State Active In Beef Promotion

Plentiful supplies of high-quality wholesale beef are now on the market, and consumer attention to the tasty farm product is being drawn by active participation of the N. C. Department of Agriculture in a nationwide beef promotion program.

Agriculture Commissioner L. Y. Ballentine said that displays pointing up the fine qualities of beef are going up in restaurants and grocery stores across the state as reminders to patrons.

"It is particularly significant that this program underscoring beef will really get under way during 'Made in North Carolina Week', April 27-May 2, which has been designated by Governor Terry Sanford to promote Tar Heel products. Beef production is close to a $40 million farm industry in this state and growing," he said.
