Now Glamorous Summer Job At Fair Is Over, Judy Owens Heads For West

The World's Fair has struck its tent at Flushing Meadows and Judy Owens, Pinehurst-ite who has been working there all summer, is going west Friday to a new job.

The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Francis L. Owens of Pinehurst, Judy graduated from Catholic University as a nurse in 1962. When the Fair opened, she was working for the fabulous "Wonder World," at the First Aid Station.

When this show closed, Judy moved to the Boat Marina's Information and First Aid Station where she waited out the Fair's duration, meanwhile seeing just about all there was to see of the Fair.

In New York, she stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Rudel at their Fifth Avenue apartment. The Rudels are frequent visitors here with his mother, Mrs. C. M. Rudel, at her home west of the Carolina Hotel.

With the Rudels, Judy late in the summer spent a week aboard the "Tabor Boy," cruising with a group of educators and winding up at the International Yacht Races in Newport, R. I.

The "Tabor Boy," built in Belgium, and used by the Nazis as a training ship in World War II, was bought by an American after the war and donated to Tabor Academy, boys preparatory school in Marion, Mass.

On Friday, Judy and a friend from New York City plan to drive west with Aspen, Colo., as their eventual destination. There, Judy will go to work at the Aspen Hospital. Her interest in Aspen, aside from the job, is the skiing for which the resort is noted in the winter. In the summer, the tiny town at 14,000 foot elevation—"Good heavens, you'll have to take a supply of oxygen," Judy's mother told her—spills over with musicians and music lovers there for the yearly Festival and to attend the Institute of Music.

Judy fell in love with the popular winter sport last season when she accompanied Mary Frances Howe of Pinehurst on a "skiing weekend," at a nearby mountain resort.

Local Resident Shoots 2nd Ace

Year-round Pinehurst resident, A. Parker Hall, Jr. made a hole-in-one, the second in his golfing career, on October 26 at the Pinehurst Country Club. Attending his perfect five-iron shot from the seventh tee of the Number Three Course were John W. Lindsay, William C. Harris and Dr. Michael T. Pishko.

His first ace, said Hall, was at the Country Club of New Canaan (Connecticut), 10 years ago.

N-S Defending Champ Wins Putting Prize

The Julia Ball Memorial Trophy given in last Wednesday's putting contest for competitors in the North-South Senior Women's Invitational, was won by the tournament's defending champion, Miss Ada MacKenzie of Richmond Hill, Ont.

Miss MacKenzie was the 1959 winner of the contest, inaugurated in 1958 to honor the memory of the late Julia Ball of Bala-Cynwyd, Pa., a longtime Pinehurst winter visitor and Silver Foils Club member.

TEERING OFF * WITH deNISSOFF

Apparently we have a poltergeist in the office. This gleeful ghostie, acting further to heckle us in the already hectic atmosphere of the newsroom during pre-election week, made off with our "Teering Off" column.

Perhaps the playful pixie objected in some way to our reference to expected Halloween hijinks (poltergeists are notably touchy spirits, we've heard.) Anyway, no copy was to be found anywhere of the two pages we know we wrote last Friday; no type was set, nobody remembered a thing about it.

The whole column just disappeared. What appeared under the Teering Off head in last week's issue was a short addition we whacked out Tuesday, to be tacked on to the column we supposed was already standing in type.

A brief reconstruction of the main body of the column might still be in order here, since it had to do with upcoming events in November—and the Pinehurst calendar is chockful of these.

First listed is the annual John D. Chapmans Memorial Mixed Foursomes; in play today, Thursday, by Silver Foils and Tin Whistles Club members, the tournament was initiated as a memorial to the parents of noted amateur golfer Richard D. (Dick) Chapman, who were Pinehurst residents for many years.

Both the late Mr. and Mrs. Chapman were fine golfers, he was, in fact, an enthusiastic competitor in amateur events over the country, and was a holder of the National Seniors Championship.

In addition to their home in Pinehurst, the Chapmans at one time owned a place at the golf paradise of the Pacific, Pebble Beach, Calif.

Beginning tomorrow, Friday, is the weekend official "opener" at the revamped and revitalized Pinehurst Gun Club—the first annual Annie Oakley Handicap Trap Shooting Championship for Women—which has attracted a good field and is of historic interest here as the ace sharpshooter, Annie Oakley, taught at the old Gun Club in the early part of the century. A Harvest Skeet Championship is set at the Gun Club November 21-22.

The World Seniors Four-Ball Championship for Men will be sponsored here November 9-14, by the Southern Seniors Golf Association, founded in Pinehurst over 30 years ago.

The President's and the Vice President's Teams will tangle November 17 in the annual match for Silver Foils Club members. Tin Whistles Club "specials" coming up this month—a mixed event at stroke play for better ball of pair on the 19th, and on the 21st, the 14th annual Howard Kenworthy trophy, individual stroke play tournament honoring the memory of a longtime Pinehurst winter resident whose original home was Youngstown, Ohio.

An added incentive to try for a hole-in-one is the turkey to be given away November 25 to the man and woman coming closest to the pin in the Pinehurst Country Club's Thanksgiving Turkey Shoot.

Honoring members of Pinehurst's founding family is the annual Tufts Memorial Golf Tournament for mixed foursomes, in its 10th renewal November 27 at the country club.

Also scheduled for the 27th—the yearly Harvest Square Dance in the Carolina Hotel Ballroom.

And on November 29, the annual Thanksgiving Gymkhana and Pet Show is scheduled in the riding ring at the Carolina.

St. Andrews Staffer To Address PTA Here Tuesday

Mrs. Louis Ebersole of St. Andrews College will be the guest speaker at the November 10 meeting of the Pinehurst Parent-Teacher Association.

The PTA meeting, scheduled as usual, on the second Tuesday of the month, follows on the heels of National Children's Book Week, which began November 1, and the program will be in line with that theme.

The speaker, who is in the Education Department at St. Andrews, will discuss the proper kind of books and publications adults should select for their homes and for the children.

Dr. J. C. Grier, Jr. heads the program committee for the year.

Parents are urged to attend Tuesday's meeting beginning at 8 pm in the School Auditorium, and to look over the display of new books which will be on exhibition, either in the Elementary School library, or in the Multi-Use Room.

Six Local FHA Girls Attend District Rally

Saturday proved to be an interesting day for the Future Homemakers of America from Pinehurst. Their advisor, Miss Jerry Jones, took 20 girls to the District III Rally at Seventy-First High School.

The girls are grateful to Herbert Williams for driving them, and to Bobby Burwell Sharon McDonald and Debbie Prince for taking part in the Hootenanny.

Elaine Bryant from Pinehurst ran for state parliamentarian and the FHA members are proud that she was first alternate.
