You are going to hire a man to meet the most important challenge facing the state of North Carolina.

Here's the challenge:

- At this very minute over 80,000 Tar Heels are out of work!
- This week countless workers in our state will get paychecks too small to provide their families a decent standard of living.
- A few days after your vote 53,193 young people will graduate from our high schools. Many will not go on to college. They will be out looking for jobs.
- Every year thousands are leaving their jobs on the farm to find work in town.

Here's why the challenge must be met and met quickly:

If you and your children are to have the improved educational program, the improved highways and roads... and all of the many other improvements so needed for progress, this state must have the dollars to pay for them. Those dollars can come only through more paychecks and better paychecks for our people.

Here's how Dan Moore will meet the challenge:

Dan Moore will face the challenge with this practical program:

- Expand the State's full-time staff of "in-
- Locate a qualified, full-time Resident Industrial Development Specialist in each Congressional District who will:
 - Work with each community in his District to attract new industry.
 - Strengthen and expand existing industry.
 - Encourage the start of home-grown industries.
- Bring the Governor and his office into closer, more direct contact with the efforts being carried on throughout the State to attract new industry and expand existing plants.

REMEMBER, when you elect our next governor, you will be hiring the man who must meet the most important challenge facing this State. Dan Moore is the man best qualified to meet the challenge.

Here's why Dan Moore is qualified to meet the challenge:

- He is the only applicant for the job who has actually had practical business experience.
- He is able to understand what industry looks for in picking the site for a new plant.
- He is on a first-name basis with the men of American industry who decide when and where a new plant is to be built.
- He's been a "working man" since childhood.

Dan Moore is the man who is best qualified to meet the challenge.
