

THE PILOT

Walter B. Smith, Local Resident, Killed, Wife Hurt

Lt. Col. Walter Bennett Smith, 68, of 490 S. May St. was killed and his wife, Mrs. Katherine Smith, 62, was injured in a head-on automobile collision near Meridian, Miss., Friday. The Smiths had been residents of Southern Pines for about the past two years, coming here from Connecticut.

A 22-year-old Natchitoches, La., man was the driver of the other car in the crash. He was hospitalized but was reported in good condition.

Mrs. Smith, at first thought to be critically injured—with reported lacerations of face and body, internal injuries and possible fracture of one leg—was said to be recovering satisfactorily, early this week. A direct report on her condition was received here by R. F. Hoke Pollock, attorney, from her brother-in-law, H. G. Kenagy of Bryan, Texas. The Smiths were returning from a visit with Mrs. Emily Kenagy, Mrs. Smith's sister, and Mr. Kenagy, when the accident took place.

According to the report reaching Southern Pines, Mrs. Smith will be a patient at Anderson's Infirmary, Meridian, for about the next 30 days. Whether or not she plans to return to Southern Pines after her recovery was not known here.

Colonel Smith's body was to be cremated and services were to be held at the family burial plot, Guilford, Conn. The Smiths had no children. Colonel Smith's brother, R. A. Smith, lives at Scituate, Mass.

Born at New Haven, Conn., November 21, 1893, Colonel Smith was employed for many years by the Connecticut Department of Agriculture, before his retirement and move to Southern Pines. He was a veteran of Army service in both World Wars I and II, but was not a career Army officer.

In Southern Pines, Colonel and Mrs. Smith attended the United Church of Christ. He was a member of the local Elks Lodge.

New members of the council attending this week's meeting were Mrs. George W. Matheson, Charles Paul and W. Harry Fullenwider. Other members of the council, who had served previously, are Mrs. Frank Cosgrove, David Drexel and Lee Smithson.

Mr. Paul was named chairman of a public relations committee whose members he will appoint. Father Francis M. Smith, pastor of St. Anthony's Church, commended the council for its work during the past year. Sister Virginia, administrator of the hospital was present for the event given by the Sisters for the Council members.

Changes in Dog Law Not Planned; Policy Explained

No changes are contemplated in the town's new dog control law, Mayor John S. Ruggles said today. He said that comments to him on the law have been overwhelmingly in its favor.

The law, which requires registration of all local dogs at the police station and forbids a dog to run at large unless muzzled, has raised objections to some of its provisions from some dog owners and editorially from this newspaper.

An interpretation of key phrasing in the law makes it more lenient than it seems to be, the mayor said. The ordinance defines "at large" as "off the premises of the owner and not under control of the owner or a member of his immediate family or some responsible person either by leash, cord, chain or otherwise." The mayor said that "otherwise" is being interpreted by local officials as permitting a dog to run free in company of owner or a responsible person, if the dog will obey when called. A person could, therefore, exercise an obedient dog in town without having the dog constantly on leash.

On the matter of muzzles, which have been called inhumane by some dog owners, Mayor Ruggles pointed out that the law does not require any dog owner to muzzle his dog. He said he doubted if many dogs would be muzzled, as owners would prefer either to confine dogs or exercise them under control.

A policy planning session has been held to discuss the law, the mayor said. Attending were, in addition to the mayor, Town Manager F. F. (Bud) Rainey, Town Attorney W. Lamont Brown, Police Chief Earl Seawell, Hardy Barber, county dog warden; and Dr. C. C. McLean, veterinarian who is adviser to the county pound which would be used to confine dogs picked up here. The mayor said a satisfactory policy of cooperation with the county (Continued on page 8)

Robert Chatman of the Social Security office at Fayetteville will be the featured speaker.

"Bosses" of the young members of the organization will be guests of their employees or associates at the banquet.

The outstanding young man, who will receive the Distinguished Service Award, is being chosen by a committee of non-Jaycees from nominations made by the public. March of Dimes Begins Campaign; Officers Named

Moore county community chairmen have again undertaken the National Foundation's January drive, with expanded humanitarian objectives and increased emphasis on research.

They are spurred on by the fact that last year's drive failed of its full quota, for the first time since its inception as the March of Dimes 24 years ago. This became the annual fund-raising venture of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis—now the National Foundation, fighting polio, birth defects and arthritis.

Moore County is aiming this year for the same quota, $7,560, which has been set every year, according to J. Frank McCaskill of Pinehurst, campaign chairman. This has been unofficially set as the goal, since the Foundation, with changed objectives has changed this policy also. No specific quotas are being accorded, said McCaskill—"We need all we can get. Though the fight against polio has been nearly won, the other two projects remain very difficult and challenging. Research is under way, but a great deal will be needed and that is very costly."

At a kickoff dinner and meeting Friday night at the Carthage Hotel all the chapter officers were reelected by acclamation: Paul C. Butler, Southern Pines, chairman; H. Clifton Blue, Aberdeen, first vice-chairman; Paul C. Greene, Eureka community, second vice-chairman; Mrs. J. A. Phillips, Cameron, secretary, and C. H. Bowman, Southern Pines, treasurer.

All chapter directors were also reelected—the community chairman: Dr. J. W. Willcox, public (Continued on page 5)

Council Asking State, Railroad Install Signals

A resolution asking the Seaboard Air Line Railroad and the State Highway Commission to cooperate in installation of train warning signals at the intersection of New York Avenue and the Seaboard tracks was adopted by the town council Tuesday night.

Copies were ordered sent to J. Elsie Webb of Rockingham, division highway commissioner, and James Smith, president of the Seaboard.

The resolution points out that Broad Street on both sides of the Seaboard tracks is controlled by the State Highway system and that business development in the area has increased pedestrian and vehicular traffic at the intersection where there are no warning lights or bells for trains.

All council members were present: Mayor John S. Ruggles, and Councilmen Morris Johnson, Felton Capel, J. D. Hobbs and Fred Pollard, along with Town Manager F. F. (Bud) Rainey, Attorney W. Lamont Brown and Mrs. Mildred McDonald, clerk. The only visitors, as at many recent meetings, were a group from West Southern Pines.

Mayor Ruggles named Councilman Hobbs, Attorney Brown and Town Manager Rainey as a committee to investigate and report on the request of E. H. Mills of Pinebluff that Swan Pond and an adjoining area, off Midland Road, be returned to him from the town by quitclaim deed, according to an agreement he had made with the town, when he gave the area to the town about 10 years ago.

The area was given at that time for the town to use for recreation purposes, with the stipulation that if it were not used for that purpose, it could revert to the donor when he wished to claim it.

For a few years after the gift was made, the town set up picnic tables and other recreation facilities near the pond and opened it to public swimming. The swimming, however, was discontinued when a check showed the water was unfit for this purpose as storm sewers drain into the area. Since then it has not been generally used for public recreation purposes.

The council voted to increase the charge for eight-inch sewer extensions from $2 to $25.50 per foot, on information from Manager Rainey that costs of building sewer lines have gone up. Al (Continued on page 5)

8 Degrees Was Low Last Night; 15, Noon Today

The Sandhills is sharing in the nation's knock-down, drag-out fight with winter—the temperature dipping to a frigid eight degrees above zero here early this morning, following more than three inches of snow that fell over the area Tuesday night and Wednesday morning. Falling on unfrozen ground, some of it melted during Wednesday and highways and streets were for the most part clear by the end of the day. Today temperatures are below freezing and the skies cloudy. Patches of ice from the remains of yesterday's snowfall made driving and walking hazardous at some locations. However, no serious accidents attributable to the snow had been reported today.
