

Horses Arriving For Training At Stables In Area

Local Owners Acquire Yearlings At Summer Sales In Kentucky

One of Moore County's "industries" is gathering force here with the arrival of the northern tracks of several thoroughbred racing establishments.

Latest to come is that of Miss Eleonora Sears, with Mrs. Nancy Sweet-Escott, trainer, in charge.

There are around twenty horses in all, seventeen of them track horses, or future track horses, Mrs. Sweet-Escott visited the Keenland Sales in Kentucky this summer and picked up seven yearlings: "a good, well-balanced, well-bred lot," she says.

The Sears Stable people feel pleased with the summer's record, with seven wins and a good many seconds and thirds picked up at the Saratoga meeting.

The horses are stabled at the Collins place on Young's Road, with some of them quartered in the barn back of the Walsh Stoneybrook Stables.

Earlier this month Lloyd P. Tate's Starland Stables opened its doors to welcome back the veterans from Saratoga and also some young ones.

Mr. Tate bought twelve yearlings at the Kentucky sales, which are now beginning to get used to his track on the north side of Midland Road—the location of the original racing in the county. With these yearlings and the ten or twelve older horses, the Starland barns have horses' heads peering out of most every stall window.

At Dooley Adams' barns, the story is the same. Here more than twenty good thoroughbreds are quartered and the woods resound to the thump of galloping hooves, as they take them out for conditioning in early morning canter along the piney trails. Mr. Adams, who has several times been named "leading point-to-point" rider of the year, is his own trainer.

The Walsh horses will be down soon, it is rumored, as well as those from the New England stables of Mr. and Mrs. Q. A. Shaw McKean of Pinehurst.

Hearing Will Be Held About Order Involving Jugtown

With the news that another installment of "The Jugtown Affair" has been scheduled for the near future, Moore County may—or may not—look forward to further unravelling of the tangled skein of this story of what is to become of the famed pottery in the northern end of the county.

A hearing for the purpose of deciding whether or not the temporary restraining order at present preventing operation of the Jugtown pottery by the owners, Jacques and Juliana Busbee's Jugtown, Inc., shall become permanent, has been calendared for the November 16 term of court at Carthage.

The order, stopping work at the pottery, was originally brought about as one more move in a series of efforts by a group known as Jugtown, Inc., to contest the claim of John Mare to ownership of the Jugtown property. The group includes members of the art and literary circles of Raleigh and Greensboro.

Request for the coming hearing was made in the names of Mr. Mare and Juliana Busbee, principal stockholders in the cooperation of Jacques and Juliana Busbee's Jugtown, Inc., against which the original order was issued June 1 by Judge W. Reid Thompson of Pittsboro. At that time Judge Thompson directed that Mr. Mare show cause why the pottery should not remain inoperative at a hearing set for June 20. Circumstances caused successive continuations of the case and it is this question which is scheduled to be brought before the Carthage court next week. Presiding (Continued on page 8)

EDUCATION IN THE SPOTLIGHT

Dr. McMillan Speaks At PTA Meet; Supt. Lee Tells Club Moore Plans

"I am proud of our school. I want us to stay proud of it." With these words, Dr. R. M. McMillan, local physician, concluded a talk on American education, past and present, at the regular meeting of the East Southern Pines Parent-Teacher Association Monday night.

Dr. McMillan, first president of the Association when it was founded several years ago, said that much of what he told his audience had been inspired by two books of Dr. James Bryant Cantant, "The Child, the Parent and the State" and "The American High School Today." He commended both to the reading of parents.

The speaker told parents that increased interest in education must be shown to meet the challenge of a growing school population and tightening of college entrance requirements.

More money will have to be spent everywhere, he said—for teachers' salaries, for buildings and for counseling and improvement of curriculum, to provide a four-year high school program in languages, mathematics and English.

He questioned also whether outside activities might not have (Continued on page 8)

Lions To Sell Light Bulbs Next Week

The Southern Pines Lions Club will sell electric light bulbs to residents of this area, starting Tuesday night, November 17, and continuing through Friday night, November 20, according to an announcement by the club president, Joe Carter.

Proceeds of the sale will go into the local Lions Club blind activity fund. Aid to the blind and visually handicapped is the principal project of the Lions Clubs in North Carolina. Each year the local Lions Club sponsors several fund-raising projects to assist this work.

The light bulbs will be pack-

Funeral Held For Curtis Everette

Curtis Everette, 35, Southern Pines' 1959 "Young Man of the Year," died Friday. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at Lakeview Presbyterian Church, conducted by the pastor, the Rev. Dan Norman, with burial following in Lakeview Cemetery.

Mr. Everette had been seriously ill for the past two months, with a heart condition and complications. He had spent most of that time in Moore Memorial Hospital, but left the hospital in a wheel chair on October 14 to attend a supper sponsored in his honor by the Southern Pines Elks Lodge. The supper was attended by more than 700 persons. All proceeds were turned over to Mr. Everette as tangible evidence of the regard in which he was held

Dr. Monroe Heads Christmas Seal Sale In County

Dr. Clement R. Monroe, senior surgeon at the Pinehurst Surgical Clinic, will be chairman of the 1959 Christmas Seal Sale of the Moore County Tuberculosis Association, it was announced this week by Dr. J. S. Hiatt, Jr., of Southern Pines, president of the Association.

Sheets of the Christmas greeting seals, with appeal letters, will be mailed to residents of every community in the county next week, part of the 53rd annual Christmas Seal campaign of the National Tuberculosis Association.

Community chairmen are being named throughout the county and will be announced, Dr. Monroe said. An innovation of the Moore County sale this year is that all appeal letters will be mailed from the office of the sale chairman, rather than by the community chairmen, leaving local workers more time to promote and advertise the sale.

For the second year, the Negro division of the Seal Sale will be headed by Samuel Kelly of Carthage who is also a member of the board of directors of the Moore County Tuberculosis Association. He will be assisted by workers in the various Negro communities of the county.

Proceeds of the Seal Sale each year are used for health education, for finding unknown cases of tuberculosis with free x-rays, (Continued on page 8)

District 8-Man Football Title Game Set Here

Carthage High School Bulldogs and Celeste Henkle from Iredell County will clash Friday night on the Southern Pines Athletic field at eight o'clock for the Western District 8-man football title. Winner Friday night will advance to the state championship game to be played on November 27 at a place to be announced.

Celeste Henkle was declared winner of the Catawba Valley Conference when Patterson, the leader, was ruled ineligible because it is a private school with different student residence rules.

The Iredell school has a season record of seven victories and one defeat—at the hands of Patterson on a muddy field last month. Carthage was declared champion of the Sandhill Conference following the refusal of a protest entered by Candor of its loss to Boone Trail.

The Carthage team went through the season with a record of eight victories and one tie, that with Candor last week. The team has averaged better than 35 points per game. Carthage has a strong running and passing attack, from the "T" and single wing formations. Archie Kelly, rangy 6-3 end

Supervisors Of State's Schools To Gather Here

Panel Discussions, Lectures Included On 3-Day Program

"Newer Emphases in Education in North Carolina" will be the theme for the state-wide meeting of North Carolina public school supervisors that will open here Thursday of next week, November 19, to run through Saturday morning.

Headquarters of the convention, which has been held here for several years, will be at the Hollywood Hotel. General sessions will be conducted in Weaver Auditorium.

Registration will begin at 1 p. m. Thursday at the Hollywood. Luther A. Adams, superintendent of Southern Pines schools, will greet the group as the first general session opens in Weaver Auditorium Thursday at 8 p. m.

The local committee for the conference includes Miss Mary Logan, supervisor of Southern Pines schools, who is in charge of arrangements; Mrs. H. C. McPherson of Cameron, director of instruction for the Moore County school system, who is tour chairman; and Miss Mary Currie, supervisor of Lee County Schools, who has charge of decoration of the stage at Weaver Auditorium.

Miss Logan is one of three participants in one of the panel discussions—on foreign languages—in study groups scheduled for Friday afternoon.

At the Friday morning general session in the auditorium, Dr. Charles F. Carroll, State superintendent of public instruction, and Dr. A. C. Dawson, Jr., executive secretary of the North Carolina Education Association, with others, will bring greetings. Dr. Dawson is the former superintendent of Southern Pines schools.

The supervisors will hear a number of distinguished educators from State and Federal education departments and from schools and universities over the State.

The Friday afternoon study groups, with panel discussions, will be in the fields of mathematics, guidance and testing, science, the Southern Association program for elementary schools (Continued on page 8)

Parent-Teacher Games Planned

Sponsored by the Junior class at Southern Pines High School, parent-versus-teacher basketball games will be played in the local gym at 8 p. m., Tuesday, November 24.

Proceeds of the contests will go toward the Junior-Senior dance. There will be door prizes.

Played in former years but omitted last year, the games feature fathers of students playing men faculty members and mothers against women teachers.

First practice sessions will be held Saturday—at 2 p. m. for women and at 8 p. m. for men.

Women wishing to play are asked to notify Mrs. Ray McDonald or Mrs. M. G. McRae. Men are asked to get in touch with Joel Stuts.

'Secret Loves' at Library Gallery

The Library Gallery this week opens its season of exhibits with a mixed show. Paintings, drawings, sculpture, pottery, rugs—all originals and all beloved of their owners. For this is a loan collection to which the owners have contributed their "secret loves," those works which they treasure with special feeling.

Collected principally from residents of Southern Pines and Pinehurst, the exhibit is the joint effort of the Gallery Committee of which John Faulk is chairman. Members include Mrs. C. A. Smith of Pinehurst, Mrs. Emanuel Sontag, Mrs. Alwyn Folley, Mrs. Stanley Austin, Mrs. James Boyd (trustee member from the Library Board), Daniel Harvat and Don Moore.

Also on view this week at the Library is the rug which won a

SENATOR JORDAN

Senator To Speak At Scout Dinner; Awards Scheduled

With U. S. Senator B. Everett Jordan as guest speaker, adult Boy Scout leaders, with their wives and guests, will gather at the National Guard armory on Morganton Road Thursday of next week at 6:30 p. m. for the annual Recognition Dinner of the Moore District Scouting organization.

On the program will be installation of incoming District officers and presentation of awards to outstanding Scout leaders at various levels of the county organization.

J. E. Sandlin, Moore District chairman, will make a progress report on Scouting activities.

The officers will be installed by Barry Beard of Sanford, vice-president of Oconeechee Boy Scout Council of which Moore County is a unit. Awards will be presented by M. G. Boyette of Carthage, Superior Court solicitor of the 13th Judicial District.

W. Lamont Brown, county Recorder's Court solicitor and a prominent Scouter for many years, will introduce Senator Jordan.

The dinner is a "pot luck" affair, Scout officials emphasized, to which each family is asked to bring a food basket.

An attendance of about 700 persons is expected.

Picnic Nov. 28 At Alston House

A family-style picnic at the historic Alston House in Deep River township will be held on Saturday, November 28, from 1 to 3 p. m.

In announcing the event, George Ross of Jackson Springs, president of the Moore County Historical Association, said that members of the Association and all interested persons are invited.

Known as the "House in the Horseshoe," the Alston House was restored by the Historical Association and is now one of the State's historic sites. It was the scene of a skirmish in the American Revolution.

Schools Marking Education Week

Local schools are joining in the nation-wide observance of American Education Week, Supt. Luther A. Adams reports.

Parents and all interested persons are invited to visit the schools this week "to look and ask questions and see what the schools are doing," he said.

Purpose of the week is to place emphasis on the public schools of the nation. A number of exhibits have been prepared in local schools in connection with the observance.

USE DRIVEWAY

Parents who are leaving out or picking up children at the East Southern Pines school, on the Massachusetts Ave. side of the school property, are asked not to stop on the street but to enter the driveway east of the school, Supt. Luther A. Adams told the Parent-Teacher Association Monday night. He said the request comes from the police department. Letting children out in the street is dangerous to those and other children, he said.
