

Aircraft Manufacturing Firm Will Locate In Ellerbe - Norman Area

The Florida aircraft firm which had been considering Moore county, among others, as a site for a manufacturing plant announced last Thursday it would set up its headquarters and build its plant between Ellerbe and Norman, in Richmond county.

A five-acre tract has been selected there, according to the announcement by Willard Olson, head of the firm.

Details of the financing were not included in the announcement. However, on his visit to Moore, when the county commissioners agreed to give him a site on county land adjoining the airport, he indicated construction would have to be financed 80 per cent through the Small Business Administration. The other 20 per cent was to be raised locally and local stock purchases of $300,000 were also asked. Businessmen of Ellerbe and Norman were reported to be well along on pledges to buy stock, with about $60,000 pledged last week and the local campaign continuing.

Olson said he will manufacture a small three-to-four place aircraft, popular in Europe, for which he has the exclusive U. S. franchise, to be made primarily of plywood and dacrone. He estimated that about 60 persons would be employed during the first year in the highly mechanized operation, and that 300 planes would be produced and shipped out during the year.

Olson is president of Olson Industries, Inc., of Sarasota, of which the new firm, Olson Aircraft Corp., of Venice, Fla. is a subsidiary.
