

Speakers Talk To Officers At Police School

Law enforcement officers from Sanford, Hamlet, Robbins, Aberdeen and Southern Pines are enrolled in the Southern Pines Police School, which started here Monday under sponsorship of the Southern Pines police department, with cooperation of the State Bureau of Investigation. Officers from Raeford joined the group Tuesday.

Chief C. E. Newton said 24 officers attended the opening session and more are expected, from several other towns, as the course proceeds. The courtroom in the town hall is being used as classroom.

The course includes eight afternoon sessions, held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, and Monday through Friday of next week, with subject matter covering various important phases of criminal investigation. The first seven sessions start at 1 p. m. and continue till 5 p. m. The final session, Friday, December 4, will include one two-hour lecture, a one-hour examination and, from 5:30 to 7 p. m., a graduation banquet at Jack's Grill.

Top SBI instructors Lewis E. Williams, William V. O'Daniel, Clyde D. Fentress, James R. Durnam, John L. Boyd and William S. Best are scheduled for lectures and demonstrations on such subjects as "Criminal Investigations," "Breaking, Entering, Larceny and Robbery," "Crime Scene Searches, Collection and Preservation of Evidence," "Safe Burglary and Homicide Investigation," "Ballistic Examination," "The Lie Detector," "Chemical Laboratory" and "Drug Investigation." Methods and facilities of the SBI in cooperation with the local department will be explained.

At the opening session, the officer-students were welcomed by Mayor Robert S. Ewing and Town Manager Louis Scheipers, while Judge Harry Fullenwider of Southern Pines Recorders Court and Police Chief C. E. Newton gave introductory talks.

Walter F. Anderson, director of the State Bureau of Investigation, spoke on the function of the policeman in the community and summarized the work of the SBI with emphasis on its relationship to the local department.

SBI Instructor Lewis E. Williams gave the first of three lectures under the general heading of "Criminal Investigations."

Miss Rebecca Cameron Dies; Funeral Held Tuesday For Longtime Resident

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at Brownson Memorial Presbyterian Church for Miss Rebecca Cameron of Southern Pines, who died Sunday at Moore Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

Dr. C. K. Ligon, pastor, conducted the services, assisted by the Rev. Carl Wallace, pastor of the Church of Wide Fellowship, and the Rev. Malcolm Anderton, pastor of the Manly Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Charles Phillips sang at the service. Burial was in Mt. Hope Cemetery.

Miss Cameron was born and grew up on a farm in McNeill Township, daughter of the late David Hugh and Mary B. Cameron, both descendants of Scottish pioneers in the Cape Fear valley. Miss Cameron traced her ancestry to Scots Highlanders who settled in the Barbecue Creek community near Fayetteville. She was of the fourth generation of the family in the United States.

Until her illness two years ago, Miss Cameron—affectionately and widely known as "Miss Rebecca"—was employed for many years at Patch's Department Store, as was her sister, Miss Mary Cameron with whom she lived at 215 N. Bennett St. Miss Mary has been ill for some time and a sister, Miss Gussie Cameron, came here from Raleigh two years ago, to be with Miss Mary and the late Miss Rebecca.

Miss Cameron was hospitalized for nearly seven weeks last summer and was at Moore Memorial Hospital three weeks prior to her death.

Miss Cameron was a member of the Manly Presbyterian Church, but attended the Church of Wide Fellowship prior to the construction of Brownson Memorial Presbyterian Church and continued her association with the Church of Wide Fellowship. She was an active member of that church's Ruth Burr Sanborn Circle which was named in memory of a close personal friend, the late Ruth Burr Sanborn. Members of that circle had charge of the flowers at Miss Cameron's funeral Tuesday. She had also, some years ago, taught a Sunday School Class at the Church of Wide Fellowship.

Noted for her sweet and cheerful disposition, Miss Cameron was interested in people and had a large circle of friends. She found much pleasure in her home, her family and her flower garden which she tended enthusiastically. She was a member of the American Legion Auxiliary.

Surviving are three sisters, Misses Mary and Gussie Cameron of Southern Pines, and Mrs. D. D. Wicker of Hamlet; and a brother, D. Clifton Cameron of Southern Pines.

Puzzled Parents Hear Teen-Agers Tell Story In Court; All Being Sent Home

"This has been a great shock to us. . . They were good boys at home. . . We have no free teenage activities at home, and the boys had no money. . . They got discouraged with their grades at school."

Parents of three 16-year-old boys in Moore recorders court Monday tried to explain why the boys had run off from their homes in Roanoke, Va., stealing a car along the way, breaking into and robbing a service station and trying to steal more cars when theirs broke down.

But the parents made it plain to Judge J. Vance Rowe, they didn't understand it themselves.

The boys, Edward James Setliff, Aubrey Richie Scaggs and Ronald James Atkins, sat with heads hung down as their mothers rose one by one to appeal for their sons. Setliff's father was also present, and the minister of his church, Eddie, he said, had ushered at church the night before they ran off.

Present in court, but as a juvenile taking no part in the trial, was Brenda Gale Nelson, the pretty and pert little 14-year-old who had accompanied the boys on their jaunt. The group told officers here they were Florida-bound, and Brenda Gale and one of the boys planned to marry.

Judge Rowe sentenced the boys to six months on the roads, with all to be held in jail for a week. If during that time, Virginia officers should come for the boys, with warrants on the auto theft charge, the sentences handed down here will be suspended. During the trial Deputy Sheriff J. A. Lawrence, who had handled the case for the Moore County sheriff's department, said he had had a radio message they were leaving soon.

The group of parents left sadly to return home, leaving the boys in jail, but taking Brenda Gale along with them—a case for welfare authorities at Roanoke.

Newspapers Are Widely Read By Working Women

Twenty-two million working women, including 12 million housewives, a majority of whom are in upper income families, represent to advertisers a huge new buying force that can be reached through the newspaper, according to the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

In a just published bulletin in its "Valuable Data" series, the Bureau points out that the number of employed housewives was 33 per cent greater in 1957 than in 1951. This growth has been entirely in families in the upper income bracket of $6,000 and over—an increase of 14 per cent in the six-year period.

Besides working housewives, the female labor force also includes approximately five million women who are widowed, divorced or separated, and more than five million single women.

In evaluating media that reach this market, the Bureau notes that surveys indicate working women, alternating between office work and housework, have little time for nighttime television. And daytime tv, the Bureau says, misses the vast majority of the female labor force, because of timing.

"Newspaper page readership, however, retains its high level of constancy among women," comments the Bureau. "Surveys continue to show that women not only consider newspaper advertising more useful than advertising in other media, but read and consult the newspaper ads before shopping."

The Greeks had a word for it—"thibisjs." Modern doctors call it tuberculosis.

gram explained. Speakers will be R. F. Hoke Pollock, president of the Kiwanis club; Luther A. Adams, superintendent of Southern Pines Schools; Robert E. Lee, superintendent of Moore County schools; C. E. Powers, guidance director of Moore County schools; and James Harrington, Jr., commander of the Moore County National Guard unit, who will speak on military service obligations.

The vocational guidance conferences, taking place in various rooms of the high school, will be divided into two periods: 10:15 to 10:55 a. m. and 11 to 11:40 a. m., with the schedule arranged so that the students can hear more than one discussion in which they are interested.

In addition to representatives of the Army, Navy, Air Force and National Guard, the discussion leaders for the various vocations will be: J. E. Sandlin, Amerotron controller—accounting, business and office management; F. D. Allen, county agricultural agent—agriculture; a representative of National Airlines—air line hostess; O. G. Thomas of the Charlotte Beauty School—beauty culture; the Rev. Carl Wallace of Southern Pines—the ministry; Miss Jean Griffith, educational director for four churches in the Carthage area—Christian education director.

Also: Dr. W. E. Austin of the N. C. State College School of Engineering—engineering; Mrs. Jane Struthers, home economist with the Carolina Power and Light Co.—home economics; Thomas R. Howerton, administrator of Moore Memorial Hospital—hospital administration, laboratory technician and x-ray technician; Mrs. Hollie Sisk of Colonial Furniture Co., Southern Pines—interior decorating.

Also: Ross A. Cadle, dean of admissions at Chowan College, Murfreesboro—journalism; Mrs. Juanita Pickard, superintendent of nurses at Moore Memorial hospital, nursing; Gerald Ellen of the Southern Pines High School faculty—physical education and teaching; Orville T. Smith of King's Business College, Raleigh, secretarial work.

The college conferences will be conducted in the school gymnasium from 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. Parents are invited to attend with their children from 1 p. m. to 3 p. m.

For students who are not interested in the college conferences, a film will be shown in Weaver Auditorium from 11:40 to 12:25. This, also, is an innovation this year.

Lunch will be served in the cafeteria.

The 26 colleges to be represented were chosen by the juniors and seniors of the county's schools through a questionnaire distributed to them on which they were asked to indicate the colleges in which they were most interested.

Mr. Cushman said that the Kiwanis Club is especially pleased to give students and their parents the chance to talk to the large number of college representatives. Such an opportunity, he pointed out, would otherwise be possible for an individual only with a great deal of time, travel and expense. He particularly urged parents to visit the college representatives with their children.

mannance, said, "I have worked in Scouting for many years and have never seen or heard anything like this. I have been proud of our progress in Alamance but you have far surpassed us."

Senator Jordan said that the need for Scouting exists today more than ever.

"America needs leaders who will take time for training boys and girls, bringing them up as useful citizens," the Senator said. "If they do, we'll get rid of a lot of the problems of local, state and federal government."

Present with the Senator was his son, John Jordan, of Saxapahaw, an Eagle Scout. Other distinguished guests were Rep. and Mrs. A. Paul Kitchin of Wadesboro.

The speaker was presented by W. Lamont Brown of Southern Pines, R. M. Cushman of Southern Pines served as master of ceremonies.

Barry Beard of Sanford, Occaneechee Council vice-president, installed new district officers as follows: J. B. Perkinson, Southern Pines, chairman; Fred Chappell, David Drexel and (in absence) Walter Robertson, of Southern Pines, and Taft Williams of Robbins, vice-chairmen; and Dr. J. C. Grier, Jr., Pinehurst, commissioner.

M. G. Boyette of Carthage presented awards for distinguished service during 1959, with the top honor—the Scouters Key—going to E. O. Brogren, Jr., who has served the district in many capacities, this year as chairman of organization and extension.

Douglas David, Pinebluff, District committeeman; Paul Monroe, Pinehurst, neighborhood commissioner; Leon Wylie, Jr., Pinebluff, outstanding Explorer Post adviser; Arthur Rowe, Aberdeen, outstanding scoutmaster; Hurley Short, Pinebluff, outstanding cubmaster; and Mrs. Frank Smith, Southern Pines, outstanding den mother.

In commenting on the fine record made in the small community of Pinebluff for the year, Chairman Sandlin noted that several towns had outstanding programs in 1959, notably Pinebluff, Carthage, Aberdeen and Vass.

Joe Woodall, Moore District executive, was recognized and applauded for outstanding service.

In candle-light, with the armory lights off, W. Lamont Brown presented a plaque "in memory of loyal leadership" to Mrs. Reba L. Sumner on behalf of the late Brooks W. Sumner, Jr., advisor of Air Squadron Post No. 7 at Pinehurst, who died in August. Mr. Brown said that a similar plaque would be presented to the family of Henry Borst, Jr., of Vass, Scout leader in that community, who died recently.

Mrs. Larry Hensley of Pinehurst played an organ accompaniment for group singing, led by Norman Caudle of Southern Pines. James Bralley of Pinebluff Explorer Post 807 sounded the bugle for the opening ceremony, in charge of Raymond Wilson, scoutmaster of Southern Pines Troop 224. The Rev. Carl Wallace of the Church of Wide Fellowship in Southern Pines gave the invocation.

A candlelight closing ceremony was put on by David Drexel, of Southern Pines, with the help of several Scouts.
