LOCAL HOSPITALS WILL BENEFIT FROM FASHION SHOW, RACE MEET

On this first day of Spring, a forward look at the pre-Easter schedule of social events reveals a jam-packed week immediately preceding Easter, April 13.

Two local hospitals, Moore Memorial in Pinehurst, and St. Joseph's in Southern Pines, will benefit from two events calendar for that week — the Spring Fashion Show to be staged by Razzook's in the Ballroom of the Carolina Hotel on Monday night, April 8, and the Stoneybrook Hunt Race Meeting Saturday afternoon, April 13, and the Steeplechase Ball which will follow the race that evening at the National Guard Armory.

At mid-week, Wednesday, the 10th, the annual Home and Garden Tour will be held with five Southern Pines homes and gardens and the beautiful gardens of "Homewood," the estate belonging to Mr. and Mrs. D. K. Bullens, open to tour visitors throughout the day. This is a project of the Southern Pines Garden Club and attracts well over 500 out-of-towners yearly.

This will be the first year for the Steeplechase Ball, which has a distinguished list of Sandhills residents as patronesses.

Paul Kelly's 18-piece orchestra, a reportedly top-notch band from Greenville, will play for dancing at the semi-formal affair, scheduled from 9:30-1:30, with a mid-night supper to be served.

A majority of the members of the General Assembly now meeting in Raleigh, and their families, are expected at the Stoneybrook races in the afternoon and will be entertained beforehand at a picnic luncheon on the grounds by House Speaker Clifton Blue of Aberdeen and Sen. William P. Saunders.

Youth Fellowship To Have Family Night At United Church

Membership training sessions are held at 10:30 a. m. each Saturday.

The choir will rehearse as scheduled on Wednesday nights, and on Thursday, March 26, the Board of Christian Education and teachers will meet at 8 p. m. for a training program.

4-H Club Members To Present Annual Talent, Fashion Shows Friday Night

The annual 4-H Talent Show and Fashion Parade will be presented Friday night, March 22, at 7:30 o'clock in the Carthage School Auditorium. Community 4-H Club Leaders report that there is much enthusiasm for this 4-H activity and that many club members from all parts of the county are planning to participate.

In keeping with the current national interest in walking, the theme will be "Talent and Fashions Along a Fifty Mile Hike," reports C. E. Lewis, Jr., associate agricultural agent. The "hike" over Moore County will introduce the audience to many talented 4-H Club members, with a variety of acts including dances, vocal numbers, and pantomimes.

SYMPHONY

The orchestra brings to the evening adult concert a young singer, Miss Sally Wyly, who, while hardly more than a beginner, received rave notices during the tour.

In expressing his enthusiasm for Miss Wyly's voice Dr. Swalin recently told a member of the Music Association that he considered the North Carolina girl one of the most promising artists ever to appear with the orchestra.

"She has a lovely, true, soprano voice," the director stated, "and a stage presence of much charm." Miss Wyly will sing several operatic numbers, concluding with an aria from "La Traviata." Opening with an overture by Rossini, the program continues with Mozart's charming "A Little Night Music." The composer Dvorak will be represented in the beautifully melodic Largo from his "New World" symphony, with its "going home" theme. A selection from Holst featuring a viola solo again stresses the melodic line. Debussy's "Clair de Lune," as arranged for small orchestra, offers a brilliant opportunity to the string section.

Following the intermission the program is enlivened among other numbers by two dance tunes: the stately French rigaudon and the rollicking British suite named for the gay Restoration "lady" Nell Gwyn. A medley of airs from Broadway musicals brings the program to a close.

JUDGE SETS

Blasko had cut his hand on the broken glass, shedding considerable blood, a factor which had assisted the police with their investigation.

The Saturday before, Criscoe had been tried in Moore County Recorder's Court at Carthage for larceny of an electric typewriter from the Carthage High School, on a warrant taken out by the principal, H. L. Brinkley. The warrant was amended by the judge to charge receiving instead of larceny, and judgment was continued for Criscoe on payment of costs, when it could not be shown that he had actually stolen the typewriter. He had sold it, however, for $50 to a local businessman, who, on learning that it was sought as stolen property, notified officers.

Criscoe admitted in the Moore court that he had sold the typewriter, but claimed he had bought it for $25 from someone he couldn't remember. The typewriter was returned in good condition, which Judge J. Vance Rowe noted was a factor in sentencing the youth lightly.

isolation. Present to lead the discussion and answer questions will be three outstanding educators: Dr. Dallas Herring, chairman of the State Board of Education; Dr. E. E. Ready, head of the Department of Curriculum Study and Research of the State Department of Public Instruction, and Dr. Raymond A. Stone, assistant to Dr. Ready.

The proposed college would be a cooperative project of the State and county boards of education, said Robert E. Lee, superintendent of county schools.

Moore County was placed in the running for a college two weeks ago by Jere McKeithen of Aberdeen, chairman of the county board of education, and Supt. Lee, who joined with Rep. Blue in a conference with Drs. Herring, Ready and Stone at Raleigh.

The county's part would be providing the physical plant, which would then be completely equipped by the State. Actual operation would be a joint affair, with 65 per cent of expenses borne by the State, 20 per cent from student fees and 15 per cent from the county.
