This is the time when horned larks once more get into the news.

A group of seven bird watchers went out to the airport last Friday, in the course of a planned bird research trip in that area and spotted quite a flock of the curiously "horned" larks. They seem to make their homes in the most scarp spays along the landing strips of the Knollwood Airport where the broom-straw makes a cozy nesting place. The birds can be seen rising swiftly into the air in the way all larks do.

Also spotted last Friday were ruby-throated hummingbirds, barn swallows, swifts, and blue-grey gnatacatchers, as well as others of the spring migrations. In all 50 species were seen and duly listed as the seven enthusiasts scoured the countryside in the Lakewood, Little River Farm direction as well as local feeding stations.

The trip was the second meeting of the Bird Club this year, the opening of bird-watching season having taken place at the headquarters, 160 S. Bennett Street, the previous Friday. Meeting - time is 9:30 each Friday; all bird enthusiasts are welcome.

Miss Haney Speaks At St. Joseph's Guild Meet Tuesday

In special recognition of National Library Week, St. Joseph's Hospital Guild had as a speaker at its monthly meeting Tuesday, Miss Hollis Haney, director of the Sandhills Regional Library.

North Carolina, Miss Haney told the members, has been foremost in the library field as far as colleges and universities are concerned.

She discussed the duties of librarians, telling of the bulletins they receive to assist with the selection of books.

The library, she said must consider supply in relation to demand—the strongest demand does not always represent the greatest value—and also the budget for books.

"The best reading for the largest number at the least cost—" on this motto, said the speaker, hang all the law and the prophets in the scriptures of library book selection.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. Audrey K. Kennedy, Mrs. Lee Smithson, vice president of the Guild, presided at the meeting, held at St. Joseph's Hospital. Mrs. Frank Cosgrove was hostess at the tea following.

Miss Mary Logan of Mars Hill, former supervisor of the Southern Pines-Pinehurst Schools, spent Sunday night as a guest of Mrs. James Boyd at Weymouth. She attended the gathering that afternoon at the Alston House, where she photographed the leading characters in the festivities sponsored there by the Moore County Historical Association.
