

Incomplete Scout Campaign Report Shows $3,122.13

The fund campaign of Boy Scout units in Moore County has brought in $3,122, about $2,000 of which was contributed in Southern Pines, it was announced this week.

With reports from county communities incomplete, Brig. Gen. Pearson Menoher of Southern Pines, fund drive chairman for the Moore District of the 12-county Oconeechee Council, said that he expected this year's contributions to be somewhere between the $5,350.30 given in 1953 and the record of over $8,000 collected the previous year.

Reports made early this week showed the following figures: Aberdeen, $488; Carthage, $159; Carthage Fabrics Corporation, $290; and West End (Community Chest allotment), $291.

All workers in the drive were urged to complete their reports.

Funds collected are pooled with contributions from other counties of the council and come back to the county in the form of professional services by a Boy Scout

THEATRES CAROLINA

The striking beauties of the Canadian Rockies co-star with the blonde charms of Marilyn Monroe and the masculine muscles of Robert Mitchum in "The River Of No Return," in CinemaScope and Technicolor, playing a return engagement in the Sandhills at the Carolina Theatre, this Thursday, Friday and Saturday, October 14-16, at 8:15 p. m., with a Saturday matinee at 3.

Solid entertainment values abound in this CinemaScope adventure romance loaded with impressive scenery that is shown off to maximum beauty via the CinemaScope cameras, the story is actionful and on-the-move permitting the development of valid characterizations for dramatic punch all the way.

Another magnificent production returning to the Sandhills is the sequel to "The Robe," under the title of "Demetrius and The Gladiators," starring Victor Mature, Susan Hayward, Michael Rennie, Debra Paget, Anne Bancroft and many others.

The tremendous audiences which already have seen "The Robe" will certainly be most receptive to this film and they will not be disappointed in this sequel which reaches a certain maturity of perfection. Absent are some of the understandable technical flaws of the first CinemaScope picture.

Especially noticeable will be the refinement and the toning down of the Stereophonic Sound which was so rich in quality in "7 Brides for 7 Brothers" just seen at the Carolina. "Demetrius and the Gladiators" will hold the screen at the Carolina Sunday through Wednesday, October 17-20, at 8:15 p. m., with matinees Sunday and Wednesday at 3.

Starting Thursday night, October 21, at 8:15 are Randolph Scott, Dolores Dorn and Marie Windsor in "The Bounty Hunter" in WarnerColor.

SUNRISE

After 13 years at his home studio, MGM, Spencer Tracy was finally lured away to play the role of a rugged, hard-driving rancher in "Broken Lance," Twentieth Century-Fox's CinemaScope drama of the great southwest in the 1880's, which comes to the Sunrise Theatre on Sunday. Although the surroundings were different Tracy's position as respected dean of Hollywood stars was the same with all of the "Broken Lance" troupe.

Tracy attacked his role with characteristic authority. It was not difficult from the artistic standpoint, although physically it made more serious demands than anything he has done in a long time. From the physical standpoint it was the same for his co-stars in the picture, Robert Wagner, Jean Peters and Richard Widmark.

An experienced horseman and former polo player, Tracy nevertheless went into training for a month with the roan gelding he rode in the picture, hardening himself in the process. When it came time for him to ride "hell and leather" over the rugged Santa Cruz valley in Arizona, he was ready. He did a lot of dangerous riding, including a fall from his horse.

He suffered some scratches and severe bruises in the fall and risked much more serious hurts at other times, but the penetrating eye of the CinemaScope cameras makes arduous demands on actors these days. There was a time when doubles could be used but not now with the enlarged screen technique.

Revival Services To Start Monday

The Rev. W. H. Caldwell of North Wilkesboro will deliver the message each evening at a revival to start Monday at 7:30 p.m., at Rosendale Baptist Church, with services to continue each evening throughout the week at the same hour.

The church is on the old Sweetheart Lake road, two miles east of the Skyline Service Station on No. 1 highway, four miles north of Southern Pines.

All singers are especially invited to attend the services, said the Rev. Lester English, pastor of the church, in announcing the revival.

Only about one out of every five persons in North Carolina 65 years of age or over receives old age assistance, according to studies of the State Board of Public Welfare. The older an elderly person is, the more likely he is to be dependent upon others for help.
