Belvedere Hotel Operators Buy Home Here, To Retire When Lease Expires

No Successor To Manage Hotel Known Here At This Time

Arthur C. Reed and his sister Miss Helen Reed, who have operated the Belvedere Hotel under lease since 1947, have purchased a home here and say they are retiring from business when their lease expires August 31. They are moving this week into their new home at 475 Orchard Road, which they recently bought from Mrs. Harold Green, and which until Monday was occupied by Lt. Col. Albert R. Cupello and Major Bedford D. May, Air-Ground School officers who were transferred this week.

The Reeds will continue to run the Belvedere for the rest of the summer, dividing their time between their home and the hotel. As far as is known here the owners of the building, the Belvedere Hotel Co., Inc., of Greensboro, have not found a successor to take over the lease.

Arthur Reed came here from Chicago on purchasing the lease February 1, 1947. He had wide hotel experience, as manager and as owner, in Missouri, Indiana and Chicago. He formerly owned the McFarlan Hotel in Connersville, Ind., and the Hotel Coulter in Frankfort, Ind. He sold both in order to come south.

His sister, who had been associated with him in several of his hotels, followed him to Southern Pines within a few months and has been an active assistant in running the Belvedere. They have made many improvements in the hotel, including air-conditioning a number of the rooms. The hotel, in a two-story brick building, caters to both the commercial and resort trade.

Reed has been active in civic affairs. He served several terms as a director of the Chamber of Commerce, which had its office in the Belvedere from 1948 to 1951, and was a director of the US Highway 1 Association.

Now, he says, he and his sister plan to take a rest, continuing to live in the town they have come to regard as home.

991 KILLED

Traffic accidents on North Carolina streets and highways last year killed 991 persons, according to records of the Motor Vehicles Department. Included in the year-end fatality toll was 215 pedestrians. The 1954 death toll was 11 per cent (or 127 lives) below the 1,118 deaths that occurred in 1953. Auto accident injuries for last year totaled 15,600.

Pastor and Wife Honored

Following the evening service at the Presbyterian Church Sunday, the Women of the Church entertained at a fellowship hour, honoring the new supply pastor and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Gau. After the benediction, Mrs. Eugene Hicks, president of the Women of the Church, invited the congregation and guests into a classroom, where they were served punch, cookies and nuts. Mrs. J. A. Hudson presided at the punch bowl.

A surprise feature of the fellowship hour was the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Gau of a pantry shower and miscellaneous household gifts, with Miss Polly Gilmore making the presentation. The miscellaneous gifts, which were opened and displayed, were presented in a cardboard "church" made by Mrs. Howard Gschwind. The honorees expressed their deep appreciation.

Services are being held each second Sunday morning and fourth Sunday evening.

Youth Activities Week is being observed at the Vass Methodist church, with sessions from 7 to 9 o'clock each evening from Sunday through Friday. "Christian Witnessing" is the theme for the week.

Sunday evening the young people, went out in groups to invite other young people to attend, then returned to the church, where a worship service was led by Joe Edwards, followed by a film on "Christian Witnessing."

Recreation was led by Roy Frye and refreshments were served by a committee headed by Mrs. Louis Frye and Miss Carol Foster.

During the work period Monday evening, from 7 to 7:45, the young people mowed and raked the lawn, washed windows, mopped floors and did other work in and around the building.

Miss Agnes Boggs led the worship period, after which Mrs. Charles Cameron led a discussion of evangelism. Games and refreshments followed.

Last year's Youth Activities Week was a highlight of the year's program, and much interest is being shown again this year. The Rev. and Mrs. Walter C. Smith, Jr., are spending the week here, to guide the young people in their activities and to attend the annual conference at Fayetteville.

Successful Project

The fish supper served recently by the Methodist Men's Club was considered a fine success. The project is reported to have netted around $250. Many out of town people attended.

Sunday School Picnic

The Methodist Sunday School enjoyed a picnic supper at the Aberdeen lake on Wednesday evening of last week.

Completes Course

Maj. and Mrs. Robert G. Rosser, Jr., spent from Tuesday until Thursday of last week here with his mother, and visited his father at the Pinehurst Convalescent Home, coming from Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., where Robert had just graduated from medical school after a six weeks' course. Called into the service from his work as a surgeon specializing in urology at McIver Clinic in Jacksonville, Fla., he entered the army as a major on May 11 and has now been assigned to Fort Dix, N. J., to which place he and his wife went last week. Major Rosser is a member of the American College of Surgeons.
