

Collections Of Blood Next Week Can Save Program

Two of the three blood collections that will determine whether Moore County will keep or lose its Red Cross blood program will be held next week.

A bloodmobile from the Charlotte distributing center will be at the high school gym in Pinehurst from noon to 6 p. m. on Thursday, November 14.

The next day, Friday, November 15, the bloodmobile will be at the Aberdeen Baptist Church from 8 a. m. to 2 p. m.

A third and final visit for this year will be made to the West End High School, on Wednesday, November 27, from noon to 6 p. m.

John R. Hauser, chairman of the Moore County Blood Program, said this week that letters have been sent to 304 persons who have signed "replacement pledges" and have not made good on the pledges in previous collections in the county.

These pledges are signed by friends and relatives of hospital patients to assure replacement of blood from the Red Cross center used by the patients, the blood to be given at the donor's convenience when the bloodmobile visits this county.

Failure of persons who have pledged to make good on their pledges is the single most important reason the blood program in this county is failing, Mr. Hauser said.

He recalled that the program in the year ending June 30 supplied 1,397 pints of blood to Moore County residents, but that only 879 pints were donated from this county—leaving the county 518 pints short of its quota. The Red Cross says it must discontinue the blood service to Moore County unless donations equal the blood used.

As the situation stands now, the program will be lost unless 434 pints are given in the two visits next week and the final visit on November 27, the chairman stated.

Mr. Hauser pointed out that donors from anywhere in the county may give at the Pinehurst and Aberdeen collections and urged all persons interested in saving the blood program to give at one of the next three visits.

Under the program, blood of all types is supplied free, except for a small service charge, to patients in the two hospitals in this county or to Moore County residents in hospitals elsewhere that cooperate with the Red Cross (Continued on Page 8)

OPEN HOUSE SCHEDULED AT 2 MEDALLION HOMES

Two new homes that have been awarded the Gold Medallion designation by the Carolina Power & Light Co. will be open to the public from 2 to 6 p. m. Saturday and Sunday. Both are located on W. Rhode Island Ave. and were built by Sandhill Homes, Inc. They feature the all-electric heating and other electrical specifications required for the Gold Medallion title.

2 SHOOTINGS WITHIN 24 HOURS

Husbands Held In Deaths Of Wives

Two Negro women, mothers of young children, are dead in two separate shooting cases under investigation in Moore County this week. The husband of one of them was also shot, but not fatally.

In both cases, officers said, it is indicated the husband fired the fatal shot, although one of them claimed it was accidental.

Both are now being held on murder charges for grand jury action at next week's term of Moore County Superior Court.

The shootings took place in the homes of the couples, the first on West Pennsylvania Avenue here, shortly before midnight Sunday, the second about 9:30 p. m. Monday in the Summer Hill community, two and a half miles southeast of Carthage.

In Southern Pines, Mrs. Ruth Bennett was killed by a .38 automatic admittedly fired by her

STARTING THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 14

250 Expected in 10th Golf Carousel

Marking its 10th anniversary as an annual local sports event, the Southern Pines Golf Carousel, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, will open Thursday of next week with an entry list of about 250 players.

Qualifying rounds will be played Thursday, said Fred Teeter, general chairman for the Jaycees, and match play will begin on Friday, to run through Sunday, with all entries using both the Pine Needles and Southern Pines Country Club courses.

Play will be in flights of eight teams, with the exception of the championship flight of 16 teams. The many trophies to be presented will be awarded at the Southern Pines Country Club at 5 p. m., Sunday, November 17.

Carousel golfers play in teams of two, in a men's division and a smaller mixed division for teams of men and women players. There is no women's division.

Teeter said the entry list is nearly filled, but that some local players could be accommodated. He said golfers, many of them former Carousel players, are entered from as far away as Canada and the Mid West, with many entries from throughout the East and Southeast.

Two social events will be highlights of the tournament—a party for all contestants at the Pine Needles Lodges and Country Club, Thursday evening, November 14, and a dance at the National Guard Armory Saturday night, November 16. As in previous years, this dance will be open to the public.

Dance tickets can be obtained from any Jaycee or at the Hobbs insurance office, Patch's Togg Shop or the Style Mart store.

The Carousel is the Jaycees' main fund-raising endeavor, with proceeds going to their park playground equipment fund and other civic work. It brings a large number of golfers, many with wives who may or may not play in the Carousel themselves, to the Sandhills area for the season's first large local resort event.

Bazaar on Tuesday To Benefit Club's Building Project

The Moore County Wildlife Club will sponsor a bazaar Tuesday, November 12, from 7 to 10 p. m. at the Village Chapel Hall at Pinehurst, featuring fun and entertainment along with the sale of handmade articles, homemade foods, "white elephants, Christmas decorations, bird feeders, bird houses and other items.

Refreshments will be sold, and exceptional door prizes will be awarded. Admission will be by ticket only, which may be purchased in advance from club members or at the door Tuesday night. The members will also have to pay admission, even those working in the bazaar, as it will be a special benefit event, the first to be held by the club, for the building fund of a clubhouse to be constructed near Niagara. Mrs. Albert Tufts of Pinehurst, chairman, outlined the plans at Tuesday night's monthly supper meeting of the club, held at the Whispering Pines Restaurant with a record 115 members and (Continued on Page 8)

Driver Education Course For 16-18 Group Scheduled

Worth McDonald of Carthage, driver education representative of the Department of Motor Vehicles, announced this week that driver education courses, sponsored by the vehicles agency, have been scheduled for this area.

Traffic safety education was made mandatory by an act of the 1963 General Assembly for all 16-18-year-old youths wanting a driver's license, McDonald explained.

The first course will begin Tuesday, November 12, at the National Guard Armory here, 4 to 6 p. m., continuing for four weeks, two hours each Tuesday—for a total of eight hours of instruction.

The new courses are being offered in compliance with the law and will be available in all 100 counties. They are designed to (Continued on Page 8)

Voters Give Strong Approval To School, Community College Bonds

12 Members Of College Board To Be Named

The next step in the establishment of the Moore County Community College will be appointment of a 12-member board of trustees.

Four are to be appointed by the county commissioners, four by the three boards of education (Moore County, Southern Pines and Pinehurst) and four by Governor Sanford.

Already considerable interest is stirring in regard to membership on the board, with indications from some citizens that they would like to be trustees, or suggestions for possible choices.

The State Board of Education is holding its regular meeting today (Thursday) at Raleigh, receiving news of the successful passage of the Moore County bond issues. The board is expected to hand down instructions as to the next immediate procedures.

The college charter will be issued to the trustees when the board is formed, and from then on running the college will be their job. They will select a college president, employ an architect and move ahead with plans for the building.

The State Board of Education has evidenced much interest in the Moore County project from the beginning. It was one of the first two allocated last September after passage of the enabling legislation, and the first to hold its bond issue election. Rockingham, the other county to which allocation was made, has not yet voted on its bonds.

HOMECOMING SERVICE

Numerous former members and friends of Our Saviour Lutheran Church are expected to join the congregation for a "homecoming service" in the Civic Club at 11 a. m. Sunday, to be followed by dinner in the club building at 12:45. Pastor Jack Deal said this week.

VETERANS DAY CLOSING NOTED

No extensive observance of Veterans Day, Monday, November 11, appears likely in this area.

Banks will be closed for the day. Post offices will be on holiday schedule, with windows closed and no home delivery in Southern Pines.

The Moore County courthouse at Carthage will be closed Monday and a term of Superior Court there next week will open Tuesday.

Southern Pines town offices and the Information Center will close. ABC stores in Southern Pines and Pinehurst will be closed Monday.

Most private businesses and offices, here and over the area, including The Pilot, do not plan to close.

Propositions Endorsed In All Precincts

Voters in all 19 Moore County precincts approved all three propositions in the county's $4 million bond election Tuesday, for an unexpectedly high majority in favor of the education projects.

The best vote was for the comprehensive community college—nearly seven to one, county-wide.

The unofficial count on the three issues was: $1 million for construction of the college plant, 4913 to 710; $3 million for public school construction and improvement of existing facilities, 4793 to 824; authorization of an estimated $36,000 annual maintenance fund for the college, 4554 to 1009.

Voting in most precincts was light in the early part of the day but increased until poll-closing time, when the total of more than 5,600 had voted—more than half of the county's approximately 10,500 registration.

County and school district leaders expressed jubilation over results. While victory by a wide margin had been confidently predicted, fears had been felt for possible "unseen opposition." It never materialized.

The election followed an intensive information campaign in all districts of the county during the past two months.

At the November meeting of the board of county commissioners in Carthage Monday, board members informally expressed their appreciation to W. P. Saunders, chairman, and Robert S. Ewing, vice-chairman, of the county steering committee on behalf of the bond issues, for their work in leading the campaign for approval of the bonds. Both are residents of Southern Pines.

This was the first county bond issue vote for a comprehensive community college since the General Assembly last May approved the establishment of five of them as nucleus of a statewide network. Moore County's college is one of two allocated by the State Board of Education last September, on condition the counties finance the construction of the plants.

Dr. I. E. Ready, director of the State Department of Community Colleges, referring to Moore's as "our pilot project," told a crowd of campaign workers at Carthage last week, "The eyes of North Carolina will be upon you."

Rep. H. Clifton Blue of Aberdeen, Speaker of the House, urged his fellow citizens to "Speak with a loud voice which will be heard from Murphy to Manteo." Results of the voting indicated his plea was heeded throughout the (Continued on Page 8)

AN EDITORIAL

That Resounding 'Aye'

As late returns Tuesday night showed that the vote for the education bond issue was going through, Moore County people rejoiced. That roar of "AYE" which had fairly shaken the walls and popped the roof of the crowded Carthage courthouse last spring, resounding in reply to the question, "All in favor . . ." had borne fruit.

This news comes as no surprise to most people. There has never been a bond issue for educational purposes proposed in the county that has not passed and passed easily. The population of the county is largely descended from Scottish stock and it's a truism that, though Scots are careful with their money, when it comes to supporting education for their children they go all out. In itself, surely, that's being careful with your money; shrewd, wise, far-seeing. After all what is more worthwhile from a money standpoint, if from no other, than education for your children? And of course the Scots were helped in this fine effort by the descendants of Yankees, Germans, French, shrewd, far-seeing people, too.

In voting to spend money for schools and, above all, for the community college, Moore County has shown courage and wisdom and a fine heartening faith in itself. A people who will so confidently pledge their future stability and prosperity is a people that can be relied on to go far and go in the right direction. In a time of uncertainty, in a nation shaken by the weight of vast responsibility, in a world confused and threatened by war and even ultimate annihilation, it is good to feel this surging faith in the future, symbolized by, and indeed embodying the very nature of "education for our children."

The Pilot congratulates the people of Moore County and, to those who worked so well and so hard to awaken and inform the voters of the issue at stake, this newspaper offers special thanks.

Now It's 'Whispering Pines, N. C.'

Whispering Pines, the expanding resort and recreation community a few miles north of Southern Pines, marked an important event Friday—the beginning of post office service that entitles it to the separate address, "Whispering Pines, N. C."

Postmaster Gilbert Bailey of Carthage, shown in photo above, was on hand to supervise the start of operations in the community's Administration Building, near the Country Club, where post office facilities, offering regular postal services, have been set up. The new installation is designated officially as a rural station of the Carthage post office. Shown with Mr. Bailey are the two Whispering Pines employees who have been named postal clerks working under supervision of A. B. Hardee who received the government appointment as clerk in charge. They are Mrs. Sandra Bullock, holding a new white mailbag put in use Friday, and Miss Sarah Bam-bauer. The group is standing by the door of the Administration Building, headquarters of the several Whispering Pines enterprises, (Continued on Page 8)
