

SUNRISE THEATRE

Tarzan, mighty man of the jungle, so dear to the hearts of adventure-loving fans, does it again in Paramount's newest chapter of his filmed exploits, "Tarzan the Magnificent," which opened today at the Sunrise Theatre. With handsome, muscular Gordon Scott playing Edgar Rice Burroughs' famed strong man for the fifth time, and an excellent cast headed by Jock Mahoney, Betta St. John, Gary Cockrell, John Carradine. "Tarzan the Magnificent" provides plenty of excitement and fast-paced action.

in beautiful color in the lush jungle country of East Africa and affords breathtaking views of that far-off, fabulous land. The wild animals, the wild bush, are thrilling counterpoints to the suspenseful story which concerns Tarzan's peril-fraught journey through the savage jungle to bring a dangerous murderer to justice. He is accompanied by three men and two women who are ignorant of the country, and whose personal problems create further difficulties. In addition, they are constantly pursued by the criminal's equally murderous father and two brothers who are determined to get him free.

SWEETPOTATO ESTIMATE

Based on probable yield reports from growers as of October 1, production of sweetpotatoes is estimated at 2,000,000 hundredweight, and is unchanged from a month earlier, according to the North Carolina Crop Reporting Service. Yield per acre at 80 hundredweight is equal to the record 1959 yield, and is 18 hundredweight above average.

TOP BROILER GROWER—Ralph Lewis of Route 1, Eagle Springs, right, receives a $50 check and congratulations from Ralph Chandler, Jr., president of the Sandhills Kiwanis Club, for winning top place in the club's annual contest for Moore County broiler producers. Second and third place winners were Herman Seawell of Route 1, Carthage and Russell Brown of Route 1, Eagle Springs. The club recognized the winners last week at a luncheon meeting. (Humphrey photo)

4-H MEMBERS HONORED—Honored by the Sandhills Kiwanis Club at a luncheon meeting last week were two Moore County 4-H Club members whose animals were top ribbon winners in the annual Tri-County dairy cattle show of which the club is one of the sponsors. They are Carolyn Kidd of Highfalls and Gary Purvis of Route 1, Robbins—pictured from left in front row above. At right in front row is Miss Mary Braswell, assistant county home economics agent. In back row are, Thomas Hall, assistant agricultural agent in charge of 4-H Club work, at left, and Fleet Allen, agricultural agent. All were guests of the club at a program arranged by Neill McKay, chairman of the Club's agriculture committee. (Humphrey photo)

ONE STROKE AHEAD OF MRS. PAGE

Maureen Orcutt's 153 Takes Top Spot In 3rd North & South Women's Senior

Miss Maureen Orcutt of Englewood, N. J., who won three North and South Amateur championships in a row three decades ago, returned to Pinehurst last week to capture the title in the third annual Women's N&S Senior event, 36 holes of medal play. She added a 75 Thursday to her Wednesday 78 for a gross 153, which nosed out the former national women's champion, Mrs. Julius A. Page, Jr., of Chapel Hill (Estelle Lawson) by a stroke.

Mrs. Page made a mighty try last Thursday to catch the former metropolitan champion, shooting a brilliant 73 on the No. 3 course, but her two-day total missed by a stroke. In third place was Miss Ada C. McKenzie of Richmond Hill, Ont., Canada, with 79-76-155.

The defending champion, Mrs. Charles F. Bartholomew of Brookline, Mass., added an 81 to her previous 79 for 160 to relinquish her 1959 title.

Leading Pinehurst player was Mrs. Stuart H. Patterson with a fine 79 Thursday on top of her 66 of the day before for 165.

Low net in Class A was Mrs. W. G. Boggs of Pittsburgh, Pa., whose 18 handicap from her gross 156 gave her a 138. Low net of the entire field, all classes, was Mrs. J. Joseph Conner of Red Bank, N. J., with 137.
