Law As A Condition Then the Christian is free from the law as a condition of God's favor. "When shall I be good enough for God to love me?" is a question no one ought to ask. The Christian is one who has discovered that God's love does not wait for our obedience. A mother does not wait till her baby is old enough to understand her and obey her before she will love him. And even when he is old enough to understand, if he disobeys she may disapprove and punish him, but she will not stop loving him. If God had waited to love us till we were good enough to love, he would BROWNSON MEMORIAL be waiting yet. It is God's gracious love that produces what goodness CHURCH (Presbyterian) Cheves K. week, the smile of God is not for Law As A Cage Again, law for some people is a kind of cage. Inside its narrow pattern they carefully live. They do what they must, what the law com-pels; but beyond that they will not go. They are only as good as they have to be. Now the Christian is free from the law as a cage, just as he is free from it as a curse and as a condition. The Christian loves by faith, hope and love; and these take him clear beyond the limits of law.

A husband who does for his wife and family only what the law requires will be a poor husband. A citizen who will do no more for his country and community than just not to break any laws, is not the best type of citizen. A soldier who will not go beyond the line of duty will deserve no medals. A "Christian" who does no more than barely try to keep from breaking the Ten Commandments is never the high-level Christian. A Christian is free. He is law-abiding; but he does not live "under" law, he lives under Grace. It "Is a different
