THEATRES CAROLINA

Continuing through Saturday at the Carolina Theatre, with a Saturday matinee at 3 p.m. is "The Big Land," in WarnerColor, starring Alan Ladd, Virginia Mayo and Edmund O'Brien.

Coming Sunday through Wednesday, April 14-17, is the sparkling comedy, "Top Secret Affair," starring Susan Hayward and Kirk Douglas. Bright as a new penny is "Top Secret Affair," a breezy fast-paced comedy based on characters from John P. Marquand's novel, "Melville Goodwin, U. S. A."

It's about a seemingly incorruptible Army general called "Iron Pants" and a woman publisher who sets out to do a "smearing profile." She feels the general is too militaristic for an important diplomatic assignment and wants a Senate investigation.

Susan Hayward and Kirk Douglas play a crackling script and the direction by H. C. Potter adds many laughs. When Miss Hayward does uncover a "scandal" which threatens to ruin Douglas's career, the film provides moments of powerful drama.

The supporting players are most excellent, including Paul Stewart as Miss Hayward's conscience troubled assistant; Jim Backus as Douglas's nervous public relations colonel; Roland Winters as a Congressman; and John Cromwell, giving an engaging performance as a three-star general given to barracks-room philosophy.

Starting Thursday April 18, is "Lizzie," with Eleanor Parker, Richard Boone, Joan Blondell and Hugo Haas. A picturization of Shirley Jackson's novel, "The Bird's Nest."

SUNRISE

Unforgettable star of "To Hell and Back," Audie Murphy returns to the Sunrise Theatre screen on Sunday and Monday in a frontier adventure ideally suited to his abilities as a soldier, a fighting man and an actor. The film, Columbia Pictures' "The Guns of Fort Petticoat," with print by Technicolor, is a hitherto untold saga of the Southwest, when a single man and a band of women withstood savage Indian attacks in a battle for survival.

According to Hollywood, "The Guns of Fort Petticoat" runs the gauntlet of danger, as Murphy leads his desperate, besieged handful of "soldiers in skirts." Actually, of course, they are pioneer women and their children, left defenseless in the savage Texas territory when their menfolk march off to the Civil War.

An Army lieutenant facing court martial for opposing his ambitious colonel's plan to "teach a lesson" to the peaceful Sand Creek Indians, Murphy deserts to warn the isolated women they

Annual Contest To Select Sandhills Queen Tomorrow

More than 30 contestants will vie for the "Queen of the Sandhills" honor at the annual dance and beauty contest sponsored by the Pinehurst Volunteer Firemen tomorrow (Friday) night.

The dance, which will be held in the Pinehurst High School gymnasium from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., will feature the music of Ed Turbeville and his orchestra, currently on a tour of the South.

Lois Williams of Eagle Springs, sponsored by Elise High School in Robbins, is presently the queen.

The complete list of contestants and their sponsors this year are: Esther Martin and Merle Elizabeth Fletcher, West End Lions Club; Vivian Joan Morrison and Patsy Baker, Carthage High School; Gale Garner, Shirley Gaines and Nancy Cooke, Deep River Fire Department; Virginia L. Woodell and Joanne Goodwin, Southern Pines High School.

Frankie Trotter, Leona June Callicutt, Carla Ann McLeod, Flora Jackson and Jackie Scoggins, Elise High School, Robbins; Ruby Carroll, Betty Harris, Dorothy von Canon and Linda Richardson, West End High School; Louise Lambert and Francis Lambert, Westmore High School; Sandra Burkman, Allison Gramelsbach, Barbara Hunt and Janice McFarland, Pinehurst High School; Ruth Marsh and Edna Holder, Cameron School; Carol Elizabeth Gallimore, Jackson Springs Ruritan Club; Betty Lou McFarland, Ann Creel, Aberdeen High School; and Shirley Thomas and Shirley Stone, Cameron High School.

He trains them ruthlessly in the tactics and military knowledge they must have if they are to repulse the certain attack. His rigid discipline creates resentments, and the differing personalities and conflicts among the women to his problems. But, in time, the women of "Fort Petticoat" are welded into an effective fighting force.
