Biggest block to the smooth operation of the Veterans Administration program seems to be the tendency of the American veteran to change his place of residence.

Sunrise Theatre

The most modern "hospital" in the United States today is a movie set at Universal Studio.

Designed for use in the Ross Hunter production, "Tammy and the Doctor" (to be seen at the Sunrise Theatre) Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, starring Sandra Dee, Peter Fonda, Macdonald Carey and Beulah Bondi, the hospital set is completely functional and could even be used for actual surgery.

Covering virtually all of the studio's second largest stage, the set includes admitting room, doctors' offices, patients' rooms, operating room, doctors' wash room and nurses quarters.

Fully half of the picture was shot in various parts of this set—even including many of the romantic scenes between Sandra and young Fonda, who is making his movie debut in this film after scoring a startling success on Broadway.
