SUNRISE THEATRE

With "The Bramble Bush" Warner Bros. has undertaken a daring screen project and one rife with controversy and certain to evoke as much world-wide interest and astonishment as any film of the past decade.

It is based on the novel by Charles Mergendahl, which in itself was a monument of literary controversy and which aroused comment and lifted eyebrows from Cape Cod to Baja California. The film is a Milton Spurling United States Pictures production, and starts Sunday at the Sunrise Theatre.

"The Bramble Bush" cast is headlined by Richard Burton,

Chris McDonald is home for Spring Holidays from State College.

Clifton Munn was home for the weekend from High Point College. Dorothy Leigh VonCanon and Elsie Hill are home for Spring Holidays from Greensboro College.

Vivian Tucker and Carolyn Branson, students at Woman's College, are home for Spring Vacation.

Dot Furr was home for the weekend from Kings Business College in Greensboro.

The West End Woman's Club will meet Thursday night (April 21) at the home of Mrs. J. H. Poole.

Barbara Rush, Jack Carson, Angie Dickinson, James Dunn, Henry Jones and Tom Drake. It was directed in Technicolor by Daniel Petrie, prominent stage and television director, who is making his directorial film bow with this picture.

The picture deals straightforwardly with the scandals of a small Cape Cod town. The more controversial aspects of the story have been treated by director

Petrie for their narrative value only and not for sensationalism.

DAHLIA CLUMPS

Examine each clump (or rootstock) closely before dividing. Have a good sharp knife with a stiff blade. Locate the buds at the base of the old stem, containing the bud, and leave one root attached. You can make as many divisions as you have buds at the base of the stem.
