AT ACHIEVEMENT DAY

Eagle Springs Wins Award For Home Demonstration Activities

J. A. Glazener, program planning specialist of the State College Extension Division was guest speaker at a recent home demonstration achievement day program held in the courthouse in Carthage.

He discussed some improvements that every community could do to make living more attractive, and some practices to increase the income for the farm and home, using slides to illustrate his talk. "The greatest problem," said Glazener, "is to get people to have the desire to make improvements."

The two new county council officers, Mrs. Roy Williams of Eagle Springs, president, and Mrs. Wade Hare of the Westmoore Club, vice-president, were installed for 1957-58.

Mrs. Sam Boggs of the Eastwood Club won the first prize of $5 in the mail box contest. The Eastwood Club in turn won $5.

L. B. Creath, executive vice-president of the Carolina Bank, presented the cash awards to the four clubs scoring the highest points during the year. Eagle Springs won first place which carried a $50 award.

Some of the highlights of the Eagle Springs activities during the year were: organized a choir for District Federation Day music at Pinehurst with 12 members taking part; prepared suppers for the local Ruritan Club; held a recreational program for the 4-H Club; won first place on the county fair booth, Civil Defense, reached 238 non-club members with methods or information; enrolled six new club members along with carrying out a well conducted club meeting each month with at least 75 per cent of the members present. The club has 43 members.

Cranes Creek Club won second place with a cash award of $25. The Cranes Creek Club high score was based on consistently good participation at every meeting, county and State activities, and reaching 204 non club members.

Stanton Hill won third place of $15. The club reached 220 non-club members as well as carried on a well balanced program through the year.

Bethlehem Club won fourth place with an award of $10, by reaching 136 non-club members.

All of the winning clubs stressed attendance at leader training and county council meetings as well as good parliamentary procedure at club meetings; the transferring of the information and methods gained from the county meetings to club and non club members. A total of 1,721 non-club members have been reached by all of the Moore County Clubs in 1956.

Miss Alma T. Edwards, council secretary, presided at the meeting. Mrs. Wade Hare gave the devotions and Mrs. D. H. Jackson the treasurer's report.

Low producing cows return less over their feed costs, says Marvin E. Senger, Extension dairy specialist at N. C. State College. Consequently, the dairy farmer has less for his labor and to meet other expenses. This should leave no alternative but to eliminate the low producing cows from the herd as rapidly as possible if dairymen are to have a good year, not only this year but every year.
