

Dr. Manchester, Authority On Brazil, To Address Pinehurst Forum Thursday

Duke Historian Has Served With Embassy At Rio

Dr. Alan K. Manchester, Duke University historian and one of the nation's leading scholars in Brazilian affairs, will deliver a lecture at Pinehurst February 11 under the auspices of the Pinehurst Forum, Inc.

He will speak on "A Problem in Communication."

Dr. Manchester, who served as cultural affairs officer at the U. S. Embassy in Rio de Janeiro during 1951-52, is a specialist in Latin-American affairs and particularly in the field of the Portuguese Empire and the history of Brazil. At Duke, he is professor of history and dean of undergraduate studies.

Dr. Manchester has lived in Brazil for a total of six years. He is the author of numerous books and scholarly papers on Brazilian history, international relations, politics and literature.

A member of the Duke faculty since 1929, Dr. Manchester holds degrees from Vanderbilt, Columbia and Duke Universities. He is a native of Camden, N. J. He taught at the University of Oklahoma, several colleges in South America, Trinity Park School in Durham and Wallace University School, Nashville, Tenn., before joining the Duke faculty.

There will be the usual Country Club buffet supper at 7 p. m. before the lecture. Reservations should be made in advance.

Sales Cards Must Be Turned In To Receive Allotment

Notices of tobacco acreage allotments were to be mailed out this week by the Moore County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee office.

Joe A. Caddell, ASC chairman, stressed the fact that these notices are going only to those farmers who have returned their 1953 tobacco sales cards to the ASC office in Carthage.

Allotment notices for farms whose owners have not returned their sales cards will be held up until the cards are received.

Under the present regulations, an allotment on a farm for which the sales card is not returned to the county office within 15 days from the date sales are completed is subject to reduction.

Money To Spend Should Determine Type Home Built

In planning a home, a family should plan on the amount of money one has to spend, although most people plan houses they want without consideration of the cost, said R. M. Ritchie, Jr., agricultural engineering specialist, at the Housing Workshop held in Carthage last week. Some families spend as much remodeling as the cost of a new home. Mr. Ritchie showed a well planned home and a remodeled one, explaining the points of good construction and arrangement of each plan. He explained with charts the size and locations of bathrooms, walls and floor coverings, also heating and insulation.

Miss Pauline E. Gordon, house furnishing specialist of the Extension Service, stated that cost will never determine the comfort and convenience of a home. Some of the most expensive homes are "women killers," said Miss Gordon. One should list the things that have to be kept and done before the house is built. Once it is built, it sits there. Clothes closets should be built for what we want to keep in them, she said.

Miss Gordon had models to show storage for bedrooms as well as slides. Kitchen storage was shown by slides also.

Scrubbing is the worst thing that can be done to a floor said Miss Gordon. She discussed the two types of floor finishes; Surface and penetrating. Types of flooring were shown, with finishes, and Miss Gordon gave the methods of cleaning the different types.

A large number of persons who were interested in building and remodeling attended the workshop.

Alcoholism Booklet Stirs Much Interest

The publication of a booklet on the problems of alcoholism by the North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program has stirred up an unusual amount of interest throughout the United States. The booklet consists of a number of lectures given by nationally known authorities, and is titled, "Alcoholism—A Personal and Community Problem."

Director of the State Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program, S. K. Proctor, said that numerous requests for the booklet have come from every state in the Union and from several foreign countries.

Interested individuals may have a copy free on request to the North Carolina Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program, P. O. Box 9118, Raleigh.
