LANDS IN NEW YORK TUESDAY

Jane Owens, International Youth Delegate From Moore, Back in U. S. A.

Among the most enthusiastic passengers aboard the Cunard Lines "Queen Elizabeth" when it docked in New York City on Tuesday morning, were 43 delegates of the International Farm Youth Exchange (IFYE). They returned after four to six months spent living with rural families in 15 European countries.

The two young ladies returning to North Carolina are Lucy Evangelina Linney, Tryon; and Jane Harris Owen, Seagrove, Route 2. Evangelina is returning from Scotland and Jane from France.

Though Jane's home has the Seagrove RFD address, it is in Moore County. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Owen. Her father gained fame as a potter at Jugtown for many years and now operates his own pottery using the traditional hand-turning and firing methods.

The entire delegation of 48 young people—from 28 states—were guests of the Grocery Manufacturers of America at a special "Welcome Home" luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, yesterday.

Following the luncheon, the IFYE began a six-day evaluation session at the National 4-H Center, Washington, D. C. In the nation's capital they are conferring with officials of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and State, their host countries' embassies, and the National 4-H Club Foundation. The delegates are expected to be at home for Thanksgiving Day.

The International Farm Youth Exchange is a 4-H Club people-to-people program conducted by the National 4-H Club Foundation in behalf of the Cooperative Extension Service. It is privately supported by 4-H Clubs, business and industrial firms, foundations and individuals. The Danforth Foundation of St. Louis, Mo., supports IFYE with a five year grant started in 1960.

During 1961, a total of 108 U. S. delegates have been assigned to 41 countries. In return, 109 foreign exchanges have visited the U. S. In both instances, the participants live with rural families as they learn about the life and agriculture of their host countries.

If the 1,325 U. S. delegates who have preceded these young people since 1948 are any indication, each of the returning IFYEs will share his experience through more than 100 personal appearances to audiences of 8,200 people, along with 11 radio and television interviews and some 40 newspaper and magazine articles.
