ENCOURAGE CHILDREN TO READ!

Books On Lincoln, Born In February, Available From Regional Libraries

BY BETSY CADIEU
Secretary, Sandhill Regional Library

This month—February 12—our nation will again observe the birthday of Abraham Lincoln, our great Civil War President and America's most renowned self-taught scholar. Do you remember the stories of Young Abe and the burning desire for knowledge that forced him to hike through snow drifts many miles to borrow books that he read by the flickering light of the fireplace?

How do you think Lincoln the boy would react to today's modern public library, where the subject matter in thousands of books covers virtually everything a child growing into maturity needs to know? He would have been thrilled beyond comprehension! You have it within your power to guide your child into the same lifelong interest in "finding out why" that motivated Mr. Lincoln. Take your child with you to your local library, Bookmobile or County Library. Let him pursue his interests in everything from art and architecture to whales and zoology. Encourage him to read and encourage him to make the "library habit" part of his life. Help him fan into flame his natural spark of curiosity.

Here are a few of the interesting and inspiring biographies of this great man available for readers of all ages from the Sandhill Regional Library through your local library, the bookmobile or your county library:

ABRAHAM LINCOLN, by Ingrid and Edgar d'Aulaire. An introductory biography and picture book for younger children.
ABRAHAM LINCOLN, by

Enid La Monte Meadowcroft. An extremely readable biography for older children.
CARL SANDBURG'S six volume work on Lincoln which has been called "probably the finest re-creation of Lincoln" is also available in a ONE-VOLUME abridgement.

BENJAMIN P. THOMAS'S biography is based particularly on the Robert Todd Lincoln collections which became available in 1947.

Fan into flame your or your child's desire for knowledge by visiting your local and county libraries, this week!
