Sanford Leading In Moore, Poll of 228 Voters Shows

By VALERIE NICHOLSON
A pre-primary poll of Moore County voters on the gubernatorial campaign revealed last week that more than half of them hadn't made up their minds.

With Democrats who would declare themselves, Terry Sanford was far in the lead, though Seawell was gaining in strength. Lake had few votes, though there were hints of "hidden strength"; Larkins barely scratched.

The poll included 228 registered voters queried at random in various precincts, covering most parts of the county—Southern Pines, 75; Carthage, 43; West End, 24; Vass, 17; Aberdeen, 18; Cameron, 15; Robbins, 18, and Pinehurst, 12.

Of these, 188 said they "didn't know"; 10 did know but preferred not to say. Of 90 remaining, 80 were for Sanford; 25 for Seawell; five for Lake; one for Larkins and seven for the Republican candidate, R. L. Gavin.

The "don't knows" appeared about evenly divided among those who were seriously studying the situation, and usually found themselves torn between two; and

Brown Re-elected Moore Democratic Party Chairman

W. Lamont Brown of Southern Pines was re-elected Moore County Democratic chairman at the executive committee meeting held following the county convention in the courtroom Saturday afternoon.

Elected to serve with him during the coming biennium were Bess McCaskill, Carthage, first vice-chairman; T. Roy Phillips, Carthage, second vice-chairman; Voit Gilmore, Southern Pines, third vice-chairman; Mrs. Estelle Wicker, Carthage, secretary, and June Brewer, Robbins, treasurer.

All were reelected except that of Mrs. Wicker. She succeeded Mrs. W. G. Brown of Carthage, who asked that she not be renominated this time. All were by acclamation.

Attendance at the convention, about 100 persons, was somewhat smaller than usual. It was, however, filled with peace, harmony and hope, as Chairman Brown, presiding, presented the prospect of "a great year for the party."

With 15 out of 18 precincts reporting, conditions looked good over the county.

A number of county officials were recognized and several took the occasion to speak briefly on pertinent matters.

John Currie, only county commissioner attending, commented that "we haven't been dragging our feet. Since 1950, our property (Continued on page 22)

Addison Hewlett, candidate for the Democratic nomination for U. S. Senator in the May 28 primary, shook a lot of hands in the Southern Pines business section Monday afternoon, smiling and greeting people on the street and in stores, in the friendly homespun way that has become a trademark of his long, intense, statewide campaign.

The speaker of the State House of Representatives in the 1959 General Assembly was piloted around Southern Pines by Tom Ruggles, his local campaign manager. With them, but remaining in the background, was Jack Ashby of Raleigh who said he considered himself typical of 90 per cent of the Hewlett campaign workers—an unpaid volunteer who wants to help the man from Masonboro Sound near Wilmington, for personal reasons of friendship.

"I think this gives the campaign an enthusiasm that couldn't be obtained in any other way," he said. Mr. Hewlett, who visited around Aberdeen for a while before coming to Southern Pines, didn't go into an elaborate spiel when meeting local people. He introduced himself quietly, said he hoped he'd have the vote of the person he was speaking to, and passed out brochures telling about his life, and his service in the Democratic party.

"I'm Ad Hewlett," he said to one man leaning against a car in front of the Hayes Book Store, "Democratic candidate for U. S. Senator in the primary. I hope you'll vote for me."

"If you come up to West Virginia where I live and run, maybe I would," the man replied. "Well, urge your North Carolina friends to vote for me, then," Mr. Hewlett said.

The West Virginia man didn't give back the Hewlett brochure. And Mr. Hewlett didn't stop smiling.

Service of Two Education Board Members Praised

Resolutions of commendation and appreciation, prepared on direction of the town council and signed by Mayor Robert S. Ewing, were sent this week to John M. Howarth and Dr. Vida C. McLeod whose terms of office on the Southern Pines city board of education will end May 31.

The resolution sent to Mr. Howarth—a member of the board for 22 years and its chairman for the past eight years—recognizes his "dedication to the cause of education in the Southern Pines School District far beyond what his duties would normally require or what the public would expect of a citizen serving in such capacity."

Dr. McLeod, a board member since 1951, in the resolution sent to her, was praised for her "dedicated service to the youth of the Southern Pines community."

At the council's meeting last week, the council named Mrs. Walter F. Harper and Joseph E. Sandlin to four-year terms on the city board of education to fill the

Moore County's Count Up, But 2 Towns Lose

Moore County, Southern Pines, Pinehurst and Robbins have gained population over the last decade, while Aberdeen and Carthage have lost, according to preliminary census returns for the county and its principal towns. The count for other towns and for rural areas was not immediately available.

The Southern Pines gain of 912—better than 20 per cent since 1950—was less than expected. The Knollwood area has been annexed to the town since the 1950 census. The county's gain was about 10 per cent.

Aberdeen's 10-year loss of 88 was explained there as result of persons moving out of the city limits. The same explanation was advanced to account, in part, for the loss at Carthage.

The preliminary returns left no explanation for the county's population increase than that it would be found in the smaller towns or rural areas.

This, too, was unexpected. Recent figures quoted by officials of the Moore County school system show a very small gain in the preliminary rural schools of the system over the past 10 years. Pinehurst's population gain in the decade was only 68.

Thomas T. Hayes, Jr., Local Architect, Honored for Design Sanford Building

An awards jury of three nationally prominent architects chose five entries for recognition in the Honor Awards Program of the South Atlantic District of the American Institute of Architects at its meeting in Winston-Salem Saturday.

First Honor Award went to architect Thomas T. Hayes, Jr., of Southern Pines, for an office building in Sanford, built for the Sanford Brick and Tile Company by contractor L. P. Cox Company of Sanford, N. C.

Mr. Hayes, a native of Sanford who has been in Southern Pines since 1952, is a partner in Hayes, Howell and Associates, local archiitectural firm. Members of the Jury of Award were: Ralph Rapson, dean of the School of Architecture at the University of Minnesota, Hugh Stubbins, architect of Cambridge, Mass., whose works have won international acclaim, and Gordon Bunshaft of New York City, who has received numerous awards for the design of many of the recent prominent buildings in that city.

The jury made the following critique of the award winning entry by Mr. Hayes: "This small office building impressed the jury with its strong overall concept, its quiet and sympathetic use of (Continued on page 8)
