Laundry Installs New Way To Store Furs, Other Items

A modern "Polarized" system of storage for furs, wool garments, rugs, drapes and other household items needing protection has been installed by Carter's Laundry here, marking a new service for the Sandhills.

Featuring controlled refrigeration, humidity, ventilation and fumigation, the installation is an insulated, fireproof, masonry room, 33 by 15 feet in size and 11 feet high, built inside the south wall of the laundry building on New York Ave. It will hold over 3,000 garments and many other items and is the only such installation in Moore County, reports Jack Carter, laundry proprietor. All stored items can be insured for full value.

Also, Mr. Carter said, the laundry is now prepared to clean and glaze furs—a service hitherto not available locally.

The "Polarized" system features "cooled storage" at from 55 to 60 degrees, eliminating frost damage to furs and other disadvantages of sub-freezing storage. Periodic fumigation makes possible the higher temperature, Mr. Carter explained.

The new installation has bank vault doors whose combination is known only to the company's manager, controlling all access to the special room.
