THE PILOT

Published Each Friday by THE PILOT, INCORPORATED Southern Pines, North Carolina

1941—JAMES BOYD, Publisher—1944 Editor Asst. Editor KATHARINE BOYD . . . VALERIE NICHOLSON . . General Manager DAN S. RAY C. G. COUNCIL . . Advertising

ing hand by American isolationists.

his death is the result."

merciless persecution of the Kremlin. What we must understand now is that Soviet malice alone was not responsible: the United States is a growing body of isolationists in this country who, like the Russians, are making the United Nations their target of attack. Their power was evident during the recent campaign

when, more than once, in order to placate this group, General Eisenhower felt obliged to soft-pedal emphasis on internationalism in his speeches. A leader among them is Senator Mc-

Carran of Nevada, chairman of the committee

now investigating the loyalty of UN personnel in the secretariat. It was to the methods of this

It is inherent in our democracy that people can do almost any fool thing that they've a mind, as long as they don't actually tangle with the law, but as we try to crack down on communists and fellow travellers who are giving aid and c mfort to the enemy, may we not hope that something will be done to restrain those Americans who are supplying a good deal more aid and comfort than the ones we are so intent

Governor Stevenson wholeheartedly condemned McCarran, and he warned of grave danger to the UN, saying: "To close the door on the conference room is to open a door to war."

It is to be earnestly hoped that General Eisenhower will find some way to break up the conspiracy against the United Nations and to curb the power of this American group who are doing their best to help Moscow slam shut the

Possum In the Sun

garden path. His coat was soft grey, fluffy, his ratty tail was curled and his long nose was tucked under him. He didn't move, yet he looked so alive: little Br'er Possum asleep on the gar-

But he wasn't alive. The early morning breeze

How had he gotten there? There were no

This was a young possum, not yet full grown.

Probably he was born last spring. In the dogwood season, it would be: last spring's dogwood season when all flowering shrubs were in a profusion of bloom and the white trees shone like moonlight through the woods. Never was Likely the little possum first saw the light over the hill, where the century-old trees have stood, firm and strong, year after year, even when their great trunks were hollow six feet or more above the ground. That would have been a cozy home for a possum family, cozy yet imposir.g, with that towering steeple rising

It would be quite some time before the baby would be able to climb very far up that lofty tower. But eventually, between climbing higher and higher, and roaming farther and farther,

he would get to see something of the world around. He would find the high sandy hill to the east, where the peach orchard used to be, crossed with too many big dog tracks to be safe far from the edge of the encircling woods.

In the friendly Azalea Swamp, nearby, he would discover a happy place for hunting grubs and fat lazy flies and digging juicy roots buried in the mud. Young's Road, to the north, would be, for long, a hazard too wide and dangerous to cross, but, to the west there was the big field with its thick cover of high grass. Two horses were there, aloof and stately, but though they snoofed at the possum thy paid him no mind.

There in the center of the field was a special tree. The leaves had a pleasant smell when the possum climbed among them and the dark earth underneath smelt sweet and contained, here and there, rough little pits, good to crack open and chew. That was the persimmon tree and somehow it was known that in the fall the fruit would grow full and sweet and glow a dull orange on the branches, to fall with an oozy plop for a

There are tracks and marks of digging under the persimmon tree. It is clear that little animals have been busy there. But then, what happened? Why did the possum leave the tree and what happened, then, that left no mark?

inquiring. Was it simply curiosity to see what lay beyond that caused the young possum to go on across the field? Or was it a Touch, or some great Word, whispered gently, that brought him, in the still hour before dawn, to creep quietly into the garden and curl up there by the box bush on the path, curl up so still that the first warm rays of the sun, touching his fur, could not rouse him from his sleep?

Possums are curious animals, vnturesome and possum to eat.

there such a blooming as last spring.

marks on him; he had not been killed by the dogs. Why had he come here to die in the den path between the box bushes.

ruffled his fur, but he lay still.

He was lying in the sun in the center of the committee that Mr. Lie referred.

on uncovering?

door that leads to peace.

We shall ignore at our peril the fact that there must bear a heavy share of the blame.

Subscription Rates:
One Year $4.00 6 Months $2.00 3 Months $1.00 Entered at the Postoffice at Southern Pines, N. C., as second class mail matter

Member National Editorial Association and N. C. Press Association

"In taking over The Pilot no changes are contemplated. We will try to keep this a good paper. We will try to make a little money for all concerned. Where there seems to be an occasion to use our influence for the public good we will try to do it. And we will treat everybody alike." _James Boyd, May 23, 1941.

Which Way?

The decision of those Southerners who formed "Citizens for Eisenhower" clubs to perpetuate this organization is a development in Southern politics that will be watched with interest. The direction which this group will take is uncertoin and will doubtless remain so until the roused feelings of the campaign have simmered down, but it could mean a great change for the

When this state gave its only Republican vote, it was because of the religious issue: political views had nothing to do with it, but those who rolled up the large Republican vote in the national election here two weeks ago were voting directly on the Republican side, with much Republican money and energetic backing going into their efforts.

What is more, a good many who took that stand have been, to all intents and purposes, talking Republican for some time. It is probable that the only reason they didn't actually turn Rpublicar is because of the compelling influence of a long Democratic tradition and the fact that there were no capable Republican leaders to whom they could rally.

This is still a strong factor to keep the "Democrats for Eisenhower" in the Democratic fold, but will it last? Will the able men among this group seize this chance to become leaders in a new Republican party in the South?

Their slogan, to date, appears to be a rallying ccy for "Unity." We must all get behind the Republican administration, they say, in this crisis through which the country is passing. There is certainly merit in the idea as regards the foreign field. There is little doubt that, despite General Eisenhewer's attacks on administration foreign policy, he himself was in complete agreement with all the great steps taken by the Democratic administrations of the last 20 years to form a strong free world. In all efforts to implement the Marshall Plan, Aid to Greece and Turkey, NATO, and to strengthen the United Nations, Eisenhower was in there pitching. This ought to go on. But unity as to the foreign policies necessary to combat communism and uphold the UN is one thing, unity in everything is another. For if we strive for unity we come back to what the folks who won the election emphasized more than anything else: the need to maintain a strong two-party system. The role of the strong, intelligent, constructive opposition, the loyal opposition, is only a degree lower in importance to the nation's welfare than the in one of the hollow pines in the Round Timber role of leadership itself.

As the "Democrats for Eisenhower" work towards a progressive, able Republican leadership in the South, they may do much good, but if tney confine their efforts to sabotage of the Democratic party and to building up a divisive spirit, destructive of independent thought and progress, theirs will be, we believe, a fading and futile role.

A-Hunting Today!

Not today, perhaps, but next week: Thanksgiving Day: that's the date set for the opening meet of the Moore County Hounds.

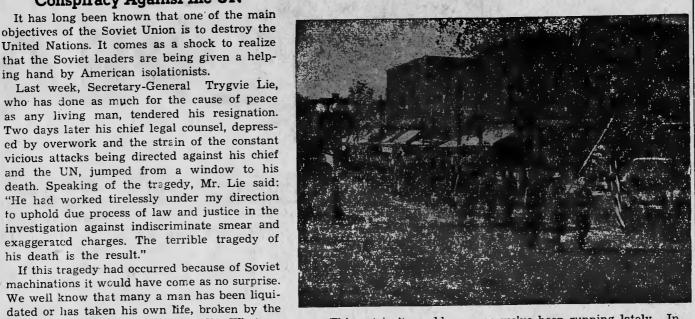

Thanksgiving Day has marked the start of the hunting season for this local pack since it was founded. And that's quite a time ago. The first opening hunt would have been, we imagine, in 1913 or 1914. There used to be a big picnic up on the hill, with everybody in the county, almost, invited to come and see the hounds start off. The picnic grew beyond all bounds, but the same spirit of hospitality and good cheer has surrounded this occasion year after year, with only a few, in the long span, left out during the two world wars.

The Moore County Hounds' schedule of drag and foxhunts, famous among hunting circles everywhere, has brought many people here and the hunt is an important feature of the sports and resort life adding much color to the Sandhills picture. Both those whose home this is and those who come just to visit take a real pride in the excellence of the sport shown by the local pack and the friendly hospitality always found at Mile-Away Stable farm, home of Master and hounds. It is a fair guess that the news that hounds will start hunting regularly again next week, and the added note that the date for the spring hunter trials has already been set brings a pleasant feeling of continuity to many, troubled not a little by the feeling of no continuity at all only too apparent in most of the day's news.

If all's not exactly well, yet all's not entirely ill, in this old world. Not as long as folks can go a-hunting.

No. 31 — Old Days In Southern Pines Conspiracy Against the UN

This cut isn't as old as some we've been running lately. In fact, if our guess is correct, it is comparatively modern, dating back to the days during or just after World War. 1. Who remembers the occasion which brought these trim-looking soldiers marching along Broad street-and who remembers when Southern Pines had a traffic light like that in the middle of the street? Or maybe that's a railroad signal. We can't tell much about it from the cut.

Grains of Sand

Our Old Picture No. 30, pub-, A picnic excursion was the oclished last week, turned out to be, casion. He doesn't remember now Mayor Wiley's house, we learned a popular time for excursions, or from Dr. G. G. Herr. We misread a Sunday School affair. the scribbled notation on the back of the cut, and are glad to stand ern Pines in the progressive son may fire him any minute. path," setting a forward-looking tradition which subsequent new editor ran the news item bemayors have maintained almost low: 100 per cent.

the town's history.

The following item, crowded out of the paper last week, may be outdated by now but we think it's worth running anyhow. At the World Insurance company wives Mrs. Harriet I. Lewis and make a good record rather than the opthis writing The Pilot hasn't made a re-check. Those signs may now be all the way down, and new ones up, for all we know. We hope so. Anyway-

End's in sight on the Finer Carolina contest. All's well except for signs: two new ones promised: two old ones eliminated. What's the score? No new signs (as per Thursday), and only half an old one

So now, as we enter town we find ourselves hailed as: "PINES!" And worse: we are labeled as know-nothings and illiterates. Our sign now says: "THIS IS PINES!"

Now we all know they is plenty pines yere bouts, still an' all we all don't hanker for that there way of speakin'. Hurry up, Howard, and get those signs DOWN!

go to press last week we learned the lawyers present, where does that our information about the that leave Harry? Girl Scout population here was already out of date. Two new Brownies had registered, making the one holdout among the insurthe total number of Southern ancemen, who came in for Lloyd's Pines Girl Scouts 150 instead of best kidding. He didn't answer tle Diana Grimes and Ann Giau- ing up something good for the que, who joined the Brownie troop next opportunity that comes now being organized with Mrs. J. along. P. Shamburger as leader.

But then, we have long ago found out it's practically impos-very often. but we did that night, sible to keep right up to the min- by trailing along after the visitute with those Girl Scouts, for ing insurance officials and several they're busy at something new all others of the dinner party, who the time and growing right along. were out to make a real evening fund drive in the past week or Salem said they'd never seen two you can be sure will be such a place as Southern Pines used to the fullest, in the best for nice places to go and have a possible ways-and if you haven't good time. The Sandhills are realgiven yet, better hurry up and do ly unique in this respect in the so. That's one bandwagon you state, was their opinion—a judgdon't want to miss.

We had our first word this week, too, on Old Picture No. 29, we like to note for the reading which showed a big group of peo- public what's going on there, ple at the railroad station.

the front row.

not Major Wiley's house, but whether it was the Fourth of July, this country.

of the Southern Pines Rotary Not only was Robert E. Wiley club, has been made editor of of history is of any value at all. He has established himself as one mayor, but one of the most pro- the club's weekly bulletin, The Selected twisted facts, taken out of the major statesmen that we gressive Southern Pines has ever Sandspur. We don't know how of context and highly interlarded can depend upon in the days to had. Serving five or six years from long he's going to keep the job, about 1906 or 1907, he "put South-though. President Russell Loren-

"The following expense account Mayor Wiley was also, it ap-was turned in by Russell Lorenpears, one of the finest gentlemen son recently: Advertisement for and best-liked public officials of female stenographer, .55; violets for new stenographer, .64; week's His widow Mrs. Verdie T. Wiley salary for stenographer, $35; roses and daughter Miss Kitty Wiley, for stenographer, $3.75; candy for girl, who sing funny songs, and proprietor of Mrs. Hayes Shop and wife, .35; lunch with stenographer, and together. One of their songs Tots Toggery, still live here, on pher, $5; week's salary for sten-and together. One of their songs mobile companies, "advertising is their own version of "We've Got models guaranteed not to exceed state of their songs mobile companies, "advertising is their own version of "We've Got models guaranteed not to exceed Rhythm." and that's understating and their songs mobile companies, "advertising is their own version of "We've Got models guaranteed not to exceed Rhythm." and that's understating and their songs mobile companies, "advertising is their own version of "We've Got models guaranteed not to exceed the song mobile companies, "advertising is their own version of "We've Got models guaranteed not to exceed the song mobile companies, "advertising is their own version of "We've Got models guaranteed not to exceed the song models guaranteed not the song models guaranteed not to exceed the song models guaranteed not the song guaranteed not guar was born in the house we pictur-self and wife, .70; theatre tickets, Rhythm," and that's understating 65 mph." This would be so uned, which was built by Tom Bur-self and stenographer, $7.50; cocagess. He rented it to the Wileys, cola for wife, .05; Dorothy's sal who moved to Southern Pines ary, $55; cocktails for Dotty, and from Danville, Va. They lived dinner, $21.71; fur coat for wife, there until Mr. Wiley's death in $625; advertisement for male not have a list of the Gold Star dangerous older car. stenographer, .55."

Advertising-It Pays.

Lloyd Clark did quite a fancy gave him at the Southern Pines Country club Friday night.

and introduce themselves, while he interpolated remarks, such as Mr. Klabbatz. noting that, of four insurance men present, he had sold policies to three of them-"and I'm going to get the other one yet."

When Harry Fullenwider, who was sitting next to June and Mary Blue, stood up to present himself, he did a little interpolating of his own. "You may have sold policies to all these other insurance men," he said, "but I just heard June Blue say that when you died he was going to bury you."

In commenting on legal luminaries present, Lloyd got back at Harry without even meaning to. He commented that Harry represented the best legal brains in attendance, "except for Hoke Pollock and of course, Lamont Brown Just as we were getting set to over there." Since these were all

It was Jim Pleasants, though, but he kept that grin on his face The two newest Scouts are lit- and we have a feeling he's cook-

We don't get to the Dunes club Whatever you gave to their out of it. The folks from Winstonment with which we'd never quarrel

When we do get to the Dunes, though sometimes it's too late as D. Wade Stevick, who lived here the shows change every two "way back when" though he now weeks. We got in on the first lives near Pinehurst, not only re- week of "The Sunnysiders," membered the occasion but took though, so we'll tell you that this a magnifying glass to inspect the is one of the cleverest show units crowd and recognized himself in we've seen in a long time. It consists of three young men of vary-

The Public Speaking

THANK YOU, SIR

To the Pilot.

have space for it in your valuable contemporary equal. paper. It is from the Philadelphia Bulletin of November 5, 1952.

Your own editorials during the excellent and helped to a deserved appreciation of Governor Ste-

A NEW MAJOR STATESMAN By RALPH W. PAGE

This is written, of course, before the outcome of the election is spared the whoops of victory or the alibis of defeat.

But however it comes out, one thing is established. America has produced and discovered a public glish language, humor and good leader of the very first caliber in Adlai Stevenson. In a campaign the American hustings. distinguished for an orgy of villification, distortion, malice, and this ordeal without an enemy of wholesale demagogy he set a his own making, without a statestandard of public debate equal to ment that he must retract, and the best that we have ever seen in recognized by friend and foe alike foreign policy before the World power of analysis and persuasion. Affairs Council in this city, John Harry Chatfield, new member Foster Dulles stated that during a campaign no politician's version be of incalculable future benefit. with adjectives, were bandied come. about as history by most of the gladiators. But not so Stevenson. In last week's Sandspur, the His knowledge of both the long- To the Pilot. range and current history is exhaustive. And it is impossible to find in all his speeches a single obvious misstatement of fact.

These speeches will remain as ing sizes, and an extremely pretty rolling toward some drastic action we do mean funny, separately ways, first taking it up with autoand together. One of their songs mobile companies, "advertising

In our write-up of the Armis-and Mrs. America behind the tice Day observance here we did wheel of a new model, or equally relatives who were honored at Mrs. Celeste Edson now lives in the house, which is on the corner of South Broad street and Indiana.

Stenographer, 55."

What paper you puttin' those the memorial service in the afternoon. We have the list now, and moon. We have the list now, and moon would like to note them here, as a little memorial tribute of our turn from our homes unless the own.

> There were three Gold Star wives, Mrs. Harriet L. Lewis and posite! Mrs. Vida Gorman; and one Gold

He made everybody stand up Star daughter, Diane Gorman. There was also a Gold Star dad, Nov. 17, ideals and desires of the American public at this time. His ability to This fine tribute to Gov. Adlai persuade the country to trust Stevenson by a former Moore their execution to his party is an-County citizen I feel sure will be and accounter. But the lucidity of interest to your readers, if you pressed the national creed has no

a true exposition of the prevailing

In a childish campaign his maturity singles him out as certain to be a commanding figure in the eampaign, and your articles writ- future of the country. He did not ten on the campaign train, were use a single epithet in attacking programs or principles he deplored. He was caustic about bigotry, venality and isolation. But he did not attack the bigot or the FRANCIS MOORE OSBORNE thief or the isolationist. He was against the action or the opinion, not the person.

He produced the extraordinary spectacle of a politician who admitted his party had made mistakes, who told great pressure groups to their face that he had no intention of espousing their cause, and cheerfully campaigned in Dixie for a Fair Employment was known. So the gentle reader Practice Act and federal control of off-shore oil-supposedly suiside tactics.

And all this was done with a consummate command of the Enhumor, seldom, if ever, equaled in

Adlai Stevenson emerges from as a gentleman of tolerance, cour-In his debate with Harriman on age, humility and extraordinary

Win or lose, he will be credited with setting an example that will

SLOW THEM DOWN

The suggestion in your editorial f November 7 entitled "Moore's Sixteenth" might well be broadcast over all radio stations in our state and put on the front page of our daily papers, namely: That some clever ad-man start the ball to bring about safety on our highusual that it might seem attractive to the hardened hearts of Mr.

If we had had 16 deaths, for inture from our homes unless the house was on fire!

Let's start doing something to

Sincerely, MRS. DAN R. McNEILL

Dunes Club

(A CHARTERED PRIVATE CLUB-MEMBERS ONLY)

Now Open

Dinner Show 8:30 PM

Supper Show. 12 PM

Featuring

THE MERRY MUTES Comedy team from Riviera Club, N. Y.

AUDREY BAKER

Ballet-Acrobatic Dancer from Chez Paree, Chicago

MAL MALKIN

and his Society Orchestra

Plaza Hotel, N. Y., and Sans Souci Hotel Miami Beach

Dancing from 8 PM to 1 AM Nightly

ON MIDLAND ROAD BETWEEN PINEHURST AND SOUTHERN PINES

PHONE 4604 FOR RESERVATIONS