General Griffin To Speak June 11 On Civil Defense

Major Gen. Edward F. Griffin, State Civil Defense director, will speak to the people of the Sandhills area at the East Southern Pines High School building (Activities Room, 2nd floor, new wing) on Monday, June 11, at 8 p. m.

General Griffin's subject will be "Fall-Out Shelters and Food." In addition, a film on radiological defense will be shown.

General Griffin was appointed to the position of State Civil Defense Director by Governor William B. Umstead in March, 1954.

Under his direction, Civil Defense in North Carolina has made outstanding progress. Survival Plans prepared under his supervision have been cited as complete, operational and worthy of national citation. They have been used as a guide for other states.

Special invitations have been issued to local, county and city officials. The public is invited.

This program of Civil Defense is sponsored by the 3230th Army Garrison Unit, local Army Reserve unit which is commanded by Col. Jack H. Tribble of Aberdeen.

Moore Commissioners Again Questioned On Hospital Fund Pledge

Two taxpayers visited the county commissioners Monday afternoon during their regular session to ask some pointed questions about their "letter of intent" to give $45,000 in county funds to the Moore Memorial Hospital building campaign. The visitors remained to take the board severely to task for dilatory methods.

Wallace O'Neal of Pinehurst,

Republican candidate for commissioner from District 4 and John Buchholz of Southern Pines expressed their shock at finding that the gift letter of April 18 had never been noted in the minutes, also that, in six weeks since the pledge was made, the county attorney had not been consulted.

They were even more upset to learn that the commissioners had had a meeting Tuesday of last week ("Just a little budget meeting," explained Chairman L. R. Reynolds) and neither one had been notified as they had asked to be.

"It looks as though you don't want people to come to your cotton-picking meetings," exploded Buchholz, a big red-headed former Marine sergeant who lost a leg at Peleliu.

Chairman Reynolds took umbrage at his vigorous tone and announced, "I'll call the sheriff." At which Buchholz spoke even more vigorously, "Go ahead and call him." Reynolds rose and left the room, returning quietly after a few minutes to resume his seat.

O'Neal was made welcome by Commissioner W. S. Taylor, whom he will oppose next November, and said he wanted to attend all the budget meetings.

For Buchholz, it was a return visit, as he had attended the May meeting to ask "What funds will be available for this $45,000 gift, and how do you justify it in the face of so many other needs?" He had then challenged the legality of the gift of public funds to a private institution, and was told the commissioners "had not consulted the county attorney" but planned to do so.

The "letter of intent," which was announced not by the hospital in reporting its $450,000 goal surpassed, set payments at $15,000 per year for the next three years "if financial conditions permit."

Two of the commissioners, Reynolds and John Currie, are directors of the hospital. The "letter of intent" of April 18 was signed by Reynolds and was attested by Mrs. Estelle Wicker, county accountant, who signed as "acting clerk" in the absence of the regular clerk, Mrs. Audrey McCaskill, county register of deeds. The letter was then turned over to W. P. Saunders, hospital campaign chairman, who had visited the meeting.

Fulcher Begins Work As County Forestry Agent

Benny Fulcher, 26, started work June 1 as assistant Moore County farm agent in charge of forestry, one of the very few men occupying such a position in the State and the only one in this part of North Carolina.

With its forests of pine and hardwoods considered Moore county's greatest natural resource, the county commissioners went along wholeheartedly in accepting the farm office's recommendation that such an assistant be hired.

Fulcher, a native of Augusta, Ga., has been living in Troy for the past 15 months, serving as forester in the Uwharrie National Forest. He had been with the U. S. Forest Service since November 1958, working first at the Savannah River plant at Aiken, S. C., before moving to Troy in February, 1961. He is at present commuting from Troy, pending finding a home at Carthage.

He took his B. S. in forestry at the University of Georgia in June, 1958, and was awarded a six-month exchange fellowship under the International Farm Youth Exchange Program, spending several months in Finland during which he lived with five different farm families in various parts of the country.

He was married in April, 1960, to Dorothy Ann Tappan of Athens, Ga., and they have a seven-months-old son, David Allen. She is also a graduate of the University of Georgia, where she took her degree in home economics. She also went abroad under the International Farm Youth Exchange Program, staying with farm families in Scotland.

Dr. Ligon To Speak at Union Church July 1

Dr. C. K. Ligon of Fayetteville, executive secretary of Fayetteville Presbytery and former pastor of Brownson Memorial Church here, will be the speaker at the annual homecoming of Union Presbyterian Church, between Vass and Carthage, to be held Sunday, July 1. The service at 11:15 a. m. will be followed by a picnic lunch.

Jaycees to Start Business Section Clean-up Project

Local Jaycees are launching a paint-up, clean-up project Saturday morning when members will turn out to paint town park equipment, including playground devices, supports for tennis nets and spectator seats at the tennis courts.

Saturday of next week, the young men plan to go from one end of Broad Street to the other, picking up paper and trash.

Other work is scheduled for the following Saturday.

Purpose of the project, it was stated, is to encourage maintenance of a clean business district and park area, to make the town more attractive for shoppers and visitors, as well as for local residents.

Gary Griffith is chairman of the project.

Many Books For Young People Added at Library

Over 100 new children's books have been placed on the shelves of the Southern Pines Library, for use of children and young people during the summer, Mrs. Stanley Lambourne, librarian, announced this week.

There are picture books for those unable to read and easy books for beginners, the librarian said. A diverse collection has been assembled for the middle age group, including stories of adventure, songs to sing, music to play, and books about occupations, athletics, hobbies and animals, as well as true stories and fiction.

Teenage boys will find books on big league baseball, submarines and automobiles, while for girls there are volumes on cooking, needlework and painting and a number of exciting fiction books. There is no charge for a library card to students in the local schools, Mrs. Lambourne pointed out. All young people are invited to go to the library register.
