

THEATRE SUNRISE

Radiating the Gallic charm and joie de vivre of the classic Marcel Pagnol trilogy, Joshua Logan's production of "Fanny" for Warner Bros. opens Sunday at the Sunrise Theatre. Leslie Caron, Maurice Chevalier, Charles Boyer and Horst Buchholz star in the Technicolor presentation which was filmed on location in Marseilles.

Eight years ago the producer-director presented the three popular Pagnol pieces—"Fanny," "Marius," and "Cesar"—as a hit Broadway musical. Though the film is a straight romantic drama enriched with warm humor, Academy Award-winning composer-conductor Morrie Stoloff based his background score on melodies from Harold Rome's score for the Broadway production.

Former Metropolitan Opera basso buffo Salvatore Baccaloni, French character actress Georgette Anys, Raymond Bussieres, Lionel Jeffries and Victor Ban-cen are also featured in the beguiling love story.

BURIED SAFE—Interested onlookers watch as C. D. May, kneeling at left, examines charred wood and trash that were the only contents of a safe found buried several feet underground back of the Broad Street Pharmacy last Thursday morning. The photo was made at Mr. May's auto body shop where he cut into the bottom of the safe with a torch and then knocked part of the bottom out with a sledge hammer. Others in the photo are: Joe Montesanti, Jr., proprietor of Broad Street Pharmacy, kneeling at right; and standing, left to right, Alton Scott, Sam Richardson and Harry Chatfield. Workmen digging a hole for a new oil tank back of the drug store unearthed the safe and it was removed from the hole and carried away by Mr. May and his wrecker. Mr. Richardson, whose memories of Southern Pines go back more than 50 years, recalled that many years ago, there was no building on the Broad Street Pharmacy corner, but that there were frame buildings west of that location on Pennsylvania Ave., and he thinks the safe may have come from one of the offices in those buildings. There were no identifying marks of any kind inside or outside the safe.
