IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. Tishy Washington of Southern Pines, N. C., who was born in Orangeburg, S. C., departed this life on August 30, 1952, at her home at 777 Connecticut avenue at the age of 65 years.

She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, six daughters, eight sons, two sisters, four daughters-in-law, four sons-in-law, 22 grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

She lived a happy and peaceful life and was a good church worker in her good health. After her health failed, she still served the Lord.

Sleep on, Mother, sleep on and take your rest, We all loved you, but God, our Maker, loves you best. adv.

Slow down when you see children walking or playing near the roadway ahead.

Farmer's Question Corner
PREPARED BY American Foundation For Animal Health

WHAT ABOUT BLACKLEG?

Q: Are all farm animals subject to blackleg, or just cattle?
A: Principally young cattle between six months and two years of age. Goats and sheep are also susceptible, but other animals are apparently immune.

Q: What causes it?
A: Blackleg is caused by a spore-forming germ which can live in the ground for years. It may enter an animal's body through small cuts and punctures in the skin, or through grazing.

Q: How does blackleg act?
A: First symptoms are dullness and lameness. Victims develop a fever, lose appetite, show depression. Swelling caused by the disease have a crinkling, tissue-paper feeling if they are touched.

Q: How serious is blackleg?
A: It is usually fatal, though some infected calves may be saved if treatment is started in time.

Q: How can the disease be prevented?
A: All calves in blackleg areas should be vaccinated when three or four months old. In some areas, where 'complicated' blackleg is a hazard, veterinarians may use a combined vaccine for best protection. Complicated blackleg is caused by two different germs.

Q: When is blackleg likely to occur?
A: The worst danger season is during the spring and summer months when cattle are on pasture. Farmers may wrongly blame blackleg losses on lightning or poisonous plants.

Q: What should be done with carcasses of animals which have died from blackleg?
A: They should be burned or buried deeply under lime to prevent the infection from spreading.

THEATRES
Carolina
Continuing through Friday (tonight) and Saturday, at 8:15 p. m. with a Saturday matinee at the Carolina theatre is "Big Jim McLain," with the exteriors filmed in Hawaii. It is a story of investigators from the Congressional Un-American Activities committee, which is exciting, entertaining, with a light but very human love story. It is well constructed, splendidly produced, directed and photographed with the chief roles in the experienced hands of such fine actors as John Wayne, lovely Nancy Olson, James Arness, Veda Ann Borg and others. Its suspense, drama, light comedy touches and acting will win hearty appreciation from any audience.

That hardy perennial, "Charley's Aunt," made into a sprightly tune-show under the title of "Where's Charley?" has been transferred from the stage to the screen intact and is the attraction at the Carolina theatre, Sunday through Wednesday, September 14-17, at 8:15 p. m. with matinees on Sunday and Tuesday at 3:00. To quote from one of the leading critics who is in no way connected with the producers: "This Technicolor musical comedy shines with the talents of Ray Bolger, the star, as he did in the most successful long-run Broadway Stage Play, and makes it good fun from beginning to end, and from the first song-and-dance number to the romantic finish the picture spells entertainment with a capital E. It is just about the most perfect musical to greet the screen in a long time. There is everything right about it and nothing wrong. Every one of the 97 minutes is brimming over with laughter, music and dancing. Ray Bolger is wonderful as Charley and Allyn, Robert Schackleton and Horace Cooper (who nearly steals the show), all from the original Stage cast, score solidly in supporting roles. Here is one of those rare films, all done up in beautiful Technicolor, that can be unreservedly recommended for everybody."

Mr. Crowther, the New York Times critic, says: "Ray Bolger's perennial aunt was of such a delightful buoyance and frank frivolity that a rhapsodized fan could only wish it preserved for all time in a deep freeze. That, we are happy to inform you, has been effectively done." The picture was filmed entirely in England, mostly on locations at Oxford University where the story is laid.
