of the Knollwood Lake site map, the new recreation center. It was felt that the committee appointed under the "Better Carolina" project, under the chairmanship of Jerry Healy, would be the one to make suitable plans for the erection of tables, fire-places etc. The lake will open, it is thought, as soon as more sand, to be donated through the kindness of Bill Huntley of Aberdeen, has been laid down. Several roads, also, must be opened up before entire use can be made of the area. Clerk Burns read the deed from Eutice Mills, conveying the site of 25 acres to the town, under the restrictions that it must always be used for recreational purposes and that it could not be sold. The entire matter was passed on to the Law and Order committee for inspection of the site and roads in question.

Other item on the agenda was consideration given to a letter from OUTDOORS, Inc., advertising agents, asking for a renewal of the contract whereby they furnish and repaint the two large signs at the northern and southern entrances to town, at a yearly cost of $370. The board questioned this expense and in the discussion that followed, several alternative schemes for making the town's entrances more attractive were discussed. The matter was referred to the appropriations committee, consisting of Commissioners Blue, chairman, Brown and Clark.

CIVIL DEFENSE

organized civilian defense. The more advanced we become in technical ways, he declared, the more the human element fits into the picture and the more primitive become some methods of warfare, to be counteracted only by concerted action among the people.

General Arnold made plain that the program is a civilian one, also self-sufficient and self-sustaining as far as possible. "In the event of war emergency, we will use all the resources and facilities of Moore county before we call on the government or any outside agency for aid," he said. "Every local program must be set up along these lines. We must know just what is available in the way of human and mechanical resources. Plans must be made to get what we need into use quickly and efficiently. We must also have trained personnel ready to take charge of all phases of the work."

At the head of the program, he explained, is Chairman of County Commissioners Gordon M. Cameron and the advisory council.

Working directly with General Arnold as his personal staff are A. L. Burney, deputy director; Judge J. Vance Rowe, legal advisor, and Nelson C. Hyde, public affairs, all of whom he presented. He presented the special staff—T. Roy Phillips, mutual aid; Walter Harper, evacuation service; John C. Ostrom, transportation service; George M. Thompson, communications service.

Each explained the responsibilities of his service and how far along he had proceeded with his own organization.

A similar procedure was followed in the presentation of the operating staff—five assistant directors, as follows: Dr. W. F. Hollister, medical (represented at the meeting by Mrs. William Wood); J. D. Arey, Jr., protection; John L. Ponzer, engineering; Jack S. Younts, air raid warning, and Chester Williams, records.

Medical services will combine health and emergency welfare services, with all health and welfare personnel in the county, nurse's aides, persons trained in first aid, etc., also special weapons defense.

J. D. Arey, Jr.'s protection service combines all law enforcement and firefighting personnel and facilities, plant protection, warden services and other self-organized protection.

Under the head of "engineering" (Ponzer) come shelter and rescue, demolition and clearing-away, power, lights, water, etc. Air raid warning service (Younts) covers Civil Air Patrol, air fields and aircraft observers; police and radio air raid warning originating with the State Highway Patrol system and working in coordination with it; communications of all kinds.

As head of the record service, Chester Williams will keep all records in a safe place, with duplicates elsewhere, and will have on file information by and for all the services, immediately available when the need arises.

In addition, the advisory council will appoint CD leaders to set up local organizations in the various county communities, ready to act for their own area or to coordinate with those of others.

A possible hitch developed in a question by Col. Don Madigan, Southern Pines CD director, who asked, "What can a local director do when the county program absorbs his key men, and takes over his essential facilities? What kind of an organization can he have then?" This General Arnold admitted was a stumbling block, and said he would confer with his staff and issue a directive in the near future.

He presented Mrs. Audrey K. Kennedy, executive secretary of the Moore County chapter, Red Cross, of which the disaster preparedness and relief committee is an essential part of emergency service for both Red Cross and civil defense. The difference, he said, is that it will operate for the Red Cross in natural disaster, such as fire or flood, working with the CD program only in event of war. Other parts of the Red Cross program could be employed in the same way, and he saw the first aid, nurse aide and safety training programs of the Red Cross as of utmost value in civil defense.

He said he planned the CD organization not to "meet all the time and do nothing else," and that possibly there would be no other meeting in a long time. He and his deputy, however, will get about the county conferring with key personnel, helping where possible in the setting up of the various services, and doing all they can to strengthen and tighten the overall organization. They will also, he said, check from time to time with the records service to see that all files are up-to-date.

In addition to those named above were C. N. Page, C. A. McLaughlin, Paul Voncanon, H. L. Kennedy, A. S. Tufts, of the advisory council; W. S. Taylor, Aberdeen CD director; service assistants D. A. Drexel, Col. C. H. Burkhead, J. P. Smith, Jr., E. L. Massey, Jr., C. W. Small, J. N. Steed, Edgar Graham, Joe Warren, Mel Kushner, H. Clifton Blue, Valerie Nicholson and others.
