FRANCES BUTLER'S COUNTRY KITCHEN

Southern Culinary Delights Await Adlai Stevenson As Prepared by Iola Clark, Cook at Paint Hill Farm

By FRANCES BUTLER

There is much activity over at Paint Hill Farm this week—especially so in the old-fashioned farm kitchen where Iola Clark, the Ernest Ives' cook of well over a decade, is busy bustling around preparing favorite foods for Adlai Stevenson, Mrs. Ives' famous brother who, will be here for a long weekend at the farm. He is addicted to Southern dishes and Iola means to see that he leaves the Sandhills with palate-tickling memories of black-eyed peas cooked with ham hock, baked yams, fried hominy and other gastronomic delights. Iola recalls that Mr. Stevenson is fond of wild game.

Iola is a native of Aberdeen and has been with the Ives for about fifteen years—shortly after an accident in which she lost her right arm. That does not hinder her, however, from being a wizard in the art of creating savory, appetizing dishes from plain everyday ingredients. She only has to be put in front of a stove with the fixin's to create something grand.

One of the highlights of her life was one first trip to the Ives summer home in Bloomington, Ill., in February, 1947, when Mr. Stevenson launched his campaign for Governor of Illinois. Since that time, she has gone there each summer to cook for the family and Mr. Stevenson, when he is there.

Mrs. Ives says that her brother likes just about everything in Southern cuisine, but his favorites lean to the above dishes along with all kinds of greens—especially turnips and collards. Now, to many people from other sections of the country, collards are more or less frowned upon as being somewhat of a lowly vegetable. "Not so," say all the natives this side of the Mason-Dixon line. It is by far the most popular of the winter greens, and many hostesses have them served to company—coming to the table in the best silver bowl! Along with a hot pepper relish and a basket of little corn dodgers or hush puppies, season with a bit of onion, there's no better eating anywhere. With the greens will go a menu of baked yams, a squash casserole and a baked country ham.

In the dessert line-up there will be a deep-dish Apple Pie, with a special twist to the crust that makes it a little better than average. Iola has kindly given us her recipe for it and also tells us how she makes her pumpkin pie, which she also plans to have on hand.

Another dessert is a Persimmon Pudding, which Mr. Stevenson requested his sister to have during his visit this time. This particular dish, Miss Mary Logan, long-time friend of the family, will be responsible for making. Persimmon Pudding fans will be happy to have the recipe from Miss Logan's files. It is one she has served at committee meetings of the Historical Society here, and it never fails to bring forth enthusiastic appreciation and delight to everyone who indulges in this epicurean sweet.

Miss Logan, known to young and old over the Sandhills, is the Supervisor of Instruction in the Southern Pines schools. She is active in musical and historical circles, and aside from these activities is an expert cook.

Her recipe for the pudding is quite simple to put together, she says, after you have acquired your persimmons and prepared them. The easiest way to do that is to wash them thoroughly and put them through either a collander or food mill, to separate the skins and seeds from the pulp.

PERSIMMON PUDDING

(Miss Mary Logan)

2 cups persimmon pulp
3 eggs (beaten well)
1 3/4 cups milk
2 cups flour
1 1/2 cups sugar
3 tbsps. melted butter
1 tsp salt
1/2 tsp. soda
1/2 tsp cinnamon
1/2 tsp nutmeg
Mix pulp, eggs and milk. Add dry ingredients sifted together. Stir in melted butter. Pour into greased pans (2 9"x9" or 1 large pan.) Bake at 300 degrees for 1 hour. Serve hot with whipped cream. Serves 10.

IOLA'S DEEP DISH APPLE PIE

Use a round baking dish about 2 inches deep. Butter it generously and cover the bottom with a layer of diced apples. Mix together 1 cup sugar, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. nutmeg, 2 tbsps. flour. Sprinkle over apples and continue with apples and sugar mixture until the dish is full. Dot with butter and add 3 tbsps. water. (Note that

IN KITCHEN — Mrs. Iola Clark is pictured in the kitchen of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Ives where she will be preparing meals for Adlai E. Stevenson this weekend. She and her husband, Arthur Clark, who is butler and gardener at Paint Hill Farm, have a home in Aberdeen. (Pilot photo)

Iola dices her apples instead of slicing them.)

For the crust, mix 1 cup flour, 1/4 tsp. salt, 1/3 cup shortening, 1/2 cup sharp Cheddar cheese, grated, and enough cold water to moisten well. Roll out and fit over top of apples. Cut vents for air. Brush crust with a bit of cream. Bake in 375 oven for about 30 minutes. Serve warm, with chilled whipped cream.

PUMPKIN PIE

2 cups pumpkin
3 eggs
1 cup sugar

1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp cinnamon
1 tsp. nutmeg
1/2 tsp. ginger
1/2 tsp. cloves
2 cups milk (scalded)

Mix pumpkin with sugar and spices and add one egg at a time, beating well after each (this keeps pie from being watery). Add scalded milk and mix thoroughly. Pour into chilled 9" pie crust and bake about 10 minutes in hot oven, 450 degrees, then at 300 degrees until firm. For a richer pie, decrease the milk to 1 cup.
