

PERENNIAL BEST SELLER

'Birds of North Carolina' Available

The most comprehensive bird book ever done on North Carolina birds is still heavily in demand. Since the release in October, 1960, of the revised printing of "Birds of North Carolina," 3,043 copies have been sold.

The popular book has been a perennial best seller for some ten years, but had been out-of-print some time before the revised edition was printed.

The revision, with green-on-gold cloth binding, contains 463 pages covering 411 birds found in the state. It has 47 full-page plates, 24 in color and 23 in black and white.

More than 500 copies of the book were purchased during November and December of 1960, presumably as Christmas gifts, Harry T. Davis, Director of the Department of Agriculture's Museum of Natural History, reports.

ment of Agriculture's Museum of Natural History, reports.

Authors of the original work were H. H. Brimley, for 47 years director of the State Museum, Dr. C. S. Brimley, his brother and for 25 years on the staff of NCDA's entomology division, and Dr. T. Gilbert Pearson, head of the National Audubon Society for many years. It has been revised by Davis in collaboration with Dr. David L. Wray, currently on the staff of the NCDA entomology division and curator of its insect collection.

The revision includes 14 birds new to the state since the previous printing in 1942. The volume begins with a complete story, by the original authors, of the first observations made by the early colonists and all subsequent stud-

Soil, Water Conservation Supervisor Being Elected; Two Nominees Listed

By WILLARD K. KELLER
Soil Conservation Service

Moore County voters will elect this week a supervisor from this county to the board of supervisors of the Upper Cape Fear Soil and Water Conservation District. Two men have been nominated by petition of 25 voters for this office. They are, James Fulk, Route 3, Carthage, and Kent Harbour, Cameron.

Bollet boxes have been placed as follows: W. M. Michael's store, Route 3, Carthage; M. W. Harbour's store, Cameron; Blue Monroe's store, Route 2, Carthage; Aberdeen Supply Co., Aberdeen; Farmer's Exchange Store, Carthage; W. B. Brown's store, Route

1, Robbins; and the Soil Conservation Service Office, Carthage.

Voters may cast their ballots at any one of these business establishments. The voting will end Saturday, December 9. All voters must sign the ballot for it to be counted.

The man elected to this office will serve a 3-year term beginning January 1, 1962. SCWD supervisors serve without pay. They receive compensation only for the four quarterly meetings and the annual State Supervisors meeting, in an amount needed to cover expenses.

Mr. Fulk has served as one of the three supervisors from Moore County for the past three years. His term of office expires on December 31. For two years he has served as chairman of the 10-member, three-county District Board. The three counties in the district are Moore, Lee and Harnett. The other present supervisors from Moore are J. H. Poole, West End, and Herbert McCaskill, Route 1, Robbins.

Mr. Harbour has been serving faithfully for a number of years as a community committeeman for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

ies including commercial exploitation of some of the state's birds. No state funds were appropriated for printing of the book. A Raleigh printer "gambled" with the authors on the sales proceeds only the actual costs of printing without profit. The remainder of the proceeds was set up in a special "revolving" fund for reprinting future revisions.

Orders for the book should be sent to Museum Extension Fund, North Carolina State Museum, Box 2231, Raleigh, N. C. The price is $5.15 including tax.
