Prizes for Flower Arrangements Given At Civic Garden Club

The largest attendance this season was reported at the January 4 meeting of the Civic Garden Club, presided over by Mrs. Charles Mumford.

After the business session, C. A. Fox of Pinebluff, spoke about the need to build organic soil and to preserve the normal fungi and bacteria so necessary to plant life.

The soil here has no food value, the speaker noted, but quickly absorbs natural mulch spaded in and he recommended natural mulches—pine straw, leaves and even chicken feathers.

During the question period following, Mr. Fox answered questions about pruning shrubs, time for transplanting, natural vs. commercial fertilizers, and to spray or not to spray roses.

A social hour followed the meeting with hostesses Mrs. M. Y. Poe, Mrs. R. L. Chandler, Mrs. Wade Stevick and Mrs. Clark presiding at the tea table.

Awards for floral displays were given as follows: blue (first)—Mrs. Dean Dorman for centerpiece for a large tea table; red (second)—Miss Mary Beasley for tea table arrangement; yellow (third)—Mrs. Clark for paper-white narcissus in bloom.

THE REV. MARTIN CALDWELL SPEAKS TO CIVIC CLUB ON HOME FOR AGEING

The Civic Club had a well attended meeting Monday. After a short business session, conducted by Mrs. Avery Evans, president; Mrs. Charles Mumford, secretary, and Mrs. Marvin Cornell, assistant treasurer—the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Virgil P. Clark, program chairman.

Mrs. Clark introduced the speaker, the Rev. R. Martin Caldwell, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, who gave an interesting talk on the subject of the community and the new Home for the Ageing, soon to be established here.

The Rev. Mr. Caldwell said the committee, of which he is a member, visited homes in various places, but the Methodist Home in Charlotte appealed most to all of them, as a place of interesting activities, creative arts, and an atmosphere to keep people young in spirit. The Home here, therefore, will be modeled—largely after this Home and the people who come here to live will have a contributing active interest in the town life of churches, Civic and other clubs.

The speaker told many amusing instances of his experience in which a young person proved to be old in spirit and an 80-year-old, to have a youthful outlook.

Ground for the new Home here will be broken, with service of dedication by a Bishop of the Diocese, on March 4.

Mrs. Dean Dorman's arrangement of camellias and baby's breath on the tea table and Mrs. J. D. Sitterson's flower decorations around the room were much admired.

Mrs. Evans poured tea and other hostesses were Mrs. Warren A. Smith, Mrs. Eunice Culpepper, Mrs. W. C. Hilderman, Mrs. Ralph Chandler, Sr. and Miss Nancy Long.
